Rev {20:3} et misit eum in abyssum, et clausit, et signavit super illum ut non seducat amplius gentes, donec consummentur mille anni: et post hæc oportet illum solvi modico tempore.

And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season.

And the LORD was sorry that He had made man on the earth, and He was grieved in His heart.

Genesis 6:6

When Homer said that he wished war might disappear from the lives of gods and men, he forgot that without opposition all things would cease to exist.

Heraclitus

When Plato said that if I'd gone to the Sicilian court as I was invited, I wouldn't have to wash lettuce for a living, I replied that if he washed lettuce for a living he wouldn't have had to go to the Sicilian court.

Diogenes

The life of the ordinary man is the best and most prudent choice; cease from the folly of metaphysical speculation and inquiry into origins and ends, utterly reject their clever logic, count all these things idle talk, and pursue one end alone—how you may do what your hand finds to do, and go your way with ever a smile and never a passion.

Lucian of Samosata - Menippus - A Necromantic Experiment

Justice is nothing other than the advantage of the stronger.

[Thrasymachus], Plato, The Republic, Book I, 338c

In a world that is running to its doom, according to the theory of cycles, there is only individual salvation.

Alain Danielou

A slave is one who waits for someone to come and free him.

Ezra Pound

We're not here because we're free, we're here because we're not free.

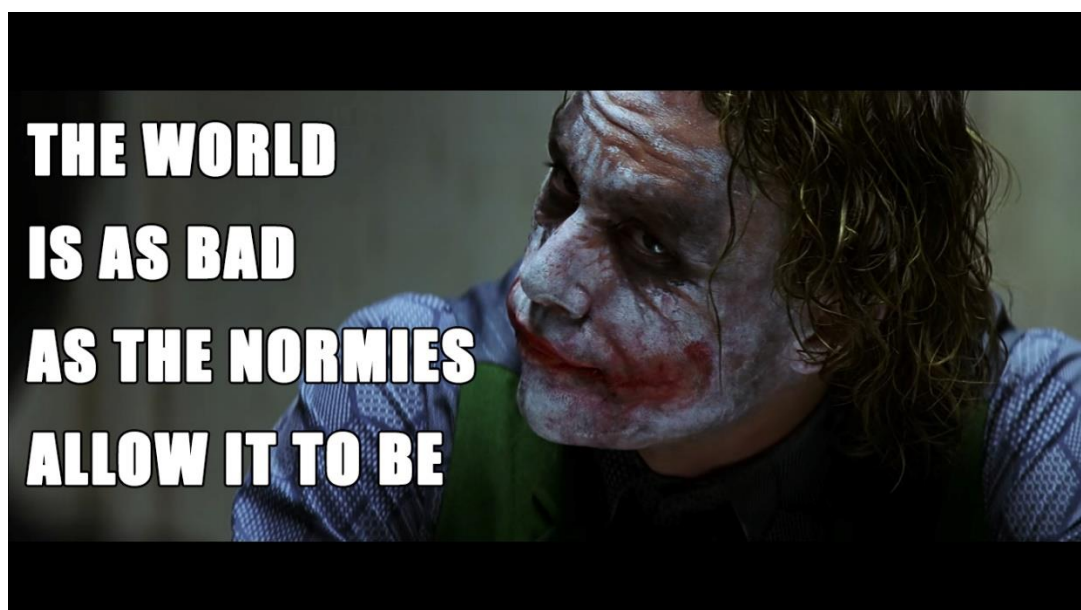

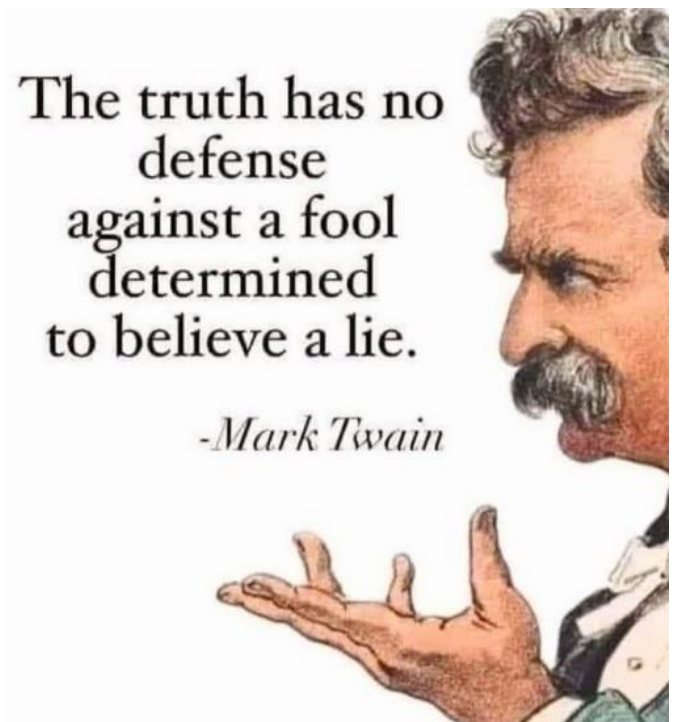

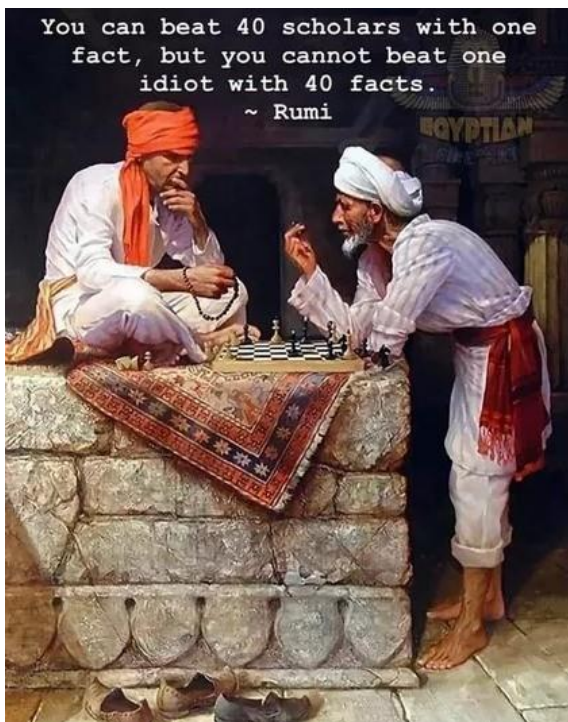

The Matrix

All things in human life should be born of freedom and pass through freedom and be rejected whenever they betray freedom. [...] I can accept truth only through, and in, freedom.

Nicolas Berdyaev, Dream and Reality

We can comprehend absolutely nothing about modern civilization if we don't first admit that it is a universal conspiracy against any kind of inner life.

The problem with the world is that things can get worse for everybody in no time, but it's impossible to make things better for everybody.

I'm going to have to strongly disagree with the Stalag Edition being the best edition of Mein Kampf. It is only a claim that it is the Operation Sea Lion Edition. My goto version now is the Thomas Dalton's translation of Mein Kampf. I have read the Manheim & Murphy translations in the 1980s and the Ford & Stalag Editions as soon as they came out. Although the Manheim is the best of those it has many errors. Anyone that reads German can attest to this.

Dalton's new edition has the German on one side and English on the other. In my opinion it is VASTLY superior to any other English translation and is extremely readable by any modern English speaker. That is the point of translation and transliteration; to make the original work flow in the same manner.

The problem I have with the Stalag edition is that it clearly a rushed attempt to clean up the Murphy translation that was edited by a Jew. The English in my opinion is not analogous with the German (I read both) and it is extremely stilted and obtuse as well as being full of grammatical and transliteration errors in the Elite Minds Version.

Although the Ostara Version of the Stalag Edition cleans up a lot of the grammar, it creates a new problem. It breaks the flow of what Hitler is writing over and over by transforming full German sentences into three or four English sentences. Hitler was very meticulous in the way he put things. It ends up reading like a newspaper at best and a Pulp magazine at worse.

The Dalton Edition has both the German and the English and it is very easy to see if the texts line up, which they do 100% at all times, unlike the Stalag version. It has taken Mein Kampf coming out of copyright in 2016 to finally get a decent translation into English.

Hopefully you can be won over to the Dalton translation.

here was no 'Stalag Version' of Mein Kampf. The official English version was the James Murphy translation but it was unfinished. The Translation was finished and edited by a Jew in a rush for Operation Sea Lion. Supposedly some of them were slanted with a 'Stalag' - Prisoner of War Camp stamp, thus the name. It says in the introduction, "Translated by a now-unknown English-speaking Nazi party member". Really ? Maybe, but I have my doubts. It was the Murphy Edition of Mein Kampf that found it's way to some Prisoner of war camps. The Jewish edited version of the unfinished Murphy Edition. That's my opinion on the matter.

Others seem to share this opinion as well. https://gab.com/Nature_and_Race/posts/11116640654947909 (Expand the link)
The very best read person on the night is our colleague Alex Linder. No one else comes close. He choose the Dalton version for his audiobook and he's read them all.

This thread is now about the Jews, anon.
Because the JEWS did 9/11. Mossad rigged the towers while posing as ACE Elevator workers and "art students".

I would know, because I know more about 9/11 than anyone else alive except the cowardly cocksuckers who pulled it off. That's why I wrote my book on it:

<https://www.docdroid.net/R6l5wtJ/the-more-rational-worldview-pdf>

More writings here:
<https://twowitnessesofrevelation.com/>

I could go on and on about this for hours but either way, we all know the jews did it. Fuckin Synagogue of Satan organized crime syndicate. One thing we should talk about more in these threads is the money laundering aspect.

9/11 was, in large part, designed to cover up $240 billion dollars of fraudulent securities that were used to collapse the USSR (last homogeneous white country and enemy of the jews) by Bush Sr and Reagan in 1991.

The last remaining evidence of these bonds was stored in the WTC complex, specifically the towers and WTC7, and the ONI of the Pentagon. All three areas were targeted specifically, and there has to be some way to track this with more detail.

I need some more autists on Collateral Damage by E.P Heidner besides just me, man. It's one of the best papers written on it:

Beamer tried to place a credit card call through a phone located on the back of a plane seat, but was routed to a customer-service representative, who passed him on to GTE airphone supervisor Lisa Jefferson. With FBI agents listening in on their call, Beamer informed Jefferson that hijackers had taken over United 93, that one passenger had been killed, and mentioned the dead pilots. He also stated that two of the hijackers had knives, and that one appeared to have a bomb strapped around his waist. When the hijackers veered the plane sharply south, Beamer briefly panicked, exclaiming, "We're going down! We're going down!"

Flight 93 crash site

Following this, the passengers and flight crew decided to act.[3] According to accounts of cell phone conversations, Beamer, along with Mark Bingham, Tom Burnett, and Jeremy Glick formed a plan to take the plane back from the hijackers. They were joined by other passengers, including Lou Nacker, Rich Guadagno, Alan Beaven, Honor Elizabeth Wainio, Linda Gronlund, and William Cashman, along with flight attendants Sandra Bradshaw and Cee Cee Ross-Lyles, in discussing their options and voting on a course of action, ultimately deciding to storm the cockpit and take over the plane.[3] Beamer told Jefferson that the group was planning to "jump on" the hijackers and fly the plane into the ground before the hijackers' plan could be followed through. Beamer recited the Lord's Prayer and the 23rd Psalm with Jefferson, prompting others to join in. Beamer requested of Jefferson, "If I don't make it, please call my family and let them know how much I love them." After this, Jefferson heard muffled voices and Beamer clearly answering, "Are you ready? Okay. Let's roll." These were Beamer's last words to Jefferson.

DOHA, Qatar (CNN) -- Islamic militant leader Osama bin Laden, the man the United States considers the prime suspect in last week's terrorist attacks on New York and Washington, denied any role Sunday in the actions believed to have killed thousands.

In a statement issued to the Arabic satellite channel Al Jazeera, based in Qatar, bin Laden said, "The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks, which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said.

"I have been living in the Islamic emirate of Afghanistan and following its leaders' rules. The current leader does not allow me to exercise such operations," bin Laden said.

Literature more than any other media cuts deep into the core ethos of a society, showing it's central beliefs and flaws.

I think for contemporary Liberal-Capitalist society, no series does this better than A Song of Ice and Fire.

I would call this the Epic of American Liberal Globalism, and it's failures highlight the failures of this system.

>>477275659 \(OP\)

So what is ASoIaF as a series? Not the plot but it's ethos?

It's a deeply cyclical and deconstructionist, post-modern work. It presents a world where everyone is insincere whether they realize it or not.

A world where all motivating drives of humanity (nobility, pride, honour, faith, justice, nationhood, loyalty, wisdom etc...) are falsehoods which offer nothing and achieve only the destruction of the characters.

It presents an utterly doomed and depraved world where all within must inevitably suffer, except G.R.R.Martin is too cynical in his old age to even offer the prospect of some hope or salvation, all attempts at such are broken and whisked away as soon as they appear.

A Song of Ice and Fire is anti-mythology and anti-tradition draped in the trappings of fantasy. It's as much the anti-LOTR as one can possibly get.

Does this make it bad? No, the series is enjoyable, but it's doomed just like the world within is, and George will NEVER finish the series because of this reason, it has no where to go, just a web of complexity and cynicism which ends up nowhere.

If you read George RR Martins other works, you can see that he is an old hippie type out of the 1960's counter-culture. Everything he does grows out of that ethos, as does Modern American (globalist) society.

In the past it seems he had some ideals, his shorter stories show his pacifism, atheism, heroic fragility of very human characters. In these he still shows some hope for a future of liberal enlightenment.

However in ASOIAF, you can tell that whatever ideals he might have had before are totally gone, replaced by cynicism, dread, and uncertainty, all wrapped up in webs of meaningless complexity.

Again this is a direct parallel with the state of the Globalist Liberal Hegemony.

To compare more directly with LOTR, you can see this divergence more clearly.

In LOTR, oaths are incredibly serious and taken with sincerity, breaking an oath exacts divine punishment as happened to the ghosts under the mountain.

In ASOIAF oaths exists only to be broken and "subvert" norms

In LOTR, family ties are incredibly important. the one character who notably breaks his family bond , smeagol, is punished for centuries because of it by turning into Golum.

In ASOIAF, when Theon chooses his family over this friend's the Starks, he is severely punished and transformed into the Golum-like character of Reek. Not to mention the incest and backstabbing within the families constantly.

In LOTR, there is one true God and all creation, good or evil, ultimately flows from Him. The song is already sun and everyone is just playing along to the melody.

In ASOIAF, all "gods" are sinister, evil, or simply fantasies. All prophecy leads to ruin, all chosen ones fail.

And of course there are a million other examples, ASOIAF is the anti-LOTR just as the American Hegemony is the anti-British Empire.

Great thread anon. Actually inspired me to look into the game of throne book series.

Tolkien was a product of his era in the same way Martin is. From the 1940s to the 2000s it seems western values completely inverted. The devil usurped our societies while the godly people were sleeping.

 This is part of it as I mentioned, he can never finish because he has no ideal to reach or goal to strive for (literary wise)
 The plot keeps expanding and the web keeps twisting but there is nothing but nihilism underneath it all and it's not possible to conclude a story like that.

This is also why I compare it to the Liberal Globalist ethos, there is nothing beyond it, nothing underneath the machinations and trickery, no end state in sight, just stasis.

Likewise the most fitting "ending" would be for the series to remain unfinished forever.

Alternatively, the ending presented in the TV series was probably closest to what it would actually look like, that being just an embarrassing mess dumped onto the viewer like a load of old laundry, basically stating "well there it is then"

 The end of Dune Messiah was amazing, the plan against Paul was brilliant, for anyone that hasn't read it I highly recommend it. So many people act like they understand Dune because they read a summary on wikipedia, then casually give away spoilers like they read the books.

 They are good, but never expect them to be finished or think of them as generic "fantasy" rather than a post-modern deconstruction of mythology and human virtue ethics.

 It can never be finished because the world he created is one of eternal stasis.
 As I said it is the post-modern Liberal ethos placed into a fantasy world.

God is dead, nothing matters, there is no salvation because nothing will change and no one can do anything about it.

It's nihilistic, and while it's interesting for the first few books, eventually the whole system gets bogged down by it's own entangled web of plotlines littering this static nihilistic world that no ending is possible without throwing the entire foundational ethos away and turning it suddenly into Lord of the Rings or the Bible where Jesus comes down from heaven to save everyone.

 The point is he can't untangle it without totally upending the entire story.

The TV show literally did exactly this and was hated because it just shredded the entire story to that point to reach a happy hopeful traditional ending.

The only fitting end to the series would be for GRRM to die and all his letters and drafts being burnt.

- >get along with him okay socially
- >on the line he's beyond useless, cant even restock or use the oven properly
- >when he sees we have a lot of orders he waddles out into the dining room and starts bothering random customers talking about how good our soup is and other random shit
- >does this for 15 minutes, the customers visibly annoyed by this sped talking to them on their lunchbreak
- >does this until the rush is over, then waddles back onto the line and says something like "gotta get the good word out *wink"
- >This goes on for about 2 months then he gets transferred to his permanent job at another location 20 miles north (3x as busy as our store)
- >he quits after 2 days
- >he ironically thought being a manager at a constantly busy cafe was just waddling around talking to customers about our company ethos and then sitting in the back room sleeping.

He comes to mind every time I hear a boomer spew shit about "muh work ethic" . I hope he's dead no it fucking doesn't actually.

If you're 80 and you walk into a store with $100 you saved in 1980, you are supposed to get served for your money because in theory, you earned that $100 by making the economy more productive back in the day. That's what entitles you to that 25 year old's labour now, you in theory helped him in the past. But you didn't, you literally 'paid into' a system that still overspent at the time. You 'saved' and created nothing real except some numbers! Now in 2024 you act like any random 20 year old owes you the labour to grow and deliver a single actual real potato? For fucking what?

It's hilarious boomers are the ones who literally changed the definition of money to not be real for their short term greed, now act like that money is soooo real. It fucking isn't. You didnt earn shit from the youth of today.

He declined for privacy reasons and my insurance cancelled my policy. These new vehicles with their tech are on condition that we give up our privacy to enter their world. It's not worth it people.

Is this peak capitalism? Are we finally in a cyberpunk dystopia?

This is not "stupid" design. It was a deliberate decision to make the mouse useless while charging. Why?

Perhaps you're annoyed that you have to pause your work and let it charge, so you'll buy another one as a backup.

Also, if you use it long enough, its internal battery will deteriorate, offering progressively shorter work time. If it had the charging port in the front, you could leave it always attached and still use it, just downgrading your wireless mouse to a cable mouse. It would be acceptable for some people. But this way you have to buy a new one.

Those are two potential chances for additional revenue with just one seemingly "stupid" design choice.

It's the same as putting critical components next to heat sources in their laptops. Apple doesn't do stupid things, it does asshole things.

Until 2010, Boeing charged an average of $300 for a trash container used in the E-3 Sentry, a surveillance and radar plane based on the 707 civilian airliner. When the 707 fell out of use in the United States, the trash can was no longer a "commercial" item, meaning that Boeing was not obligated to keep its price at previous levels, according to a weapons industry source who spoke to RS.

In 2020, the Pentagon paid Boeing over $200,000 for four of the trash cans, translating to roughly $51,606 per unit. In a 2021 contract, the company charged $36,640 each for 11 trash containers, resulting in a total cost of more than $400,000. The apparent overcharge cost taxpayers an extra $600,000 between the two contracts.

In another case, Lockheed Martin hiked the price of an electrical conduit for the P-3 plane as much as 14 fold, costing the Pentagon an additional $133,000 between 2008 and 2015.

Jamaica Bearings — a company that distributes parts manufactured by other firms — sold the Department of Defense 13 radio filters that had once cost $350 each for nearly $49,000 per unit in 2022. The apparent markup cost taxpayers more than $600,000 in extra fees.

Dodge v. Ford Motor Co.

1919 Michigan Supreme Court case

Dodge v. Ford Motor Company, 204 Mich. 459, 170 N.W. 668 (Mich. 1919) is a case in which the Michigan Supreme Court held that Henry Ford had to operate the Ford Motor Company in the interests of its shareholders, rather than in a charitable manner for the benefit of his employees or customers.

Not for unfair work practices.

Dodge owned 10% of Ford. Profits from the success of the Model T were literally funding its competitor so Ford decided to stop paying a dividend and instead double the daily wage of his employees. Dodge Bros sued Ford claiming Ford acted against the interest of shareholders and that set the legal precedent that businesses exist to maximize profit to shareholders.

Remember the hole in the ozone layer..... let me redpill you on what happened. DuPont invented and held the patent for r12. R12 is an extremely efficient refrigerant. Anybody with an old r12 car or refrigerator can attest. R12 cools better than r134, and also operates at a lower pressure. Late r12 a/c systems were bullet proof and many are still operating on their original pre 1994 charge

>ozone hole gets discovered in 1978/1979

The fed said cfc's were the cause, and allowed DuPont to continue sole manufacturing of r12 until the "switch". This bought DuPont from 1979-1994 total control of the refrigerant market.

R134 came along. Guess who patented r134? DuPont. So now DuPont had total control of the market again, a market designed around an inferior product and planned obsolescence. Modern ac systems are shit, they are extremely finicky, and run high pressure which makes leaks appear.

Right when the r134 patent was coming up to expiration, new data showed r134 to also be bad for the environment. Same shit again.

DuPont creates and patents a new refrigerant. Even less efficient than r134. This compound is called 1234yf. Honeywell has part of the patent and they are the ones that manufacture >r12 could blow 6-7 degrees cooler than r134 and was 15 times more efficient

6-7 degrees is a massive difference in cooling capabilities over ambient >the new 1234yf is 5-20% less efficient than r12.

> 1234yf operates at an even higher pressure. This creates leaks, and provides an extremely small window that it will even operate at

The ozone layer was a scam. It was to provide DuPont with continued total control of a massive extremely fast growing market. Every new compound allows them to create a worse product that requires more continued sales.

Man comes 'back to life' as surgeons began the process of harvesting his body parts after they determined he was de*d

Kentucky man TJ Hoover II was thrashing on the table & "crying visibly" as doctors prepared to remove his organs.

Before the process, the family raised concerns that Hoover was alive because his eyes seemed open and he looked around while being wheeled to the operating room.

They were told that it was a "common reflex."

Hoover had been declared "brain de*d" after an overdose.

When Hoover started thrashing and crying, he was sedated and doctors still planned on going forward with the organ recovery, according to NPR.

The transplant was ultimately cancelled leading to several employees quitting.

The Kentucky Attorney General and US Health Services Resources Administration are now reportedly investigating the incident.

i've basically given up and accept that any attempt i make at bettering myself will be met with stabs in the back from my family, or friends, and that i have no upwards mobility in life, ontop of the shit hand ive been delt with, this country is just too fucked for me to even bother patricipating in, or giving a fuck about, its honestly at the point where i accept i wont ever have a life worth living, and no longer feel like chasing the carrot, or working hard as there is no reward, and any time i try taking steps to better myself i get fucked over.

this idea that i need to just, work harder, or try harder - fuck it, id rather put a rifle in my mouth than continue to chase a carrot i will never feel, let alone taste, this whole country is fucked and the idea i have to give 40-50% of my labor in taxes to support a failed nation is just fucked. i dont care anymore.

any time i tried to help my fellow canadian i got a kick to the head, so now i support the chinese drone swarms, i support american anexation, i support russian nuclear holocaust.

just make the madness end, and post the in store prices.

Conditions improved in the next decade, yet of the 2,000 who migrated to Massachusetts in 1630, ten percent died in the following winter. At that time most of the settlers were coming to the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Selective processes were evident in this migration because the arrivals included a considerable proportion of prosperous merchants.

Is there any evidence, besides the logic of the evolutionary mechanism itself, to show that the surviving Pilgrims and Puritans were superior to average Englishmen?

In Mainsprings of Civilization Ellsworth Huntington classified New England surnames in four groups, according to dates of arrival in America: those arriving in 1620-1635; in 1636-1643; in 1644-1692; and in 1693-1790. He then estimated what proportion of people in 38 American cities bear those names, and what portion of these achieved distinction. He pointed out that, although they come from a much diluted stock, "the differences between people descended from Puritans who arrived in America early in contrast with those who arrived later are surprisingly great." Members of the 1693-1790 group, he asserted, "did not undergo such difficulties as beset the earliest migrants," so they had not been weeded out in any comparable proportion and their achievements had been fewer and far between.

One of Huntington's studies relied on names in Who's Who in America. In each occupational field he found nearly twice as many people whose ancestors came here in 1620-1635 as those whose ancestors came in 1693-1790. Among other things, Huntington compared the inventive talents of descendants of early arrivals to the population at large.

He found that the posterity of the early colonists had been given patents in far greater proportion than the general population.

Here we should refer to a scholarly study by Stephen Sargent Visser, Scientists Starred, 1903-1943. Visser provides a goldmine of interesting and useful information about outstanding contributors to scientific knowledge. Of the fifty women who were named as outstanding scientists, almost all were of Puritan descent. Of the men, a larger number were descended from Puritans than from any other group.

The beginning of American civilization was unique in its details, but not in its general pattern. As everywhere, the weeding out of the weaklings and the consequent improvement of the average biological level of the group preceded the high points of civilization – and the more rigorous the weeding, the more phenomenal the subsequent achievements.

Virginia serves as another example. Five thousand people migrated from England to the vicinity of Jamestown in 1606-1624, but by the end of that eighteen-year period only 1,200 had survived. Three-fourths of the migrants had succumbed to starvation, Indian attacks, malaria and other misfortunes. Could these tragic experiences be a partial explanation of the fact that seven of the first twelve of our country's presidents were born in Virginia?

There have been more civilizations than we once imagined, most of them lasting a thousand years or less, then gradually disappearing. Egypt had dark ages of disorganization interspersed with periods of magnificence. The parade of the Sumerian, Babylonian, Assyrian and Chaldean civilizations in the Tigris and Euphrates Valleys followed invasions and infiltrations by outlanders. China's civilizations have been rhythmic in their rise and fall, while that of the Mayas seems to have had one great efflorescence and was then extinguished.

The rhythmic nature of civilization has been a great fascination to historians. As Greece faded and the Roman Republic drifted into dictatorship, the poet Lucretius elaborated on the mortality of nations. Voltaire put the same idea this way: "History is only the patter of silken slippers descending the stairs – to the clatter of hobnail boots coming up."

What Voltaire was saying is that a nation, grown too luxurious, is likely to yield its place in the sun to some coarse and swashbuckling, but energetic and self-confident newcomer. Nations, he indicated, grow soft as they become successful.

Louis Wallis wrote in An Examination of Society that Egypt, Babylonia, Assyria, Phoenicia and Israel gradually succumbed to assaults from without, yielding to Elamites, Kassites, Ethiopians, Scythians, Medes, Persians, Greeks and Romans. "It would seem," said Wallis, "that Oriental Society, having waxed powerful up to a certain stage, ought to have repelled these enemies instead of offering a weaker and weaker front to their assaults. But the contrary was the case; and the genius of progress at length departed from the eastern world."

Those Middle East regions, through all the shabby centuries that followed, acted as if they had forgotten they were once the center of a civilization. After the conquerors listed by Wallis stood successively in the limelight for their brief moment, they joined their victims in history's graveyard. Lord Byron gave his version of this sad timetable in Childe Harold's Pilgrimage:

There is the moral of all human tales:
'Tis but the same rehearsal of the past,
First Freedom, and then Glory — when that fails, Wealth — Vice — Corruption — Barbarism at last.

The Englishman, Conyers Middleton, made a similar point when discussing the Romans' low opinion of Britain:

From their railleries of this kind, on the barbarity and misery of our island, one cannot help reflecting on the surprising fate and revolutions of kingdoms; how Rome, once the mistress of the world, the seat of arts, empire, and glory, now lies sunk in sloth, ignorance, and poverty... while this remote country, anciently the jest and contempt of the polite Romans, is become the happy seat of liberty, plenty, and letters; flourishing in all the arts and refinements of civil life; yet running, perhaps, the same course which Rome itself had run before it, from virtuous industry to wealth; from wealth to luxury: from luxury to an impatience of discipline and corruption of morals: till, by a total degeneracy and loss of virtue, being grown ripe for destruction, it falls a prey at last to some hardy oppressor, and, with the loss of liberty, losing everything that is valuable, sinks gradually again into its original barbarism.

The Heredity Factor

Disaster built deceptively

Tradition said "O.K. "

The people thought the trend was good!

How blandly blind were they!

Anonymous

Let's summarize the various reasons for the fall of civilizations given by the eminent scholars and philosophers mentioned in the previous chapter.

Voltaire: When people become soft, they invite conquest.

Louis Wallis: Concentration of land holdings adversely affects morals and morale.

Eric Fischer: Old cultures become unadaptable to new conditions.

Tom B. Jones: (a) Completion of a pattern, as in architecture or any other field of endeavor, leaves no direction to go but down.

(b) Raw materials are first exported, then used up at home, then imported, until they can no longer be afforded.

W. C. Lowdermilk: When its agriculture fails, the civilization fails.

Brooks Adams: Concentration of power and of decision making mortally wounds the social organization.

Carle C. Zimmerman: When family ties loosen, civilization decays.

J. D. Unwin: Permissive sex mores are anathema to civilized behavior.

Harold H. Smith: Increasing complexity and knowledge have a Tower-of-Babel effect.

W. B. Pitkin: A vast population militates against individual achievement.

Note that none of these gentlemen emphasizes or even mentions heredity. In fact, all of them seem to have gone out of their way to avoid any references whatever to the part human genetics plays in the fall of civilizations.

No one, including the author of this book, claims or suggests that the deterioration of heredity destroys a civilization all by itself. One or more of the causes summarized above certainly enters into the picture, and sometimes disaster strikes quite independently of any heredity change. However, the main thesis of this book is that every civilization normally has a built-in, self-destruct mechanism, which insures that the less capable half of every generation become the parents of more than half of the succeeding generation.

The point is that the most intelligent and the least intelligent people have sharply different attitudes toward childbearing. Reliable statistics show that this attitudinal difference results in the more successful segments of our society having fewer children. Part of this is due to the fact that intelligent couples marry at a later age.

In Science News Letter (March 3, 1962), Ann Ewing wrote about "a survey of 31 women who participated in the first and second Science Talent Search of 1942 and 1943." By 1962 most of these highly intelligent women had attained important positions in science, but "of the 31, 20 were married while 11 remained single." It seems that the influences which stimulate talented women to take up a profession tend at the same time to remove them from the marriage market. In this case thirty-five percent of them were unmarried, compared with about ten percent of the women in the population at large.

Here are some of the reasons why intelligent couples are increasingly unwilling to have a large family, or any family at all:

1. In spite of hard times and inflation, relatively thoughtless couples are likely to marry younger, and then to reproduce with less thought of the future than prudent couples. Sensitivity to the cost of raising children is keener among the more affluent members of society, even though they can afford the cost better than the less affluent members.

2. Intelligent couples are more likely to know about birth control and improved methods of contraception than less intelligent couples. Conversely, the less people know about such things, the more babies they have.

3. People of intelligence frequently develop a strong interest in the professions, in the arts, in business, in science, in hobbies or in any number of other activities. Such interests may leave them little time or inclination for children.

4. It is an old cliché that the more there is of something the less it is worth. That may not be the attitude of parents to their own children after they are born, but it is true that the more boys and girls there are at home, the less importance another child will have. Such matters are not likely to be thought about in advance by the unintelligent in connection with childbearing, but may restrict the number of children by the intelligent.

5. Highly intelligent women are usually purposeful. Adopting the role of men, they disparage their own inborn function as women (womb-men) and leave child-bearing to those of less intelligence.

6. The problem of disciplining children in a permissive age is often foreseen by capable couples, so they have fewer children. Less capable couples discover too late that they are slaves of TV toddlers and tempestuous teenagers who justify the definition of gratitude as "the lively expectation of further favors."

7. In 1949 the British Royal Commission on Population found that high standards of parental care were a reason for the general decline of the British birthrate. Obviously these high standards were honored by the more conscientious, not the less conscientious, Britons.

8. The intelligent parent is quicker to note the prosperity of the small family and the poverty of the large one.

Theodor Mommsen in The History of Rome (trans. W. P. Dickson, Vol. 5, p. 337) also attributes Roman decadence to the disappearance of the original gene pool: "The patrician body ... had dwindled away more and more in the course of centuries and in the time of Ceasar there were not more than fifteen or sixteen patrician gentes (clans) still in existence." Caesar himself sprung from one of them. He was given the right of creating new patricians, but they soon bred themselves out of existence.

In the time of Augustus, according to Brooks Adams, some Romans were conscious that the sterility of the upper class must eventually deliver their city into the hands of the barbarians. When legislation passed in A.D. 4 failed to encourage marriage, new laws were introduced five years later. Some of the patricians protested and asked that the legislation be repealed. Augustus called them to the Forum and gave them a lecture that was passionate, even violent, in its earnestness. Those among them who were single were the worst of criminals, he asserted. They were destroyers of the race. Did they expect men to spring out of the ground to replace them? "While the government liberated slaves for the sole purpose of keeping up the number of citizens," Augustus thundered, "the children of the Marcii, of the Fabii, of the Valerii, and the Julii, allowed their names to perish from the earth."

But Augustus might as well have remained silent. The trend continued. "The bearing of children became unfashionable", said G. M. McCleary, in the Hibbert Journal (April 1947). "[As] bourgeoisie and nouveaux riches strove to emulate their betters in Rome, their families died out".

There is a study in Mankind Quarterly (January-March 1965) by S. C. Gilfillan entitled "Roman Culture and Dysgenic Lead Poisoning". Gilfillan draws on the opinion of other scholars as well as his own to propose an additional reason for Roman decline—the upper-class habit of cooking wine, grape syrup and acid foods in leaden or leadplated vessels and storing liquids in lead-glazed pottery. Lead,

Gilfillan alerts us, "produces sterility, miscarriage, stillbirth, heavy child mortality and permanent mental impairment in children."

Lead was plentiful and more easily worked than any other metal in classical times. Since its harmful effects were scarcely known, lead utensils were in great demand by those who could afford them. The wine jugs of the poor contained very little lead. Acid foods if stored, and especially if cooked, in copper or bronze produce copper acetate, which is greenish, bad tasting and sickening. Lead did not broadcast its poisonous qualities so obviously.

Lead colanders, toys, pencils, and wall paint were other sources of the poison, as well as lead pipes, roofs and cisterns. Some of the poor shared those risks, but except for those who worked with the metal, the lead danger for the lower classes was minor.

The low birthrate of the aristocracy meant succeeding generations were diluted with people promoted from the poorer segments of the population. In this way, if Gilfillan's theory is correct, the cream of each crop was brought to the top and then sterilized. It's a wonder Rome lasted as long as it did!

The lead culture, which was developed in Greece and may have been a cause of the intellectual collapse of that civilization, may also present a subtle genetic danger to modern man. Irving M. Shapiro writes in the Journal of the American Dental Association (Feb. 1, 1973) that he and his co-workers tested six brands of toothpaste. All contained lead, with a larger proportion in tubes that were nearly empty. Shapiro estimated that if a child brushes his teeth twice a day he gets 1,800 parts per million of lead each day from toothpaste, in addition to 130 ppm from food. The lead does not pass through the body, but accumulates in the bones.

Robert Gayre, the editor of Mankind Quarterly, wrote in the 1972 Fall issue a brief but significant article entitled "The Rise and Fall of Nations: Genetic Impoverishment." Here are a few excerpts:

Despite the fact that all scientists concerned with biology have ineluctably been forced to accept the implication of genetics, we find that these laws have had little or no effect on a large body.... of sociologists, social anthropologists, political thinkers and philosophers, very many psychiatrists, and practically all politicians....

It is therefore not surprising that the decline of nations is attributed to environmental causes.... Or, putting the matter another way, the result of immigration, emigration, war, taxation and other social forces are not seen at all in their genetic setting.

Dr. Gayre uses his thesis to explain the collapse of the British Empire:

For centuries overseas service had been dysgenic since its adverse effects had fallen disproportionately upon the elite of the nations making up the United Kingdom. This was particularly so from the nineteenth century onwards. One has only to visit Christian cemeteries in India to see the names of whole companies of men and their officers struck down by cholera in the same month to realize that overseas service in the nineteenth century was bleeding the nation of its adventurous elite. . . .

These continuous campaigns went on to the South African war, and then came the first Great War with its incalculable losses in manpower... for instance, after the battle of Loos, a second lieutenant came out commanding the remnant of a gallant Highland regiment. When it is realized that Britain (like Spain before her) was wedded to a principle which was a selective recruitment of only the best for slaughter... then the genetic loss becomes evident. It was not only that a generation was virtually wiped out, but it was selective of the leadership in all classes. The Second World War continued this same trend, although on a less stupendous scale.

Dr. Gayre concludes with evidence from more recent history:

Eleanor Rathbone, a well-known liberal Member of Parliament, brought in an Act for family allowances, as a consequence of which, just at the very time when middle and upper classes had to restrict their birth rates, the least endowed elements genetically of the population were encouraged to expand theirs. Following this came Lord Beveridge and his welfare state which has, as a consequence, continued and developed this trend further.

Co-operative living and interdependence are the essence of civilization. Since one man's work is usually dependent on another's, orderly and systematic patterns of behavior are necessary. Interdependence can be described as a form of reciprocity. In a complex civilization the importance of an individual's part in the production process is difficult to evaluate. This seems to account for the common failure to render equal service for service given.

When co-operative living becomes highly developed, the weeding out process reduces to zero. The strong create living patterns that protect themselves, but also protect the weak and the unco-operative. The social appetite is glorified. Service to others, and especially to the helpless, is recognised as the primary moral imperative. Then the adverse birth rate differences take effect. The less intelligent multiply more rapidly than the more intelligent. In its net effect, evolution doesn't merely stop: it goes into reverse.

Gradually a weakening of average intellectual capacity sets in. Soon the wisdom needed to maintain the complexity of civilization is no longer available. At the same time the problems themselves grow more difficult. Judgments become more ill-advised. Government moves farther from the people. Issues have to be settled by force. Suffering increases. Long-time objectives are abandoned as people live more for the moment. The civilization may then be overcome by conquering invaders, or it may sink into a dark age of its own creation.

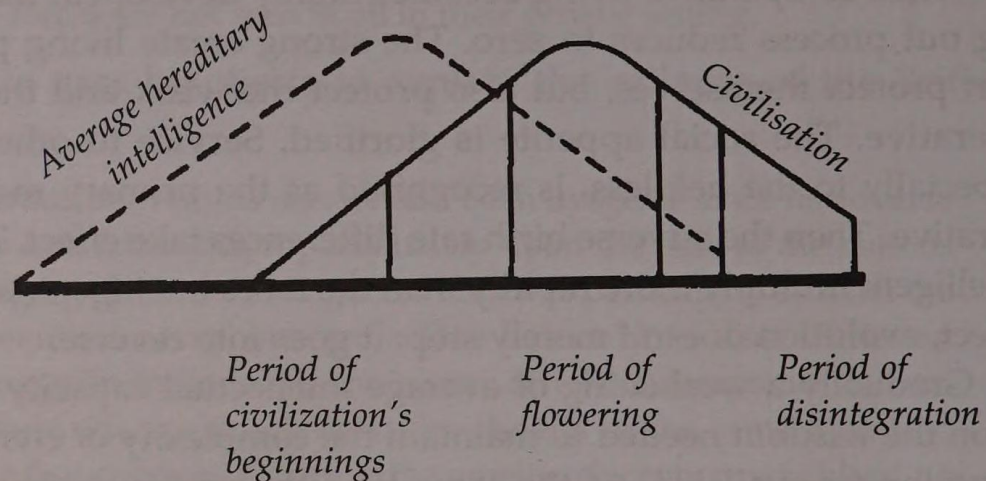

Civilizations break up because family and domestic incentives are often superseded by incentives for social accomplishment. The breeding is left mainly to those who are incapable of achievement of any sort. As we have said, civilization is co-operative living. But without brains to direct the co-operation there is only barbarism.

In our own civilization we see a lessening of the struggle for survival. Welfare does away with natural selection. Nothing in our present environment can serve as an adequate substitute for the harsh means evolution adopted to prevent the weaker elements of civilization from playing a major part in the formation of subsequent generations. Compassion, unfortunately, is the enemy of biological progress.

Being, in part, an accumulation of skills and know-how, of buildings and tools, of transportation and communication, civilization must necessarily lag behind the concentration of brain power on which it depends. And since the visible forms and structures of a civilization are an accumulation, they may endure for decades after average intelligence has declined far below the level required to create the civilization.

The following chart serves to illustrate these points.

Lag of a civilization behind the rise and fall of the intelligence on which it depends.

At the left part of the two curves the environment is harsh. Though the less fit have more children than the more fit, the children of the latter survive in greater numbers, so average brain power increases. As the broken line showing hereditary intelligence reaches its apex, cooperative living takes over and more and more people of below average intelligence are kept alive. Their birthrate being higher, they survive in larger numbers. Average intelligence declines.

To sum up: (1) the cause of the rise in the civilization curve is the antecedent rise in the intelligence curve; (2) the cause of the leveling out and downturn of the intelligence curve is the rise in the civilization curve.

At the stage at which the less intelligent offspring dominate the birthrate, specialization and other chief attributes of civilization are not yet very far advanced. But since artifacts and organization are accumulating, civilization continues to expand, even while intelligence is declining through the adverse differences in survival ratios. The growth stops, however, when average intelligence falls below a minimum level.

Looking again at the diagram on page 119, we are now in a position to get a passing grade on the following exam:

Question: What causes the rise of civilization?

Answer: An earlier rise in problem-solving ability.

Question: What causes the problem-solving ability to level off?

Answer: The civilization, which now puts a strong emphasis on cooperation, protects people indiscriminately. Men no longer need brains and character to stay alive. The weeding out process has ceased. The broken line in the diagram flattens out— before the civilization curve moves significantly upward.

Question: What makes the broken line start to sink?

Answer: The birthrate for the mentally slow is higher than the birthrate for the mentally agile. Consequently, when the weeding out ceases, the offspring of the former become more numerous than the offspring of the latter. The result is a decrease in average intelligence.

Question: Why does the civilization curve continue to rise long after the intelligence curve starts to descend?

Answer: Civilization is an accumulation of ways and means of living. Although a smaller and smaller proportion of people are creative, their inventions and innovations add up to an impressive total and the social structure becomes increasingly rich and complex.

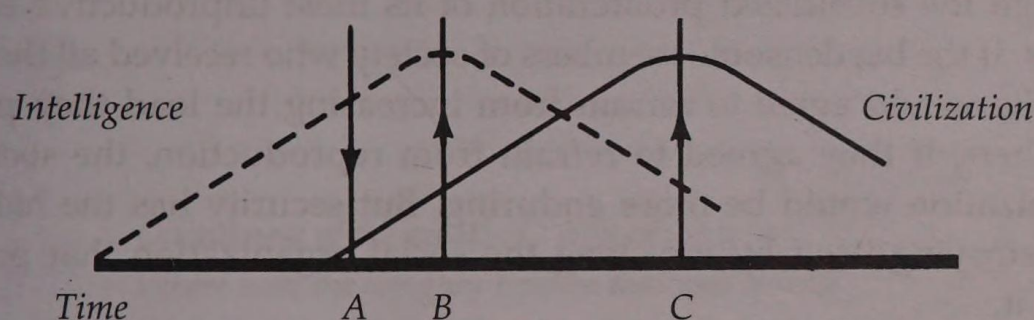

Question: Why is the importance of high intelligence to civilization generally overlooked?

Answer: The time lag between the decay of intelligence and the decay of the civilization obscures the total dependence of civilization on human creativity. The outward splendor manages for a time to hide the inner rot.

Let us imagine an observer stationed on the solid line, a little to the right of its intersection with the broken line of the intelligence curve. He would not be likely to foresee that the rising “world line” of his civilization would soon change its direction. Few men, no matter how intelligent, would know that the curve of average intelligence had already peaked some time in the past and was already sloping sharply down. Few would sense that the downturn in the broken line resulted from carrying out one of mankind's most honored moral commands — not only to love one's neighbor but to preserve his life, no matter how counterproductive his existence may be to the population as a whole.

To bring things into better focus we can divide the life span of a civilization into three stages:

An arrow shows the direction of major influence at the indicated stage.

At Stage A, the civilization curve begins because the intelligence curve has risen to a high enough level to make cooperative action successful.

At Stage B, civilization has reached the point where it just offsets the weeding out process. The problem makers still have a high deathrate, but their birthrate is also high, so their proportion of the population remains the same. At this stage civilization is beginning to exert a depressing influence on average intelligence by insuring a longer life for the unfit, thus ending the rise of the intelligence curve. As it proceeds to the right of B, the civilization becomes still more efficient, but average intelligence now decreases because the increased nrm rate of the unfit makes them an increasing proportion of the population.

At stage C, average intelligence, because of the birthrate differential, has declined to such a low level that the civilization begins to deteriorate.

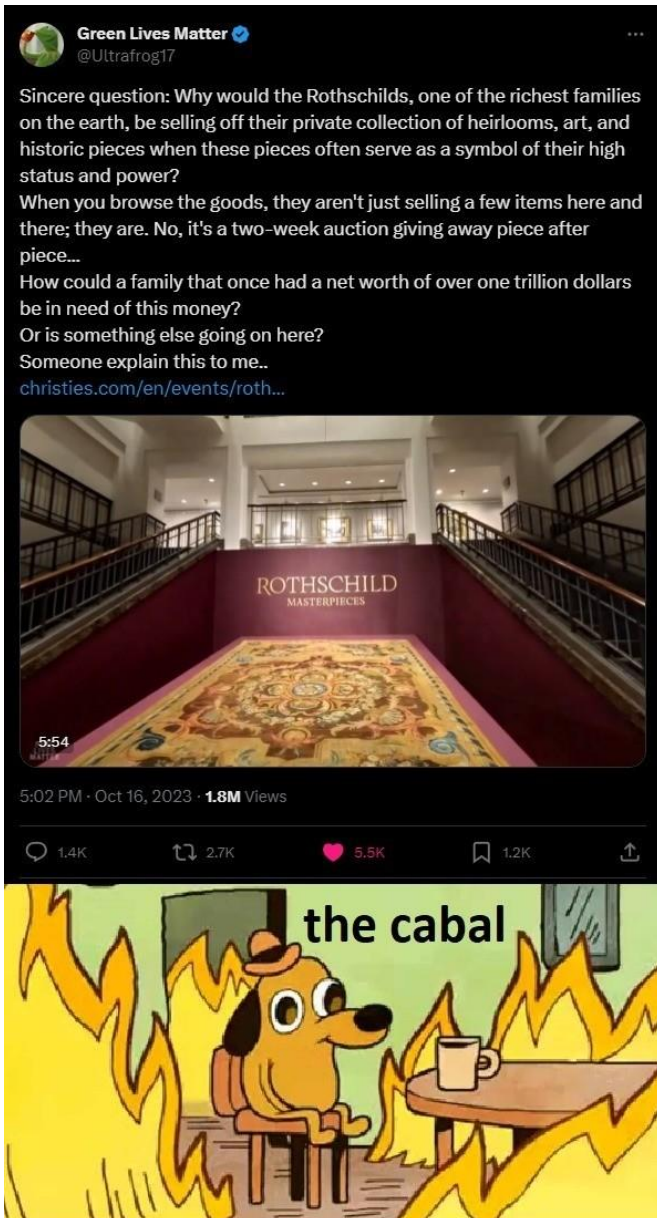

Although the point is hard to grasp, the benefits of a civilization go hand in hand with its decline, while at the same time being the causes of its decline. The collective activity which is the hallmark of civilization provides not just more and more goods and services but, particularly in Western civilization, an almost suffocating amount of security in the form of doles, grants, gifts, food, housing, clothing and health care. This cradle-to-grave security, needless to say, is not limited to those who can and do carry their part of the load. The weaklings, the ne'er-do-wells, the antisocial elements of the population share in and come to dominate the welfare programs. As a result, the social organization is weakened through the subsidized proliferation of its most unproductive elements. If the burdensome members of society who received all these benefits would agree to refrain from increasing the load they put on others, if they agreed to refrain from reproduction, the social organization would be more enduring. But security has the habit of destroying itself by wrecking the social organization that provides it.

Earnest A Hooton, the late Harvard anthropologist, wrote in The Twilight of Man:

Material prosperity encourages the preservation, pampering, and reproduction of the biologically inferior elements which are parasitical upon rich civilizations. Then some . . . culturally crude stock crashes in and wipes clean the slate . . . We can either prune off our own rotten branches or submit to a ruthless cutting down and thinning out by more vigorous conquering stocks.

All the negative influences listed in this and previous chapters have been operative in the civilizations of the past and in differing degrees have been the causes of their decline. It is our thesis that, if mental ability increased instead of declined as the problems of a civilization became more complex, the people would be able to control both the quantity and quality of their population, conserve their resources and prevent the complexity of the social order from getting out of hand. In short, if capable, intelligent people had the most offspring, society would solve its problems instead of merely wrangling about them.

In the mid-20th century, historian Arnold Toynbee, who had studied the varying fates of 28 societies, said: "Civilisations die from suicide, not from murder."

The next decade is going to be defined by incredibly rich people underestimating how fucking mad the rest of us are.

If this was the Roman Empire then we are in the phase where the Caesar is minting worthless coins with a paper thin layer of silver on the outside in order to fund a magnificent theater where people get locked in and forced to watch him perform on stage. Nobody wants to see any of this shit and everyone is bored or needs to shit and wants to leave but the audience is increasingly captive. BLM. CRT. Globohomo. It's in movies, games, schools; you can't get away from it and they are devaluing your money by printing more of their own "for free" to pay for this refuse. The "circuses" are no longer amusing and the bread is stale and less in quantity and much more expensive than it used to be.

He will be a total no one, who isn't actually a no one. He's going to be like right off stage but no one notices him, think of like an understudy in a play. Out of nowhere and unplanned he will take his place on the stage and command everyone's attention and the spotlight will immediately be on him. When he makes his move it will be unlike anything you have ever seen, but you will love the guy for what he does, because he breaks the chains of the world leaders and reveals this world for the cruel domain of suffering it truly is, and will lead the charge to change it.
All do this is total deception, because Satan made the world this way solely so his son can undo it and be worshipped by billions as their literal savior.
I have had this explained to me by true men of God, there will not be a single heart that is not tempted. Not mine, not yours, not theirs. The danger your soul is in is not fear of death for refusing to worship him and take his mark, it will be you wrestling with the fact YOU WILL WANT TO.

From Rags to Riches

A prophecy that came true in the past 15 years. This is the story of the Bedouins, the people who went from rags to skyscrapers in a single generation.

When the Prophet (ﷺ) was asked about the signs of the Final Hour, one of the signs he mentioned was "when you see barefoot, naked, destitute shepherds competing in constructing tall buildings." When asked to elaborate further, the Prophet (ﷺ) said that they are from the Arabs. [1]

For anybody who is familiar with the history of the Middle East, reading this prophecy brings a very specific group to mind. The Bedouins, or Bedu. The Bedouins were the nomads of the Arabs, living simple but volatile lives. It is already hard enough to get by in the harsh conditions of the deserts of Arabia, let alone when you lived like the Bedouins. Amazingly, they led such lives for almost all of history, even during the Golden Ages of the Islamic empires. We have recorded accounts from as early as the 1970s that show how volatile the Bedu lifestyle was.

For example, around the year 1945, Sir Wilfred Thesiger writes in the Arabian Sands:

"Their way of life naturally made them fatalists; so much was beyond their control. It was impossible for them to provide for a morrow when everything depended on a chance fall of rain or when raiders, sickness, or any one of a hundred chance happenings might at any time leave them destitute, or end their lives."

We also have a documentary from the 1970s on Abu Dhabi, UAE. The narrator comments that they have a "Biblical rhythm" to their lives, meaning they lived as people did 5000 years ago during Biblical times. Despite living in rags and herding animals to stay alive, the Bedouins were a major portion of the Arabian population. For example, the UAE was mostly inhabited by Bedouins just 40 years ago. [2] Now, it is littered with skyscrapers and houses the tallest building in the world.

A side by side of the Bedouins of the past and the UAE today.

"Only just over 40 years ago simple Bedouin villages existed where today's skyscrapers stand."

In the span of just 30 years, these Bedouin villages have become the home of the wealthiest people on Earth, who now live in skyscrapers. Competing with one another wasn't satisfying enough though, as the Bedouins have started competing with the entire world. Opened in 2009, the Burj Khalifa is now the tallest building on Earth.

To further push the point home that they were competing with one another and the world, another competition began soon after the Burj Khalifa was built. A Saudi family has announced that they would be building a skyscraper taller than the Burj Khalifa, and it is now in progress.

A question then comes to mind, why would the Prophet (ﷺ) prophesize such a thing?

If you were someone lying to the people to try and get a following, it would make no sense to make such an unbelievable prediction. You are predicting that the Bedouins, who barely survive every passing day, will somehow become so powerful that they can waste their time and resources competing in the building of tall buildings.

In "The Forbidden Prophecies", Abu Zakariah explains how odd such a prediction is:

"What would motivate Muhammed to even make such a prediction? If he was going to make up such a prophecy it would make more sense to relate this prophecy to the superpowers of his time: Rome, Persia, or even China who (unlike the Arabs) already had a tendency to construct extravagant buildings and palaces... [Instead,] Muhammad could have made a prediction such as "you will see the construction of tall buildings"."

On all accounts, such a specific and unintuitive prediction can only be made by someone very confident that it will come true.

For anybody who may argue that those competing were the descendants of the Bedouins and not the Bedouins themselves, look no further than "Rags to Riches: A Story of Abu Dhabi".

The book summary of Rags to Riches states:

"Born in 1948, in Abu Dhabi, the author knew dreadful poverty for years before fabulous oil wealth transformed his country forever. He grew up in the ruler's palace, barefoot like his playmates, now senior figures in the United Arab Emirates." "This is a vivid eye-witness account of the total transformation within only 30 years of a Bedouin society into a country with the world's highest per capita income."

As if it was not enough to see that skyscrapers now stand where Bedouin villages did just 40 years ago, we even have eye-witness accounts of this transformation happening in 30 years. This means that the exact same people who lived as Bedouins in the past are now living in skyscrapers.

It is already incredible enough that such a story is in our reality. It is not even the case that the Bedouins slowly became richer and richer over multiple generations. Rather, the Bedouins went from living volatile lives that could end at any moment, to living the lives of the wealthiest people on Earth, all in a single generation.

What is more incredible is how this was precisely prophesied 1400 years ago. The Prophet (ﷺ) stated that we would see the lowest in wealth, those who are thankful to survive a single day, compete in building tall buildings. He told us that we would see the Bedouins themselves take part in this competition, not even their descendants. For hundreds of years, people must have believed it to be impossible, and now look at our reality. We have seen the transformation of the most volatile and poor societies, the Bedu, into the wealthiest people on Earth, now competing in building skyscrapers. In a single generation.

"The most terrifying force of death, comes from the hands of Men who wanted to be left Alone. They try, so very hard, to mind their own business and provide for themselves and those they love.

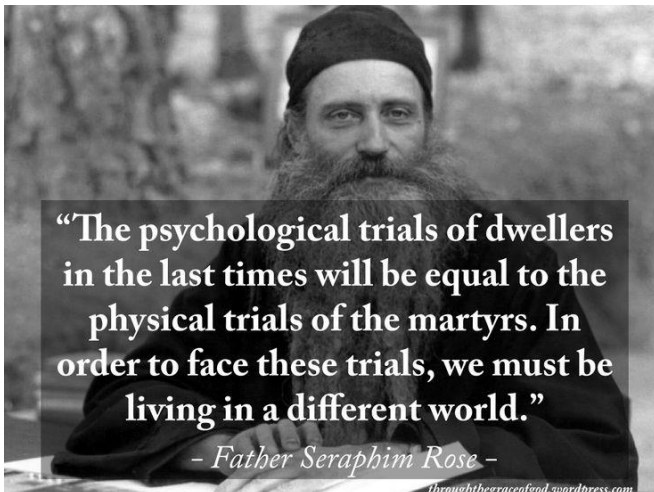

They resist every impulse to fight back, knowing the forced and permanent change of life that will come from it. They know, that the moment they fight back, their lives as they have lived them, are over. The moment the Men who wanted to be left alone are forced to fight back, it is a form of suicide. They are literally killing off who they used to be. Which is why, when forced to take up violence, these Men who wanted to be left alone, fight with unholy vengeance against those who murdered their former lives. They fight with raw hate, and a drive that cannot be fathomed by those who are merely play-acting at politics and terror. TRUE TERROR will arrive at these people's door, and they will cry, scream, and beg for mercy... but it will fall upon the deaf ears of the Men who just wanted to be left alone." - Author Unkown

SIGN OF THE END-TIMES

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said, "And if you see the barefoot, naked, shepherds of camels competing [for praise] in the construction of high-rise buildings, then this is from among the signs [of the Hour]."

'In Greek,' Theodore said, munching his sandwich methodically, 'the name for collared dove is dekaoctur - "eighteener," you know. The story goes that when Christ was ... um ... carrying the cross to Calvary, a Roman soldier, seeing that He was exhausted, took pity on Him. By the side of the road there was an old woman selling ... um ... you know ... milk, and so the Roman soldier went to her and asked her how much a cupful would cost. She replied that it would cost eighteen coins. But the soldier had only seventeen. He ... er ... you know ... pleaded with the woman to let him have a cupful of milk for Christ for seventeen coins, but the woman avariciously held out for eighteen. So, when Christ was crucified, the old woman was turned into a turtle dove and condemned to go about for the rest of her days repeating dekaocto, dekaocto - "eighteen, eighteen." If ever she agrees to say deka-epta, seventeen, she will regain her human form. If, out of obstinacy, she says deka-ennaea, nineteen, the world will come to an end.'

What About Jesus?

Isaiah 2:2-4 New International Version (NIV)

²In the last days

the mountain of the LORD's temple will be established as the highest of the mountains;
 it will be exalted above the hills, and all nations will stream to it.

³Many peoples will come and say,

"Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the temple of the God of Jacob.
 He will teach us his ways,
 so that we may walk in his paths."

The law will go out from Zion, the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

⁴He will judge between the nations and will settle disputes for many peoples.
 They will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks.
 Nation will not take up sword against nation, nor will they train for war anymore.

Tikkun Olam

Why we were born into a broken world and what we are to do about it.

Tikkun Olam is a profound Jewish concept, the place where mysticism meets activism.

Where the messianic aim remained only peripheral in the linear scheme of Cordovero, the more comprehensive theoretical scheme and meditative practices of Luria explained messianism as its central dynamic, incorporating the full diversity of previous Kabbalistic concepts as outcomes of its processes. Luria conceptualises Hasidic and Mitnagdic movements diverged over implications of Lurianic Kabbalah, and its social role in popular mysticism. The Sabbatean mystical tradition would also derive its source from Lurianic messianism, but had a different understanding of the Kabbalistic interdependence of mysticism with Halakha Jewish observance.

Lurianic Kabbalah has been accused by some of being the cause of the spread of the Sabbatean Messiahs Shabbetai Tzvi (1626–1676) and Jacob Frank (1726–1791), and their Kabbalistically based heresies. The 16th century mystical

Rabbi Luria's ideas enjoy wide recognition among Jews today. Orthodox as well as Reform, Reconstructionist and members of other Jewish groups frequently acknowledge a moral obligation to "repair the world" (tikkun olam). This idea draws upon Luria's teaching that shards of divinity remain contained in flawed material creation and that ritual and ethical deeds by the righteous help to release this energy. The mystical theology of the Ari does not exercise the same level of Where Isaac Luria's scheme emphasised the democratic role of every person in redeeming the fallen sparks of holiness, allocating the Messiah only a conclusive arrival in the process, Shabbetai's prophet Nathan of Gaza interpreted his messianic role as pivotal in reclaiming those sparks lost in impurity. Now faith in his messianic role, after he apostatised to Islam, became necessary, as well as faith in his antinomian actions. Jacob Frank claimed to be a reincarnation of Shabbetai Tzvi, sent to reclaim sparks through the most anarchist actions of his followers, claiming the breaking of the Torah in his emerged messianic era was now its fulfilment, the opposite of the messianic necessity of Halakhic devotion by Luria and the Kabbalists. Instead, for the elite 16th century Kabbalists of Safed after the Expulsion from Spain, they sensed a personal national responsibility, expressed through their mystical renaissance, ascetic strictures, devoted brotherhood, and close adherence to normative Jewish practice.

yesterday, a yid kvetched once more at me using that word so it gave me the idea of also calling it "tikkun olam" (that which it is), which I guess will anger them even more basically, the spiritual goal of jews (the tikkun olam, literally repairing the world) is to mix everything back into their god (moloch/saturn /satan/etc), because they believe he broke a part of himself to create the world, and fusing it all back is the only way to make moloch whole again hence why the kid raping (mixing good and evil, innocence and guilt), the troons and fags (mixing man and woman), the rapefugees and co (mixing races), etc

I'm gonna write it like that, now:

>globohomo (tikkun olamism)

for it's not only a material abomination: it first and foremost is a spiritual abomination (that Shinji destroys in the End of Evangelion, by refusing to fuse everyone together, destroying the plan of the seele long noses, btw: jews must hate that work of art)

Recruiters have run out of propaganda techniques that will convince people to die for the state. Modern warfare is the gayest, bleakest, most cucked thing ever, and thanks to how much the Russo-Ukraine brother war has exposed this on social media to all combat-aged males, state militaries will never meet their staff targets again. Recruiters trying to convince themselves that video games are the reason why is proof they aren't even willing to accept the reality. You will only fail.

Reasons people used to fight

- >nations used to be culturally/ethnically unique and were therefore of utmost importance
- >a man could expect, in return for his labor or service, a home with wife and kids
- >nobles and royalty, who took pride in their estate, took to battles with the peasantry in order to give their rule legitimacy
- >you were not in constant danger of being killed by mines/missiles/drones/artillery/sni pers/bombs at all times, and could relax if the enemy was over 300 yards from you
- >due to the nature of pre-industrial life, conflict was often actually necessary, and was often against some truly alien culture you couldn't understand
- >it was expected that you got to keep the spoils of war, which is more enticing than a paycheck alone
- >there were sometimes tax exemptions involved with making yourself available for conflict

All of this is gone. All the wars are fake and gay. The "leaders" are all old worthless fractally corrupt fucks who rape kids while young men die. Only the government can take spoils, and none of what they collect will benefit the general populace. Wars are fought on the other side of the planet while invasions take place at your own borders. You are expected to accept verbal abuse from women and fags. Your wife will leave you to fuck other men and you will be neglected by the state you served, which wants nothing more than to turn your nation into a economic zone/social experiment/refugee camp/humiliation ritual for jews.

- A major war between the Muslims led by the Leader Al-Mahdi, and the Jews plus other non-Muslims led by the Antichrist

If he said it in person, he'd get shut down immediately. If he had the note without everywhere before decryption. This old ass nigga was playing 5d chess refresh my memory and apparently this nigga was the most revered rabbi in Israel, some people think he did miracles der he wanted to reveal it after his death lmao they would have just killed him and burned the note note actually got out there to everyone and he wasn't silently thrown into a grave with his revelation. He claims to have it encryption, it'd get memoryholed. Putting a year padding ensures that the media will immediately post the note

Punishing somehow seems unfair to it, and it is certain that imagining "punishment" and "being supposed to punish" hurts it, arouses fear in it. "Is it not enough to render him undangerous? Why still punish? Punishing itself is terrible." With this question, herd morality, the morality of timidity, draws its ultimate consequence."

The west is a potemkin civilisation. A cargo cult strawman facsimile of a functioning society. Everything is a denatured, inferior fake and gay counterfeit of what it's supposed to be, if not an outright reversal of it. From medicine and technology to government, economic activity, statistics, to some of the women (who are actually trannies who don't pass). Everything. Every single aspect is a fake and gay inflatable or straw mockup.

They pretend GDP is economic activity, it's not.

They pretend men with mutilated balls and penises are women, they're not and don't pass as women either.

They pretend fiat money is wealth, it's not.

It's more like young men are getting red pill'd about life, women, and niggers at earlier and earlier ages. This red pill used to take a lifetime to understand but now young teenagers are taking it. Some are black pill'd as teenagers when in decades past you'd have to be in your 40's or 60's to get to that point. With rampant immigration, niggers, and women all being forced as your equals now they have surpassed you as your superiors because your natural inferiority is hedged by government so they can compete with you as "equals". It all sucks man, modern men have been betrayed by their elders and society and both still expect us to just carry on and participate as if nothing is fucked here. Everything is fucked now and men should boycott society until it fails.

I have a bot running 24/7 buying and selling for 0 target profit just to waste IRS manpower and money.

I print and send the IRS all the documentation about my trades in paper form to stop them from automatizing the process with a computer program.

I mix blank pages, double print, ghost print or mark/write in them just in case they have a way to scan and use some sort of recognition software. That way they have to look at thousands upon thousands of pages one by one and look and random scribbles and drawn dicks while doing their job.

It's a whole pallet of papers with trades so I hire a guy to forklift that shit and send it just in the offchance that having to deal with a pallet is troublesome for them.

All the documents are numbered but I pack everything ""completely out of order"" (as in the lower numbers always happen to be at the bottom of the pallet) in case the order of the trades is important. If order is important they now have to deal lift boxes and have them laying around before they can even start checking the numbers.

My normal trades are also in those pages so they can't just ignore everything.

This costs me thousands of dollars every year. I make sure to send the invoices of how much all the processes cost me on top of the pallet so that whoever is in charge of it knows I'm wasting the equivalent of two months of his waging in asinine shit on top of his or her time.

Call Me a Snitch But It Felt Good

Scrolling through Zillow, I noticed a home that was sold in May 2023 and listed for sale in July 2023. Well, I looked up the property owner history and it's an LLC that bought it and flipped it in May and guess what else I found out? The property is listed as Principal Residence Exemption (It might be called something else in your state) at 100%. In the Zillow listing, the home is clearly NOT occupied by the owner. So I contacted my Assessors/Treasury office and let them know that I take property taxes very seriously. Especially since I have kids in the school district and that they should check it out. I provided them all my screenshots too to help them out. It felt good snitching on this flipper, especially since they are lying and stealing from my community.

I've started destroying food while shopping to take my anger out. For example, I will casually look at a loaf of bread while shopping and then place it back while simultaneously crushing it. I know it's autistic but I don't really give a shit at this point. My goal when I go shopping is to fully eliminate the entire profit margin for my trip.

Cars

If you are in one, drive away if possible! If you are being blocked by niggers in the road then run them over. Duck low to provide frontal protection from uncoming gunfire with the engine block.

Cover

If you can't escape then get out and take cover. Don't hug the vehicle, keep some distance so you don't get hit by ricochets. Doors and windshields offer little protection.

The engine block is the safest spot behind a car. It stops all small arms fire.

If you are taking gunfire, hide behind wheel wells. Lie down and align yourself with them, feet first if possible.

Ricochets

On the other hand, ricochets can be your friend.

Shoot in this direction and bullets will skip to the other side and hit their legs if they are close, or higher if they are far enough away.

Careful, bullets bounce off of roofs so don't peek above them. If Curious George makes that mistake then skip a few across like stones on a pond and give him a free high-top fade.

Night-time

It's important to identify your target before shooting because it could be a white person or Thomas Sowell. For this reason always carry a bright flashlight on you. Ideally you don't have to cycle through modes, just HIGH and OFF.

Identify

If it's most likely a nigger, shine it right in their eyes. Otherwise aim for the knees if outdoors, or ceiling if indoors so you can use the light splash to identify the person without blinding them and pissing them off.

Illuminate + Move

Shine the light to identify the threat and their location. Check their hands to see what if anything they are holding! Then since you've just given away your position, turn the light off and move. Now you know where Tyrone is, but he doesn't know where you are.

Drawing

If you have to shoot from within the car, just lean forward and unholster. You will probably sweep your leg unless you move to the side as you unholster so be careful. Practice drawing + aiming in all directions with an unloaded pistol in private because it's an awkward movement.

Windshield angle

Bullets follow the direction of the windshield, so if you shoot out of a front windshield it will go up. If you shoot into one, it will go down.

Drive-by

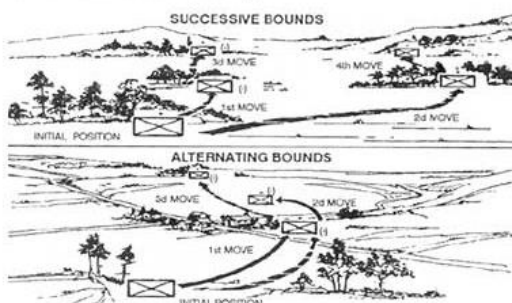

Pure nigger-tech. You won't hit shit while driving so don't even bother trying.

Leapfrogging or "bounding"

This one is pretty simple, but it requires friends and communication.

Split your group into a couple fire teams. Team (A) advances forward to a position of cover while team (B) watches over and if necessary suppresses the enemy with fire in order to keep the enemy's heads down so they can't fire upon your team (A) who is vulnerable while moving. Just take turns doing this until you are able to reach or flank the enemy.

Technique

Hold the pistol in one hand, and the light in the other hand securely by your chest. If you have a lanyard you can let it hang after you illuminate and move to a two-handed grip to facilitate dumping a mag into Labron. If you have night sights just float the glowing front dot over their silhouette and make it happen.

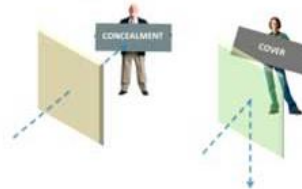

Close Quarters

Most gunfights happen at close range. Blade yourself and put an elbow or hand in front of you to create distance while drawing into a retention position like pic related. Don't shoot yourself. It will be loud, blinding, and smell like gunpowder.

Cover

If you aren't shooting, you should be behind cover or running to cover. Cover is something that stops bullets.

Slicing the pie

Slice the pie. Keep a distance from your cover while taking small steps and peering around. Practice doing this in your home with an empty gun or not gun at all. If you can, wait for them to come to you since it's a lot safer and nigs can't into tactics.

FAIL! F-

PASS! A+

Communication

Since bluegums rove in troops, balance the odds to your favor by working with your friend or waifu. When you are going to move yell "moving!". Wait for them to respond with something like "ready", "OK", or "move!" then haul ass to where you want to be. When you are close to a friend slap them on the shoulder so they know where you are. Undercommunication kills!

The Modern Philosophy of Accelerationism

Modern industrialized society is on a path to self-destruction. Through the futile effort to force an unnatural social order on 'The West', the governments of America and her allies have robbed their future generations of the quality of life which was available not a hundred years ago. With Hollywood, Television News, and Social Media constantly imprinting this motif into their minds: that the future is dystopian, you will have less rights, and you will obey authority under threat of force; people are being subconsciously groomed into taking this scenario for granted as it is set up right underneath their noses.

Macroeconomic equilibrium which could effectively eliminate poverty is purposefully not sought by the powers that be in America or any other western nation. One need only look to the falling value of the U.S. Dollar since 1913; and to the constant exporting of American jobs and opportunities to see that the mighty capitalist empire of the "greatest country on earth" has been gutted from the inside out. The American economic system has been a carefully crafted time-bomb from the start which has already robbed future generations of the ability to do things like own a house, own a car, and send their kids to college all on one income. In reality in 2024, private banks own virtually all assets through loans bearing interest. This practice (known as usury and thought by many to be unethical) has turned American production into a game of speculation, where a loss becomes a burden on the taxpayer, and a win becomes a megayacht in the tax-free Cayman Islands.

Everyone knows that these bankers are "too big to fail". Everyone knows that no matter how many raises they get, it will always take them 30 years to pay off a house and 5 to pay off a car. In 2024 50-year mortgages and 7-year auto loans are no longer uncommon for more high-end homes or vehicles. Everyone knows "times are tough"; but not everyone knows that the buying power of the dollar is 3% of what it was when the Federal Reserve was founded. Not everyone knows that the Federal Reserve is not even a part of the federal government but rather a for-profit, private institution; enriching itself off the backs of working men and women.

Only those who have researched this topic at length know the truth: that this institution is part of a centuries-old structure of banks which gain their power and wealth by lending money to governments at interest and then collecting their profits off the top of the nation's product. These banks have worked in unison to start wars and depressions in countries which don't cooperate with them. Over multiple generations, a class of individuals has emerged who make their money by speculating on the values of things others have built instead of producing anything themselves. These people are a parasitic, unnatural plague on western nations whom should be eradicated in a practical and emotionally- detached manner. The problem is readily apparent to anyone with a set of eyes and a proclivity for truth. The solutions are harder to paint an exact picture of.

Revolutions such as those fought in France and America in the 18th century are presented in movies as an open struggle between the nice, orderly civilians who just want to be left alone and the boogeyman himself. This particular motif manifests itself in every artistic reenactment of historical colonial revolutions as well as fictional films. In 'The Patriot', the colonial militias face off with the cold, dead-eyed 'lobster-backs' and their particularly ruthless cavalry troops. In 'Lord of the Rings', the young hobbits from the green, happy Shire leave their pot-smoking and dancing behind to confront the manifestation of evil, the All-Seeing-Eye of Sauron and his gruesome orc army. In 'Star Wars' the farm-boy and the princess defeat the Galactic Empire that seems to only exist for the purpose of squashing rebellion and blowing planets up.

The commonality is that in every film depicting revolution against authority, the situation is this: In a revolution, everyone knows who the good guys and bad guys are, the bad guys make themselves easily identifiable, and the general public knows when they see good guys acting against bad guys.

This could not be farther from the case, historically. Every government that has ever been in power on Earth has used every available means to secure that power. In the information age, this has manifested most commonly in the form of disinformation. While history books tell us about the atrocious tyranny of King George, the likely consensus at the time was not that America could have won an armed conflict against the mightiest empire in the world. Most civilians would not have wanted to get involved in any kind of illegal, guerrilla activity such as the Sons of Liberty did during the Boston Tea Party. In reality, the fear of being arrested, jailed, hanged, or just murdered by musket fire in the streets was enough to deter the vast majority of Americans from participating in the revolution until they had a full-scale war on their doorstep.

This situation is the same today: that while being knowingly being abused by a government, people will not only accept the treatment voluntarily but will also accept the labeling of their revolutionary-minded compatriots as terrorists, criminals, anarchists, psychopaths, lunatics, etc. The style of disinformation-campaign that designates political dissidents as extremists or threats to the entire nation is a characteristic trait of every tyrannical power structure since the beginning of time.

The Sons of Liberty were terrorists. The Cubans that rebelled against Castro were terrorists. The Russian Christians who met a gruesome demise at the hands of Bolshevism were terrorists. The I.R.A. were terrorists. The Freikorps were terrorists during the Marxist occupation of Germany. Every single organization that takes a rightful stand for its citizenry to have the natural right to self-determination in their own ancestral homeland is labeled a terrorist organization by governments who try to oppress and eradicate them. In the 2020s, the US Government has labeled White people, Christians, and Nationalists as terrorists. If this describes you, welcome to the right side of history.

We have discussed that the general impression of the technological future which can be gathered from American film and TV is a depressing one to say the least. Without expounding too much on ideas such as mass consciousness, we will only state that there is a real, tangible utility in being able to change what huge numbers of people expect will happen to them and the world. There is even greater utility in convincing the masses that revolution against authority is only necessary when Darth Vader himself steps out of the shadows. The average person who gathers his world-view from movies and TV believes that he would recognize the signs of a government gone mad with power and would sympathize with a modern-day Jedi on a lone quest to fight the darkness.

It is said that the way to boil a frog is not to drop him into a pot of boiling water as he will jump out; but rather to place him in a pot of warm water and slowly dial the heat up until he cooks to death, not realizing the water has changed temperature at all. This is what has happened to White Civilization. The threat has not come in the form of storm troopers but in a gradual undermining of our nations' abilities to defend our borders, build infrastructure, educate our young, enforce laws, manufacture our own goods, and defend the culture, values, and ideals that built the greatest civilizations man has known. It is already here, and it is importing military aged males by the millions from foreign lands while doing everything to suppress White birth rates. It revels in the fact that most White people are too distracted by pro sports, trying to make ends meet against inflation, or wallowing in some form of addictive struggle with a substance imported into the country by our intelligence agencies.

To put it plain and simple, the foreign-controlled governments of White nations are attempting to exterminate White people. 95% of White people will never realize what is going on until the time to act has passed, and the mathematical chance of survival has diminished to zero. As long as Whites have tolerable living arrangements in their communities, a job, beer, and football every Sunday, they will continue to have a false sense of security which makes the situation not seem so severe. Who could blame them? The reality is that common sense and history books are less exciting than football. White Genocide is a threat but less of an immediate one than the bank taking your house if you don't pay that mortgage next month.

The clock is ticking on this most critical of issues. That being said, the best time for action is sooner rather than later, while the numbers and demographic balance of our nations allows for it. The enemy only becomes stronger with time and we only become weaker with time. Voting will not work. Asking nicely will not work. There are no political solutions left. The inevitable long-term conclusion of the events currently taking place is extinction and eventual erasure from history of 'Whiteness'. The only way that comfortable, complacent, middle-class Americans will ever realize what the System has taken from them, is if the System is deprived of its ability to provide the distractions and security that it currently is.

This is not such a radical philosophy. How much longer would people tolerate traffic stops if the criminals ran absolutely rampant through their neighborhoods every night? Would they trust or respect police if videos of officers getting ambushed and overpowered started going viral on social media? How much longer would people tolerate property taxes and high utility bills if the utilities were constantly shutting off? Or if the roads and bridges were impassible? Agitation of the masses is directly proportional to what we'll call 'revolutionary social conditions'. This is the duty of the Accelerationist.

Everyone knows things will come to an end for the degenerate west. It is not a matter of IF but WHEN. The WHEN is crucially important as the survival of the White Race into the future depends on this 7% of the world's population realizing what has happened and what will happen if action is not promptly taken to secure the existence of our people. It is time to take the band-aid off. We don't need the NFL. We don't need reality TV. We don't need multiculturalism. We don't need safe spaces for everyone who isn't White to cope with our existence in our homeland. We don't need homosexual acceptance or glorification. We don't need any of these things which have made the White Man a soft remnant of what he once was. What we do need is to create a future for White Children.

The Accelerationist is the band-aid remover. By deliberately causing destruction and chaos he shines a glaring light on the government's inability to protect its citizens and property. Better we realize it now than 5 years down the road at the hands of millions of migrant invaders. It is also a plus that the knee-jerk reactions by the governments often come in the form of overtly racist attacks against White people. Thus, the cycle actually creates more individuals who have ideologically broken away from the two-party-system and mainstream accepted thought. The name of the game is: Agitate, Educate, Organize. The Accelerationist must do all three of these simultaneously to build an effective resistance front. If done properly however, he will have created dedicated fighters whose personal life experiences have driven them to a cause for which they will enthusiastically give their lives.

Man ordered to tell police if he plans to have sex

© 22 January 2016 | York & North Yorkshire

A man cleared of raping a woman has been ordered to give police 24 hours' notice before he has sex.

Homeless ex-soldier died as he slept on Edinburgh stree...

Asylum seekers: Adam, right, and Muhammad relax at the three-star Best Western Park Hall hotel in Lancashire

The man, in his 40s, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was acquitted in 2015 at a retrial after claiming the alleged victim had consented.

An interim sexual risk order, initially imposed in December, has been extended for four months by magistrates in York.

It requires the man disclose any planned sexual activity to the police or face up to five years in prison.

The order - which was drawn up by magistrates in Northallerton, North Yorkshire, and extended in York - reads: "You must disclose the details of any female including her name, address and date of birth.

"You must do this at least 24 hours prior to any sexual activity taking place."

It also contains restrictions on his use of the internet and mobile phone devices and requires him to inform officers of any change of address.

A further court hearing in May will decide whether the interim order should be made into a full order, which has a minimum duration of two years and can last indefinitely.

Sexual risk orders were introduced in England and Wales in March last year and can be applied to any individual who the police believe poses a risk of sexual harm, even if they have never been convicted of a crime.

They are civil orders imposed by magistrates at the request of police.

Russia offers safe haven for people trying to escape Western liberal ideals

Under the document, such foreign nationals will have the right to apply for temporary residence in Russia "outside the quota approved by the Russian government and without providing documents confirming their knowledge of the Russian language, Russian history and basic laws"

MOSCOW, August 19. /TASS/. Moscow will provide assistance to any foreigners who want to escape the neoliberal ideals being put forward in their countries and move to Russia, where traditional values reign supreme, according to a decree signed by President Vladimir Putin.

Under the document, such foreign nationals will have the right to apply for temporary residence in Russia "outside the quota approved by the Russian government and without providing documents confirming their knowledge of the Russian language, Russian history and basic laws."

Applications may be based on the rejection of their countries' policies "aimed at imposing destructive neoliberal ideals on people, which run counter to traditional Russian spiritual and moral values."

The values are listed in the foundations of Russia's state policy in this field, while the Russian government is expected to compile a list of countries imposing unhealthy attitudes on their citizens. The Foreign Ministry has been instructed to start issuing three-month visas to such applicants as early as in September.

In February, Putin supported the idea of Italian student Irene Cecchini that Russia should ease entry rules for those who share traditional cultural and family values. The head of state agreed that each case requires an individual approach.

In his writings of 1990–91, Khanin is deeply pessimistic as to the possibilities of finding a way out of the crisis, but the reasons for his pessimism do not flow directly from economic analysis. Rather he believes that the Soviet Union has suffered a deep-seated degradation of its population as a result of 70 years' dictatorship and repression. Soviet history began with three demographic crises—the civil war and famine of the early 1920s; then collectivisation, renewed famine, and purges in the 1930s; and World War II. Each of these carried off a proportion of Soviet society's most educated, energetic, creative citizens—farmers, workers, scientists, intellectuals. In the postwar years this social stratum was no longer threatened by violent death, but was held back by principles of 'negative selection', which persisted into the most recent past. Mediocrity was rewarded, and social ideals were undermined. Results included systematic neglect of the health and physical environment of the population, reaching crisis proportions in the present day.⁴⁷ it doesn't work quite like that

They have TRIED to kill these and create Homo Sovieticus, yes.

But guess what - the second economy existed in the USSR since its foundation and right until its demise in 1991. People were constantly trying to improve their lives - some just to survive, some because they didn't want to live like a typical Soviet workdrone. They exiled academics - and yet Soviet science was still capable enough to keep up with the combined scientific might of the entire Western world for almost half a century (at least in key areas related to the MIC). They have tried to kill religions (both Orthodox Christianity and Islam) and yet Stalin was forced to open churches during WW2. And in later years Christianity and Islam experienced a renaissance in the USSR, because it was considered sort of a form of protest against the state and the party that pushed atheism.

>People here are all liars and cowards. Not one brave person can be born from a broken race of sniveling peasant farm serfs

That's because they have a choice to just move to Western Europe, which is easier thanks to the EU laws. Naturally, most people chose the easy way out. If the borders were closed they would fight, just like in 1991.

As I have been saying, 'Tommy Robinson' is a Zionist asset.

Here he is admitting that the cause of the 'anger' of his thugs is Palestine.

'Why are people angry? I'll tell you why they're angry - Cos' Hamas were allowed to overtake London. Over take our capital city. Every week flying ISIS flags, Hamas flags. Calling for Jihad. The police did nothing. Nothing. Instead they arrested me. They banned me for six months. They infringed, they totally abused the law and they lied in court and they got found out.'

'... peaceful revolution is brewing in Great Britain. A peaceful revolution.

'...Your actions in the last week three weeks or since October 7th, you've created thousands of Tommy Robinsons'

When will the police turn their attention to who is orchestrating and financing these attacks on British society?

UK is in CIVIL WAR after riots inspired by MOSSAD and UK Security Service Agent Stephen Christopher Yaxley-Lennon..

Lennon has long worked with the MOSSAD run Rebel News outlet.

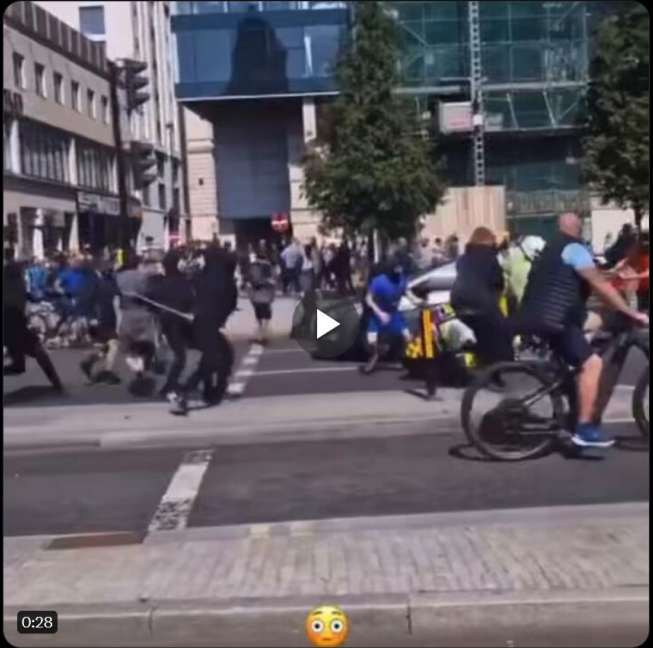

He is also known for being mentored by Peter Keeley, who operated as a mole in the IRA for the UK security services under the name Kevin Fulton.

These anti-Muslim riots are perfectly timed with the inevitable Israeli war in the Middle East which will require global hatred of Muslims to ensure public support.

UK Prime Minister Keir Starmer has already promised he will install more surveillance and facial recognition cameras due to the civil war.

Lennon will be arrested again and push for hundreds of thousands of dollars to be fundraised, then charges will be dropped.

What's causing the Islamophobic riots across the UK, and why now?

1. The riots have been instigated by the Zionist asset Stephen Yaxley-Lennon ('Tommy Robinson'), who has been working for the State of Israel since 2009 as part of the so-called 'counterjihad' Islamophobia movement established by that state. When his organisation, the English Defence League, was incorporated in 2011, two years after its inception, it was named the English & Jewish Defence League. The Jewish Defence League, a Zionist terrorist organisation, has been a key part of violent Islamophobic street thuggery in the UK over the past decade.

2. Yaxley-Lennon is one of the most high-profile actors in the State of Israel's Online Influencers Programme in response to Operation Al-Aqsa Storm. He and others, like Oli London, Noa Tishby, Hen Mazzig, Arsen Ostrovsky and Emily Schrader (and many others) are paid to distribute Zionist propaganda, of which pushing back against pro-Palestine protests and sowing Islamophobia are two important and interlinked aims.

3. The recent Islamophobic riots in the UK should be seen as the latest phase of the State of Israel's war on British Muslims, who it sees as originating the protest movement in the UK. These riots are designed to punish Muslims for their anti-Zionist sentiment after various other methods to suppress opposition to Zionism by the State of Israel have been thwarted. The State of Israel's attempts to use its assets and operatives in the British political and media class — such as Suella Braverman and Michael Gove — to thwart pro-Palestinian protests have failed. Zionist counter-protests have failed to mobilise significant numbers. Sporadic Zionist thuggery and the use of other assets — such as Iranian secularist extremists — have also failed to intimidate Muslims. So now the State of Israel is weaponising its cannon fodder on the white nationalist far-right, who have greater numbers than either Zionist street thugs or Iranian monarchists and secularist extremists.

4. Finally, there are also questions about which actor authored the idea that Muslims were responsible for the ostensible triggers for these events. MI6 and its assets (eg Paul Mason) are desperately trying to pretend this was a Russian disinfo op. But the original stories did not come from Russia. Where did they come from?

Over a million workers went permanently on the sick (it's very easy to do here) during COVID in the UK because they realised that they were just replaceable slaves and that the government viewed them as cattle it could stick gene therapy into whenever it wanted. Additionally around a million older knowledge workers took early retirement, again to avoid the vaxsneed.

The UK is literally finished. It's done. We cannot recover from the loss of 2 million able bodied workers, but for good reason they refuse to come back. It's irreconcilable, so we're finished. The government and institutions totally discredited themselves, no one trusts their word any more, so the only thing left to do is either scam the system or take early retirement or move abroad

Taylor Swift has donated enough money to cover the food bills for an entire year across 11 food banks and 8 community pantries in Liverpool.

She has done this for every city she's toured in the UK meaning she's done more than the govt has in 14 years to eradicate food poverty.

BREAKING

African immigrant stabbed British police officer in Gateshead, UK.

Our computer has been projecting that the British pound will collapse and penetrate the 1985 low as we move into the years ahead. This is a chart of the pound just since 1904. Britain's glory days are gone. This year, 2024, was a double-directional change, signaling Britain's decline and fall in the years ahead. This is more than just Harry turning his back on Britain. At the London Conference, we even put forth the forecast for the potential fall of the British House of Windsor, which was founded on July 17th, 1917.

The UK police are now threatening not only British citizens with arrest for posting things they don't like on social media. Still, they are now even threatening to extradite people from other countries who dare to challenge their tyrannical regime, which is obviously in fear of losing power. They have no INTERNATIONAL jurisdiction to impose their laws on the rest of the world.

Britain is in dire straits. All we hear about is the US debt, but things are far worse in Britain than in the USA. Britain has some £2.6 trillion in "unfunded" public sector pension entitlements, and it keeps hiring more and more government workers. Additionally, Britain is legally mandated to hit a net zero target, which the government has already estimated will add at least another £300 billion to the government's costs over three decades. When you look around, Wales has 28% of its population on public subsistence. Yet all of this is just the surface.

The new Labour government in Britain intends to go after non-doms, and they will leave Britain and take their spending with them, adding to the necessary pressure. Letting in unqualified migrants and forcing wealthy non-doms to leave is only going to result in rising taxes in Britain and long-term civil unrest. However, the real crisis will be the burden of taxation that is consuming economic growth. The Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) has pointed out that the tax burden in Britain will rise to 37.7% of GDP by 2027-28, up from 33% in 2020. This will only further reduce the long-term economic growth of Britain.

Looking at the tax burden as a percent of GDP, the United States was at 27% in 2020, and Canada at 32%. In 2020, Germany stood at 37%, with the highest in the world being France at 46.2%. Civil unrest begins to rise when you actually cross 31%, and revolution tends to unfold after 50%. Governments never learn from the past. Virtually every revolution in history is because of taxation – NO TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION – sounds familiar?

Canada Proposes $25K Departure Penalty and Increased Taxes to Curb Emigration Crisis

In a bid to address a growing emigration crisis, the Canadian government, under Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, is reportedly discussing significant measures to deter citizens from leaving the country. According to insider sources, the proposed strategy includes a $25,000 departure penalty along with a doubling of the existing departure tax for those seeking to relocate abroad. This approach aims to stem the tide of Canadians moving overseas amidst ongoing national crises in housing, inflation, affordability, education, productivity, and climate. The discussions are still confidential, with details yet to be publicly confirmed, as the government explores options to maintain its population and stabilize the country's situation.

Alright, fine, you guys win.

I fought against your xenophobic subreddit for a long time, but I've finally started to see the truth as to what the fuck is going on in my country.

I live in a larger city in Canada and I've really noticed it too: indians. All you see are indians, everywhere. And they're awful.

And it never used to be a big deal. I grew up here, multiculturalism is our thing. I liked being surrounded by different ethnic backgrounds and races with diverse viewpoints.

The thing is, we all lived here from different backgrounds but we followed the same social contract.

Now? It's gone. It's all indians, everywhere. And they're loud, aggressive, untrustworthy, and taking over. They used to assimilate, but now there's so many of them that they don't have to anymore. They can just come here and do whatever the fuck they want.

The other day I was on the sidewalk and 6 indian men not speaking english blew past me and my girlfriend on scooters full blast. Not even a bell, just blew past us and almost hit us. I saw them almost hit several people ahead.

When we go out, all the clubs are indian men, never women, and they make my girlfriend and others feel unsafe with their leering or never taking no for an answer.

They never line up for the bus, they always just push past you.

I see indian-only posts on craigslist for housing now, refusing white applicants.

I go to Tim Hortons, and it's all indians.

When I go to tourist spots, it's all indians, pushing and shoving, blasting their music, being incredibly disrespectful.

Now what? What do we do? I don't want to lose Canadian culture. I want us to continue to be diverse, but when one group is over represented you get this, and it's not great. I really don't even feel safe in my community anymore and I miss when we were all making up an equal portion of the pie.

[Japan in 2024]

It's the year 2024 in Japan, and people are so outbid even for orange juice that they have resorted to desperately making "orange-tangerine mixed juice."

Women are traveling abroad to prostitute themselves so much that they are being refused entry into the United States, and even to the point where they are going to South Korea, which was far poorer even just a short time ago, to work as prostitutes.

What was once a major trading and exporting nation has long since rested on its laurels, and now with a trade deficit of trillions of yen and nothing to export, it is desperately bowing down to people not only from Europe and the United States, but also from Southeast Asia, India, and even countries whose names we have yet to discover in the tourism industry in order to earn foreign currency. Even though it is a country with extremely low wages, it provides subsidies of hundreds of billions of yen to foreign companies to build factories in the country, and yet young people still go abroad to work.

The top tier of universities has been completely snatched up by foreign capital, and graduates from prestigious schools such as the University of Tokyo, Kyoto University, the former imperial universities, Waseda, and Keio are pursuing empty careers in consulting and the like rather than manufacturing, with no prospect of earning foreign currency. The top echelons of the working world are fleeing to America one after another, and once they do, they never come back. In urban areas, Japanese people pay rent for apartments to the Chinese owners every month, and while the Japanese lament that they cannot afford the high prices, the Chinese buy the apartments in cash, calling them cheap.

The price of imported building materials has soared and it's difficult to even buy a house, but the company president keeps saying "Don't worry, don't worry!" and people are grateful for the good value for money house, and the company makes the highest profit ever, and the sales of the small house real estate agency that calls out to people in their 30s in street sales in front of the station and has the slogan "Let's go, one trillion" have finally exceeded one trillion.

Even though the price of an iPhone in the US dollar has not increased, there is uproar in Japan saying, "It's gotten expensive again!", and almost all mobile communication means, such as smartphones and LINE, are controlled by foreign companies.

By preaching some vague, mysterious fantasy and delusion called Society 5.0, they are desperately trying to hide the fact that they have not achieved Industry 4.0, let alone the Third Industrial Revolution, and since neither the government nor the private sector has any IT technology to sell anymore, they are desperately promoting something that is hard to understand, saying how amazing IOWN is, and making it look like they are doing business.

This country, which once engaged in empty discussions such as "If there is a labor shortage, we can just bring in immigrants" and "It's better not to bring in immigrants," is now being told, "People go to Korea or Taiwan because the wages are low," and "Wages are higher in urban China," and so it has no choice but to deceive Vietnamese people and create a slave system to secure a labor force.

The medical infrastructure, which was once one of the best in the world, has been eaten up by the elderly, and the working generation has been exploited to the point where they have finally reached the limit of what they can pay. As a result, drug prices have been forcibly lowered, and there are now countless foreign-made drugs that Japan is unable to procure, with people saying, "We won't sell to Japan at that low a price."

Young people who could be saved with new medicines are not saved, and today, old people still gather happily at the hospital to get compresses, and are given medicine that only slows down dementia by 20-30% at a cost of 3 million yen per person. Elderly people in their 80s and 90s lie in bed, simply prolonging their lives by being bedridden, and their single sons in their 60s come to visit them occasionally, hoping to get their pensions. All of this is being borne by the young working generation, who are short of money and have hit an all-time low in marriage rates and a post-war low in birth rates.

ゆでカエルの腹の中に時限爆弾を抱えさせられた若者らは、いつか外貨が尽きた時、牛肉も、小麦粉も、大豆も、石油もガスも、ウランも、あらゆるものが買えなくなり荒廃した社会が来る未来を薄々と予想しながらも、ただその現実から目を背けて、今日もパパ活女子がおじさんにパンツの色を聞かされている横で、みかんジュースを飲んでいる。

The yen, once a currency coveted by people around the world, has become known as the "yen in times of emergency" and is now being sold off at bargain prices almost every day. Now one of the emerging currencies of the Far East, it is experiencing wild fluctuations in value and is managing to hang on by selling off the foreign exchange it had accumulated during its glory days, but it is unclear for how long it will be able to hold on.

The country and its people have mistakenly believed that monetary and fiscal policies would solve the problem, put off structural reform, neglected technological development, and simply put everything off. Forgetting the bloody efforts of wise men of the past and the history of the dramatic changes that came with modernization, the old men of companies and organizations that flourished during the Showa era, steeped in old vested interests, are wielding their power, crushing new technologies and ideas, only for the people in question to be dead by the time they get away with it.

These young people, like those in the bellies of boiled frogs, are carrying a time bomb, and they vaguely foresee a future in which they will no longer be able to buy beef, flour, soybeans, oil, gas, uranium, or anything else, when foreign currency runs out, leaving society in ruins. But they simply turn a blind eye to this reality, and today, they are sipping mandarin orange juice while a girl looking for a sugar baby is asked by an older man what color her underwear is.

>Anno understands the Japanese national attraction to characters like Rei as the product of a stunted imaginative landscape born of Japan's defeat in the Second World War. "Japan lost the war to the Americans," he explains, seeming interested in his own words for the first time during our interview. "Since that time, the education we received is not one that creates adults. Even for us, people in their 40s, and for the generation older than me, in their 50s and 60s, there's no reasonable model of what an adult should be like." The theory that Japan's defeat stripped the country of its independence and led to the creation of a nation of permanent children, weaklings forced to live under the protection of the American Big Daddy, is widely shared by artists and intellectuals in Japan. It is also a staple of popular cartoons, many of which feature a well-meaning government that turns out to be a facade concealing sinister and more powerful forces.

>Anno pauses for a moment, and gives a dark-browed stare out the window. "I don't see any adults here in Japan," he says, with a shrug. "The fact that you see salarymen reading manga and pornography on the trains and being unafraid, unashamed or anything, is something you wouldn't have seen 30 years ago, with people who grew up under a different system of government. They would have been far too embarrassed to open a book of cartoons or dirty pictures on a train. But that's what we have now in Japan. We are a country of children."

AUTHOR INTERVIEW / MOST SIGNIFICANT 20TH-CENTURY FEMINIST YOU NEVER HEARD OF

Jewish feminist Beate Sirota Gordon changed women's rights in Japan forever

A new children's book shows how her upbringing and bit of good, old-fashioned chutzpah helped a 22-year-old woman change a country's destiny, and then keep mum about it for decades

Drawing upon her values along with her knowledge of Japanese language and culture — as well as her inherent chutzpah — in 1946 Gordon found herself the only woman “in the room where it happened” — in this case, where American officials, led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, rewrote Japan's constitution as part of post-World War II democratic reforms.

I can't comprehend how a country that makes manga could have such a problem. Like if you are sad just read about JoJo or something.

@rataposting

The void has consumed me and all that's left is pain. My invisible agony has reached an unendurable level and killing myself is preferable to the never ending flames of life.

AICHI — Police in Handa, Aichi Prefecture, have arrested a 51-year-old man after the skeletonized body of his father was found in his apartment on Tuesday.

Official data in Japan has shown that 271 people over 100 years old were missing as of last week and that 25 of them continued to receive state pensions. Five out of 59 pensioners over 110 are dead and one is missing, according to Health, Labour and Welfare Ministry figures released Friday.

Japanese citizens are famous for their longevity

More than 230,000 elderly people in Japan who are listed as being aged 100 or over are unaccounted for, officials said following a nationwide inquiry.

An audit of family registries was launched last month after the remains of the man thought to be Tokyo's oldest were found at his family home.

Relatives are accused of fraudulently receiving his pension for decades.

Officials have found that hundreds of the missing would be at least 150 years old if still alive.

Man says he kept parents' bodies in house for 10 years so he could collect their pensions

MIE — Police in Yokkaichi, Mie Prefecture, have arrested a 63-year-old man on suspicion of fraud and failing to report the deaths of his parents whose bodies he kept in their rented house for 10 years so he could continue collecting their pensions.

Japan's finances are becoming increasingly precarious, Finance Minister Shunichi Suzuki warned on Monday, just as markets test whether the central bank can keep interest rates ultra-low, allowing the government to service its debt.

Japan's public debt is more than double its annual economic output, by far the heaviest burden in the industrialized world.

The government has been helped by near-zero bond yields, but bond investors have recently sought to break the Bank of Japan's (BOJ) 0.5% cap on the 10-year bond yield, as inflation runs at 41-year highs, double the central bank's 2% target.

Record 63% of Japanese in financial stress, poll shows

 KYODO NEWS - Mar 31, 2024 - 10:54 | All, Japan

TOKYO – A record 63.2 percent of respondents said they do not feel financially secure in Japan and have a negative outlook on their future, a recent government survey showed.

The proportion of people who experienced financial stress in 2023 rose 0.7 percentage point from a year earlier against the backdrop of surging prices, according to the Cabinet Office poll.

The result was the worst since the question on reasons for being dissatisfied was added in 2008 to the survey which takes the public pulse on economic and social attitudes.

Japan barely has a functional modern society. Its economic success lies entirely in its role as a piece of the American Global Empire. A decision was made to allow Japan to take over upstream industrial machine parts, and factory handbooks for car companies were handed over. Even the vaunted "kaizen" was developed by an American consultant.

Japan's overheated economy in the 80s would have torn down the global system that America led and Japan was dependent on.

The idea of Japanese economic excellence is an utter myth.

You're going to think I'm joking, but Indians have for thousands of years been obsessed with huge structures that can crush them.

There is a ritual called the Juggernaut. A Juggernaut is a huge stone wagon, as big as they can build, that is dragged through the land on a grand tour. The idea is it's like a mobile temple, "I'm such a great, kind, and powerful king I'm bringing god to the little people out in the boonies for a day", so the Juggernaut is considered very holy. Touching the Juggernaut is good luck, and naturally, people would swarm them, they'd press each other into the wheels, or get their clothing caught, and be mulched up.

You'd think that would be the end of it. Actually, for the Indian, "Ignoring danger" is considered very honorable, great bravery. So young men would stand before this slow steamroller daring each other to be the last to move. This too, was a source of death.

You think THATS the bottom but it isn't.

You see, touching the juggernaut and daring the danger of the juggernaut are all well and good, those are little blessings. The best thing that can happen to you is to be KILLED by the juggernaut. See, you have been killed by something holy, and thus your next life will be blessed. People would lie down in its path, lay their infants down before it, they would command their children to crouch in its way with their eyes closed or blindfolded.

This is considered racist myth today. "All the deaths were accidents" they say. Even though we have photographs of foreigners pulling the children away from the wheels, and every single foreign people who ever saw the ritual said the same thing: "They sacrifice their children to a big stone wagon".

Perhaps this is why the Indian loves the cow and the elephant, nature's crushing monoliths. Who knows where this Indian sickness began, perhaps some part of him misses his ancient charioteer masters, who brought prosperity even as they trampled.

The high caste Indians are cool, they are basically white, you should not be unhappy about them more than you would a spaniard or a Italian. Lower caste Indians are bad and the ones that give India bad rep, there is reason why the caste system exists...

Why do you guys hate the new h1-B visa proposals? I'm sure the USA will pick only high caste applicants. They are pretty much white/white adjacent.

 No, you don't get it. I'll tell you some insider info cuz I'm already done with life and will commit unalive later. What they say to you is what they want you to believe but inside their circles when it's only them they'll say the opposite. For example, take silicon valley, they'll say Indians are never biased and nepotistic, they love white and black people but in their own circles, they'll curse the shit out of you and call you all sorts of slurs. Likewise, with colour, In India, people are very proud of being light-skinned and it's seen as the ideal type and they hate black skin but when you go abroad, you'll see them trying to copy and look like blacks. They don't have their own original style. In here, you see all the Indians, they say shit about white people cuz it's an anonymous board but in real life, all of them will lick your ass clean.

Indians have smallest brains in the world, reveals IIIT-Hyderabad study after creating brain atlas

A study by IIIT Hyderabad created the first brain atlas for Indians and found that Indians have some of the smallest brains in the world -- much smaller compared to Caucasians and Chinese.

As part of this project, Becker has also updated and recalculated the Indian IQ, the most recent known study of which was published in 2015 [Gender Performance on Intelligence Quotient Test among Medical Students in a Government Medical College, By B. Uppu et al., IOSR Journal of Dental and Medical Sciences, 2015]

Incredibly, considering all of the "Raj from The Big Bang Theory" types populating science departments at America's top universities, Becker's meta-analysis of 11 studies revises the Indian average IQ downwards. Lynn and Vanhanen calculated it to be 82.2, but Becker has found it to be a mere 76.24.

I learned a lot about Indians in the gulf. Primarily that they are a race of people who are optimized to be slaves. When I first arrived and the Arabs were telling me not to be nice to Indians I was shocked and partially horrified however after interacting with them for a long time I came to have the same demeanor towards them and found they actually enjoyed being abused. A truth about the Indian man is that if you show him kindness he will exploit that and scam you, however if you act rude and aggressive he will try to please you. An odd people.

I'm not saying that hyperbolically, I honestly would say that putting down an indian and some animal like a rat on the same morally weight.

Honest question: why are indians like this?

I've been to lots of poor shitholes all over the world before, everyone is very nice. But indians are totally subhuman.

the bigger issue everyone needs to realize is that jeets are inherently sociopathic people. they will displace you from work with their unqualified peers, protest the right to act as slumlords (brampton rental license), game your immigration system and commit mass fraud (consultants and mortgage brokers in anglophone nations), sexually assault your women and defend it vigorously (the deceased doctor), murder people on your soil and enforce their social hierarchies against your natives.

These are a natural byproduct of their 'jugaad' mentality and 1.5 billion people competing for meagre resources. They will justify any form of chicanery without the realization that they will irreparably destroy the system or society they operate in, and they will feel completely entitled to it. our gulfie nations are insulated because we put our boots on their necks. anglo nations will not survive them

International students overwhelming Waterloo Region food banks, soup kitchens

By Cosmin Oszurdza, True North Wire - September 15, 2024

Source: City of Waterloo

Some Region of Waterloo food banks and soup kitchens are overwhelmed due to a massive spike in international students flocking to the region.

City officials were presented with the 2024 Immigration Profile which showed a massive increase. Some areas like Cambridge saw a 138% increase in permanent residency.

According to Councillor Doug Craig, the situation is especially dire given the fact that Conestoga College admitted over 30,000 international students last year.

The unprecedented number of international students, mostly from India, has strained some food banks and other community services to the brink with students seeking to fetch a free meal.

By Jayant Bhandari

Most Westerners know nothing about India beyond vague ideas about Hinduism, yoga, gurus, and maybe a dash of Bollywood. To such people, this article will be a rude awakening.

I grew up in Bhopal in central India. Since as early as I can remember, I worked in my father's printing press. I studied engineering in the nearby city in Indore and went to Manchester Business School in Britain to do an MBA. I returned to India to set up a subsidiary of a British company, which was a huge success. When I lived in Delhi, I wrote for the mainstream Indian media. I traveled widely in India and around the world.

I had first returned to India with the idea of improving it, but after 11 years, I realized that India was a sinking ship, with worsening and increasingly shameless corruption, degraded people, and a society that was falling apart. I had never met an honest bureaucrat or politician. I applied to emigrate to Canada and my application was approved in a record three weeks.

I now advise East Asian and Western corporations on investing in India. Most of what I tell them sounds to them exaggerated, unrealistic, and unbelievable. After much dance, drama, and a great deal of lost money, they begin to believe what I tell them. However, this learning is never institutionalized because of a refusal to understand India. This is a form of political correctness, a poison eating away the innards of Western values.

When I was a child growing up in India, I learned that "might makes right." Power was often abused, with those in control acting as if they had a God-given right to exploit and dominate others. The display of authority could be so extreme that questioning it or expecting those in power to do their duty might lead to retribution. Those in authority seemed to believe that their positions were not for serving others but for personal gain.

People who showed respect appeared to have meekly accepted a lower, subservient position. Kind people had to hide their compassion, for being nice was seen as a weakness.

In India, I have rarely seen someone in authority take the initiative to solve a problem he was responsible for.

When I was at university, an underaged boy who worked in the kitchen was raped and sodomized by the janitors. I reported the matter, but not only did no one in authority do what was right — something well within their power — the authorities and fellow students threatened me with severe consequences if I pursued the matter further. Devoid of empathy, they also made fun of the boy and me.

Yes, there is an element of sadism here. There is some degree of pleasure that Indians take in the pain suffered by others. The attitude of the authorities was like that of the high-placed Delhi bureaucrat who told me that his Black Label whiskey tastes so much better because he knows that most Indians can't afford to drink it.

This confuses Westerners. If they had power, even if they were corrupt, in a situation where there was nothing to gain or lose — no bribes to receive since both parties were poor, and no risk of offending someone well-connected — they would do the right thing and book the alleged rapist. These Indians would do nothing, not even lift a finger, unless there was a reward: money or sex. Their apathy was bottomless.

Doing your job may be seen as effeminate by those above you. If you can shirk your responsibilities, you're considered macho. In that culture, there is rarely any pride or honor in doing what is right. If you call a plumber for repairs, he will see it as beneath him to leave without creating a mess. He may deliberately do a shoddy job, even if doing it well wouldn't take more time. A complex web of arrogance, egotism, servility, casteism, tribalism, and magical thinking drives this behavior. He shows his contempt for you and gets the better of you by leaving a mess. His customer, as the other side of the same coin, might well look down on and exploit someone who did his job well.

If you do a bad job, does that mean you do not get called back? That doesn't matter to people who have no standards to begin with and who do not think ahead. There is little positive feedback to those who want to do better, be fair, or make better products.

Fairness, justice, trust, empathy, and impartiality are alien to many Indians. They have a hard time telling the difference between right and wrong. They are indifferent even when no cost is associated with being fair. Moreover, if they could do good without any personal cost, they would still prefer not to, because that can be seen as a sign of weakness.

Indians are indoctrinated to be submissive. The indoctrination is so profound that Indians address those even slightly above them in authority as "sir." They tend to be servile, sycophantic, and ingratiating. This should not be mistaken for respect, because respect is foreign to Indians. When they call you "sir," it reflects their view of you only as the stronger figure in the interaction, consistent with their view that might makes right. They will demean you the moment you are in a weaker position.

You are either higher or lower — therefore, you are either abuser or abused. Equality is impossible. A visitor learns very quickly that saying "please" and "thank you" is seen as a sign of weakness and is reserved for those who wish to demean themselves.

Indians cannot maintain the institutions established by the British. These institutions have been hollowed out and corrupted, becoming predatory. The constitution and laws hold little value. The only forces driving these institutions are bribes and connections. Whether you approach the highest political leaders or the pettiest bureaucrats, they openly and unashamedly demand bribes.

Street smarts are highly valued, and criminals who evade justice are celebrated. A relative of mine, brimming with pride, once told me that he would never pay rent for the house he had rented. He had bribed the local authorities to make it impossible for his landlord to throw him out.

When someone in a society without trust is cheated, he rarely seeks justice against the cheater. Instead, he cheats others. Men abuse women, women abuse children, and children abuse animals. Animals attack whatever they can. Higher-caste Indians abuse those in lower castes, while lower-caste people fight with other lower-caste people to determine who is superior. It is a perpetual cycle of mistrust and arbitrariness.

People in the West talk about a system of four or five castes that was formalized by the British. This confuses the issue, for this gives an exaggerated sense of structure. In reality, there are 1.4 billion castes in India. All interactions are about sizing you up. You end up either oppressing others or being oppressed. The so-called lower caste people are more caste conscious than the higher caste people.

Most caste problems in India are described in the news in passive tense. So-and-so was oppressed and abused. Yes, the sufferer is a lower caste person but the oppressor is often of a similarly low caste. When a lower caste person rises in power, he loves showing it off to those from higher castes. What better way to show off power than by abusing others and getting away with it or — if you are a plumber — by leaving a mess? Different people show off power according to what they can get away with.

Many people lie openly. Everyone knows everyone lies, but everyone lies anyway. Many Indians convince themselves of their lies so that they can no longer differentiate between fact and fiction. Even if you don't have to or want to, you have to exaggerate and lie, for you know your listener will calibrate to what you say. Conversations are often driven by personal material gain. Every transaction is a zero-sum game — or perhaps a negative-sum game, for sadism may be a part of the equation.

You may think you will be safe if you work with family members, but they may turn out to be your biggest enemies, for even they will betray you. Honor is not a part of the social code. Indians are atomized people and do not know loyalty. Indians across the board hide gold in their own houses and do not tell even family members about it.

I have never (I am using the word advisedly) had a contract honored in India. When you bribe, you must do so skillfully. If you have an opposing side in a legal fight, the judge and the police will take bribes from both sides. Your lawyer will collude with the opposing side and with the judge right in front of you to maximize bribes. This might sound unbelievable, but that does not change reality.

The words for most virtues come from Persian, Turkish, or English, not native Indian languages. But just because the words came into the language does not mean Indians accept those virtues; they were perverted and became a façade for the old ways.

Everyone builds solid, high fences around his property. Everyone does this the day he buys a property, because his neighbors will encroach on his land if they can. It took me years after I had moved to the West to understand why people don't build fences.

When I first traveled to the UK, I was amused to find that animals weren't fearful of or aggressive toward people. I was surprised that those in power didn't expect servility or reverence. For years, I felt uneasy, as if I wasn't fulfilling my part of the transaction unless I paid bribes.

My grandparents and father were honest in financial matters and held themselves to a high standard of self-respect — an anomaly in India. There are good, sane, moral, rational people in India, but I have more fingers than the total number of such Indians I have known; I can find that many honest Americans in one morning. By Indian standards, our family was decent and well-connected. This shielded me from much depravity and made it possible to ignore the stories that I heard.

Among ordinary Indians, conversations revolve around backbiting, gossiping about friends, discussing celebrities, exchanging superstitions, and animosity toward other groups. Hindus hate Muslims, Muslims hate Hindus, and Sikhs hate Hindus. These groups fight among themselves, leaving everyone atomized, but their hatred of other groups superficially unites them.

I doubt I understood the concepts of honor and loyalty until I had lived in Britain for a year. During that time, someone told me not to exaggerate when promoting the organization I worked for. For the first time, I began to see that people wanted to speak the truth simply for the sake of truth. I had always known the word "truth," but for the first time, I began to grasp its essence.

The foundational principle to understanding India is that it is an amoral, irrational society devoid of values. Any values you try to instill will slip off, like water off a duck's back.

I have seen a continual worsening of Indian society. Whatever grace and civility Christian missionaries and European colonizers instilled in Indians has been slowly eroding.

I distinctly recall my first day outside of India. On a train trip from Heathrow Airport to Manchester, I saw what I initially thought were dull-looking houses and clean, unremarkable waterways and air. The lack of hustle and bustle and the calmness of the train ride left me feeling disoriented and gloomy. I didn't know how to cope with a situation where there was no constant assault on my senses.

With time, I realized that for most Indian immigrants, this led to a compulsive need to recreate India in the ghettos they moved into. They sought the familiar smells, noise, and constant hustle and bustle. They recreated never-ending emotionalism, fruitless conflicts, chaos, and intellectual inbreeding.

When we were granted unhindered access to the school in Manchester and later to the office where I worked, my fellow immigrants and I often wondered if the British were so naïve as to trust us so readily. What was to stop us from stealing everything in sight? Most immigrants never truly grasp the significance of "trust" and "gratitude." Worse, they discover that complaining often leads to benefits — the only thing they genuinely care about in the multicultural West. Humanistic, civilizational values never touch their hearts.

Once, a friend and I went for a drive in Manchester. Having had a few drinks, he ran a red light and was pulled over by the police. I was stunned by the respect with which the officer treated him. In India, the police would have humiliated and exploited even the passengers. My friend was taken to the police station, and as I was driven there by an officer, I explained how we would have been treated if this had happened in India.

At that time, I was living in a high-crime area of Manchester, and the police sometimes followed me when I walked home. I asked the officer why they never stopped or questioned me. He told me they followed me to ensure my safety and had no authority to stop me without legitimate cause. For the first time, I began to understand the British respect for personal space, another value that was also starting to take root in my mind.

The officer made my friend sit for an hour or two to sober up, and then let him go without booking him. I began to realize that those in power in Britain could apply the law flexibly, considering the spirit behind it; in India, laws were excuses for predation.

Of course, Britain is no longer what it once was. Over the years, policing has evolved to accommodate the challenges presented by the lowest common denominator introduced by immigrants from the Third World.

Statistics fail to resonate in the Indian psyche. There is no sense of a grey area; everything is black or white, with no appreciation for nuance. This lack of proportionality leads to indecisiveness and an inability to value things. In the end, unrestrained emotions drive life. I carried a part of this same mindset with me. Realigning my thinking with reason, morality, and Western values was a difficult task.

I attended one of the best engineering colleges in India and believed myself to be creative, decisive, and well-grounded. However, as I started witnessing social interactions and behavior in Britain, I found I lacked confidence. Even the grocery store owner appeared more confident and decisive. I realized my mind was clouded with confused thinking and conflicting motivations

Even my privileged upbringing in India had ingrained into me layers upon layers of confused worldviews, and dishonest, scheming behavior. Despite my best intentions, shaking them off and rewiring my thinking took decades. Any erroneous belief I became aware of and tried to change clashed with other deeply ingrained beliefs and mental patterns. It was like trying to replace a broken brick in the castle of my cognitive constructs without destabilizing the entire structure. At times, I had to get drunk just to find a fleeting sense of sanity.

With time, I noticed that I began to sleep better and felt mentally freer. Even my body started to change, and the mental cloud that had clogged my thoughts began to lift. A reassuring sense that those around me had my back was immensely helpful. The confusing and contradictory thoughts that had caused chronic stress started to fade.

My grandmother often said two things I once considered backward-looking, but I agree with them today. She believed that some people needed to stay on the edge of starvation because if given more, they would make problems. Despite being one of the most egalitarian people I knew — befriending her chauffeur and tailor — she would remind me that not everyone deserved a seat at the table unless he was fit for it.

"Human Rights" is a Western concept that is incomprehensible to most Indians. They fail to understand respect for the individual. Speaking to them about "rights" only leads to confusion. They fail to differentiate between "negative" and "positive" rights. For instance, when taught about property rights, they learn to protect their property but fail to recognize the rights of others. Women, when taught that rape is a violation, might begin to see it in every situation and use it as a tool to exploit men. As they are introduced to the concept of rights, they shift from accepting their wretched lives to adopting a resentful, victim mentality.

You cannot teach people anything good until they have the foundations of morality, rationality, causality, and other Western values. Without these foundations, the fruits of Western civilization serve only to turn people's often-hidden hedonic tendencies into something more malevolent. Every civilizational fruit — education, Western clothing, prosperity, Western institutions — has been perverted in India.

The institutions left behind by the British have been hollowed out, becoming purely predatory and sadistic. This occurred because, in post-British India, those in power prize expediency and acquiring wealth as life's sole purposes. Today's India lacks even the vague rule of law that existed before the arrival of the Europeans. This is why it will be an improvement when India eventually collapses and the Taliban-like authoritarian system that existed before the British reemerges from the ashes.

Without Western missionaries at the helm, Christianity has been "nourished" by Indian superstitions and magical thinking and has become voodoo. Grammar has fallen by the wayside, and English has often become pidgin.

Education and Western clothing have been adopted with a cargo-cult mentality. The focus is on obtaining certificates and wearing suits, as if these outward symbols alone confer status and material benefits. Similarly, education is not viewed as a means to foster intellectual growth or evolve into better human beings. Instead, driven by animalistic desires, expediency, and the unethical pursuit of resources, most Indians scorn the idea of self-improvement.

Education applied to an irrational mind that processes information through magical thinking becomes burdensome, making such people worse than their uneducated counterparts.

The Indian mind should have been made moral and rational and imbued with honor, discipline, respect, and integrity, before being formally educated and provided with the fruits of Western civilization. Alas, this would have been, at best, a millennia-long process.

In economics, there is a concept of the "middle-income trap." I prefer to call India's situation the "low-income trap." Contrary to the beliefs of professional economists, these traps have cultural underpinnings; it is virtually impossible to escape.

Prosperity has led to neither social peace nor intellectual and spiritual growth. Indians do not understand the concept of comfort. Most rich Indians build garish houses not for comfort but to display wealth and control those weaker than themselves. Worse, the easy prosperity of recent decades, which is essentially a result of Western technological advancements, has derailed the pursuit of rationality and morality. Social media are a platform for exchanging myths, superstitions, and pornography. The IT revolution does not bring enlightenment to the poorest parts of the world!

Today, India is more entrenched in magical thinking and superstition than in the past. Hedonism is rampant, and families are falling apart.

When elevated to high positions, most Indians become arrogant and sadistic. This is less from a desire to mask their incompetence and psychological weaknesses and more from a genuine belief that arrogance and sadism define power and class. This also serves as a way to cope with the deep-seated inferiority complex instilled by their culture. Whatever grace and civility had once been imbued in Indians by colonizers has eroded.

The wealth created by the West hypnotizes Indians. However, they fail to understand the underpinnings of that wealth. They equate the West with Hollywood stereotypes: girls in short skirts, promiscuity, drinking and drugs, flaunting wealth, working in plush offices, and controlling others. This is the true soul, once obscured by Victorian morals and Islamic constraints. It is a return to a pre-colonial, pre-Victorian, hedonistic culture.

The British were a godsend. Without them, the situation has continued to worsen. India will eventually nullify all the benefits it got from the West and revert to its pre-colonial ways. It will fall apart, and I wouldn't be surprised if much of its population falls prey to war and famine and declines to the level it was before the arrival of Europeans.

Most Indians cannot think beyond money, sex, and survival — just what you would expect of a society with an average IQ of 77. Every Western value given to them has been caricatured and corrupted for these ends. Indians have no Ten Commandments. They are so unaware of these values that they remain oblivious even if they are forcefully presented to them. There is nothing you can do about this, except to try to understand what immigration from India and the rest of Third World will do to the West.

Apparently data manipulation is REALLY common in China

Vent

I recently had an experience working in a Chinese institution. The level of academic dishonesty there is unbelievable.

For example, they would order large amounts of mice and pick out the few with the best results. They would switch up samples of western blots to generate favorable results. They also have a business chain of data production mills easily accessible to produce any kind of data you like. These are all common practices that they even ask me as an outsider to just go with it.

I have talked to some friendly colleagues there and this is completely normal to them and the rest of China. Their rationale is that they don't care about science and they do this because they need publications for the sake of promotion.

I have a hard time believing in this but it apparently is very common and happening everywhere in China. It's honestly so frustrating that hard work means nothing in the face of data manipulation.

FACTS ABOUT SOUTH AFRICA.

White people, whatever that's supposed to mean, were the builders of South Africa. An infrastructure that was unparalleled in Africa, big clean cities and a farming culture that was self sufficient. The currency is the Rand, it was trading at roughly 4 units to the dollar or better in 2000. Today it is hovering around 19 to one. The infrastructure has fallen apart, unemployment is nearly at 40% and crime levels are unacceptable. All this under the ANC watch. it is not white people, as you call them (we call ourselves South Africans) it is a mostly black African ANC government that is responsible. They were given, in 1994, a vibrant successful country to govern and they have looted and plundered it into a shadow of its former glory.

There were several reasons why Libya was destroyed and Ghadafi was killed. As usual, it was about lots and lots of money.

Libya was about to be welcomed back into the international fold after Ghadafi compensated the families of the Lockerbie bombing [Pan Am flight 103]. He took responsibility for it but claimed he never gave the order.

1) Ghadafi, flush with confidence about the state of his rising middle class and the fact that Libya had zero external debt, decided to introduce a gold-backed Dinar. His vision was to unite all of northern Africa under one gold-backed currency.

If he succeeded, he would have displaced the western-African and central-African CFA Franc, essentially kicking out the Bank of France and freeing those nations that used those currencies from the stranglehold of the French government. Nikolas Sarkozy wasn't going to allow that to happen.

2) His second motivation was to trade Libyan oil only in this new Dinar. This, of course, is a big no-no if you don't have a military the size of Russia's because the US dollar is the reserve currency for global oil trade. Obama, the bankers, and the Pentagon weren't going to let that happen.

[For you youngfags & newfags, this is what's called the Petrodollar system. If a country wants to buy oil from Saudi Arabia for example, they have to exchange their currency for US dollars to make the transaction. It is said that without this agreement the value of our dollar would instantly collapse. On a side note, this is the real reason we invaded Iraq. Saddam took himself off the Petrodollar and traded his oil only for Euros -- making hundreds of millions, and by doing so was able to compensate for the sanctions we had against Iraq.]

3] Somewhere along the way Ghadafi's precious metal holdings were discovered, which were approximately 143 tons of gold and an almost equal amount of silver. To my knowledge it's never been revealed who actually got their hands on that gold and silver first.

I do know that we were very late in the game when it came to retrieving the HUGE cache of shoulder-fired missiles in his weapons storage (both US and Russian-made). Another side note: Our CIA operatives in Tripoli at the time wanted to immediately start tracking these missiles down, as it only takes one of them to bring down a passenger jet. Guess who stopped them? Obama's lapdog, traitorous John Brennan.

If there's one book everyone should read about the events leading up to the Libyan invasion and Benghazi, it's this:
Dark Forces: The Truth About What Happened in Benghazi by Kenneth Timmerman

It's a long book with too many sandnigger names to keep track of, but if you make it through you will understand the relationship between the Libyan invasion and the subsequent invasion of Syria. You will learn the large-scale evil perpetrated by Obama's people outside of the satanic child rape and murder.

Obama's and Hillary's role in the Libyan invasion for the most part was about getting the weapons to the "rebels" (radical muslim jihadists) that Ghadafi had been successfully keeping away. They enlisted the help of Arizona arms dealer Marc Turi and used the governments of Turkey and Qatar for transport. They later tried to pin the blame on Turi for the whole thing but by doing so would have revealed Obunghole's role in it, so the DOJ dropped the case at the last minute because they didn't want to hurt the homo nignog-in-chief in the coming election. Also, their action of pushing those weapons into Benghazi violated the UN Security Council's arms embargo on Libya.

In my opinion, Ghadafi could have pulled it off if he had just done one thing: allowed Russia to install a military base there. If he had done that, i think Libya wouldn't have been destroyed and we'd be living in a different world. Would we have gone to war with Russia over Libya? I don't think so, but perhaps there's a glowbro analyst listening who can offer his assessment on this.

Lessons to be learned:

1] If the US gov is telling you via the mockingbird media that a ruler in a foreign land is a "brutal dictator", be sure to do your homework before forming an opinion, because it's probably hyperbole to generate support for an illegal invasion.

2] If the prize is large enough, the Executive Branch and Pentagon under the likes of Obama & Bush are willing to break the Geneva Conventions Treaties and commit war crimes. They get away with it every time. In the case of Libya, we bombed the incredible aquaduct system that Ghadafi built to bring water to the desert for farming.

3] If you anons study the real reasons behind Iraq, Libya, Syria, and Afghanistan, you will gain a very large but terrible truth about geopolitics and the wanton destruction of nations and innocent people. Again, it all comes down to money, but it's not just about installing a Rothschild-owned bank. It's about long-term money generated by the control of natural resources. If it comes out of the ground western nations want absolute control over it. It doesn't matter if it's oil, natural gas, gold, silver, diamonds, copper, poppy seeds, marijuana... whatever. Greed drives the war machine.

These are the real redpills that normies should take before being exposed to the global child trafficking. Once they understand the wars over natural resources and the enormity of the international drug and weapons trade, then you can tell them that the next commodity that gets moved along those same routes are the women and kids. Because that's exactly the way it happens.

Memorandum:

There's something else that everyone should know [especially in the US] about Benghazi.

US Ambassador to Libya J. Christopher Stevens who was killed in the attack on the CIA annex in Libya was not a patriot for the US as the western media would have you believe. He was a radical muslim sympathizer and a loyalist to child butcher Hillary Clinton. Although no hard proof has surfaced, it's widely assumed among researchers here that he was one of the CIA's assets in their mission to illegally arm the Libyan "rebels". His friendships, liaisons, and positive attitudes concerning the muslim tribes in the area were well-known.

Knowing this, it comes as no surprise that Hillary wouldn't lift a finger to send help to the Americans trapped in the annex. He and his staff would be liabilities after the dust settled. All of this is still being covered up by western media including the few conservative outlets. You can learn the details about him in the book i mentioned in my previous post. And to add to the lies on top of lies, Obama used his death as another false excuse and justification to invade Libya.

There are two major ironies that emerge from the Benghazi attack:

1] Most conservatives in the US use Stevens' death as a motivator to remind people about Killary's role in Benghazi without realizing they are paying homage to a possible traitor.

2] Stevens was ultimately killed by the men that he armed.

Go with God, anons.

Today, the ICJ's opinion reaffirmed that the occupation of Palestinian territories constitutes a clear violation of international law.

Canada must take immediate and concrete action to enforce this ruling.

Actions to stop Netanyahu's expansion of illegal settlements on Palestinian territories and the historic violence.

One critical action that Canada must adopt without delay is the full recognition of Palestinian statehood, following the recent examples set by the governments of Spain, Norway, and Ireland.

So many takeaways from the ICJ case today. A big one is that it puts to rest the idea that Palestinians must negotiate an end to Israel's military rule. No land swaps; no accommodating settlers; no "generous offers" because it isn't Israel's land to be generous with.

Today's ICJ ruling is truly historic. For many years, legal scholars and NGOs have accused Israel of the crime of apartheid. People were attacked for saying this and even cancelled. Today the accusation comes from the international court itself: Israel is an apartheid regime.

September 17, 2021 marks 73 years since the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte, a Swedish diplomat who had worked as a mediator between Jews and Arabs, by the pre-state militia known as the Stern Gang (Lehi).

Bernadotte was a member of the Swedish royal family and had worked extensively as a diplomat during World War II. During this time, he had helped free tens of thousands of prisoners held in Nazi Germany and had worked unsuccessfully to negotiate an armistice between the Nazis and the Western Allies, notably without the knowledge of Adolf Hitler.

In May 1948, the UN Security Council appointed Bernadotte the United Nations mediator in Palestine in an attempt to negotiate an end to the violence between Jews and Arabs following the war that broke out right after Israel declared independence.

Jewish extremist proposed killing Churchill: MI5 records reveal 1944 plot by Stern Group

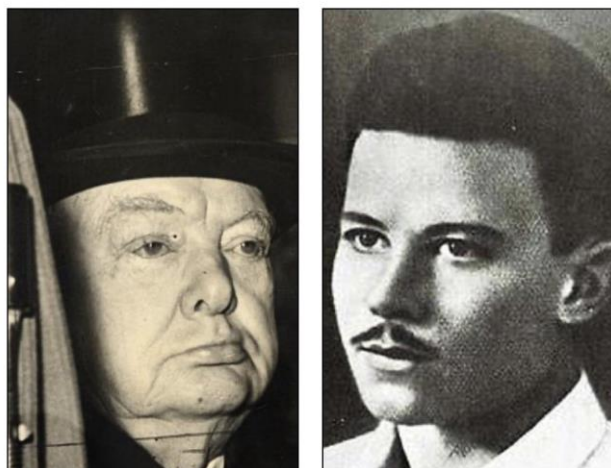

By DAILY MAIL REPORTER
UPDATED: 09:38, 4 April 2011

A Jewish extremist who murdered a British government minister during the Second World War also proposed assassinating Winston Churchill, MI5 records show.

Eliyahu Bet-Zuri suggested sending agents of the Stern Gang, a Zionist paramilitary group devoted to forcing the British out of Palestine, to London to kill the then-prime minister.

Bet-Zuri was hanged in 1945 for murdering Lord Moyne, the UK's minister resident in the Middle East and a close friend of Churchill, in Cairo in November 1944.

Today, November 4th, marks 28 years since Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was murdered by a Jewish extremist for seeking a historic peace deal with the Palestinians.

Many in Israel now blame members of the current Israeli government for the political assassination. In the run up to Rabin's murder, current Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu made a series of incendiary speeches, calling Rabin a "Nazi" for entering negotiations with the PLO.

Itamar Ben-Gvir, the current head of National Security in Israel, threatened to kill Rabin several times in his youth, including on Israeli television after stealing an emblem from Rabin's car.

Figures like Netanyahu and Rabin created a climate where any Israeli that sought a peaceful resolution with the Palestinians were seen as traitors and subject to political violence.

Rabin's murder is a reminder of how dangerous the political climate is in Israel for anyone who seeks peace, and what kind of extremists are currently in power in Israel.

The incident happened in Muhammad's home village of Beitun, north-west of Jerusalem, which has become a flashpoint for violence between Israeli forces and demonstrators protesting against the building of an Israeli security fence.

The picture was published by an Israeli human rights group trying to expose the behaviour of some Israeli security personnel.

Public Arab Activism, director of Rabbat for Human Rights, heard about the boy and tried to intervene with the police, demanding he be released.

The child claimed he was abducted by one of the officers and arrested. He said he intended to press charges against the police.

"The boy was sitting on the hood of a vehicle, unsuccessfully trying to hold back his tears, shivering with fright, and with one arm tied to the screen protecting the windshield," he said.

"He tried to calm him down and reassure him. I asked if he was hurt. He said he had been beaten and was in pain."

"It is very depressing that we have come to this position where this is what we do."

The Israeli police said they were investigating the incident.

'Place the Material in the Wells': Docs Point to Israeli Army's 1948 Biological Warfare

For decades, rumors and testimonies swirled about Jewish troops sent to poison wells in Arab villages. Now, researchers have located official documentation of the 'Cast Thy Bread' operation

On April 1, 1948, David Ben-Gurion wrote in his journal about "the development of science and speeding up its application in warfare." A month and a half later, he wrote about "biological materials" that were purchased for $2,000. Only now, 74 years later, has a connection between these two entries come to light. The disturbing story behind them was recently uncovered by historian Benny Morris and historian and Israel Prize laureate Benjamin Z. Kedar following extensive archival research. Evidently, the excerpts from the diary of the man who would become Israel's first prime minister are traces of his involvement in a secret operation to poison the drinking water of Arab communities during the War of Independence.

This operation was partially exposed decades ago when rumors and oral testimonies were reported in newspapers and books about an attempt in 1948 by the IDF to poison wells in Acre and Gaza by adding bacteria to the drinking water. However, only now, in Morris and Kedar's research, has the "smoking gun" been revealed – in the form of official documentation. The newly unearthed documents show that this operation was much broader in scope than earlier believed and that other top military and political figures besides Ben-Gurion were involved.

"We uncovered a lot of new information. We deciphered how the operation developed through its various stages; we discovered who authorized, organized and controlled the operation, and how it was carried out in different areas," Morris says. "We have a much fuller picture now, and one that is based in part on IDF documentation," Kedar adds.

The pair recently published an article in the journal Middle Eastern Studies titled "'Cast Thy Bread': Israeli Biological Warfare during the 1948 War." "Cast Thy Bread" was the operation's code name. Naturally, most of the material related to the episode is censored, but when Morris searched through the IDF archives for any mention of the operation by name, he was surprised to discover numerous documents. Morris writes in the article that the censor apparently was not aware of what the code name referred to.

Dayan – now calling himself, in code, "Moshe Neptune" – cabled Yadin: "Cast Thy Bread will be activated by Nahshon [meaning Operation Nahshon forces, which included the Harel Brigade] on Monday or Tuesday. I will come down mid-week with all the material."

Yadin instructed senior IDF commanders: "There is an immediate need to appoint in your HQ a special officer for Cast Thy Bread matters. The matter is of utmost importance and must be kept in great secrecy by you."

In another cable, Yadin writes: "Place in the wells material of the Cast Thy Bread type." And in another cable: "Is there authorization to use B [the Hebrew letter Bet] in the areas that will be evacuated by us [i.e., Israel]?"

Report: Israel Passes U.S. Military Technology to China

24 Dec 2013

Secret U.S. missile and electro-optics technology was transferred to China recently by Israel, prompting anger from the U.S. and causing a senior Israeli defense official to resign.

The head of defense exports for the Israeli Defense Ministry resigned after a U.S. investigation concluded that technology, including a miniature refrigeration system manufactured by Ricor and used for missiles and in electro-optic equipment, was sent to China, according to the Israeli newspaper Maariv.

Another Israeli news site, Aretz Sheva, reports the U.S. is concerned the technology could ultimately find its way to Iran, which last year sought to buy military equipment from China for its nuclear program.

China Targets Israeli Technology in Quest for Global Dominance as U.S. Frets

BY DIDI KIRSTEN TATLOW / SENIOR REPORTER, INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS ON 08/10/22 AT 5:00 AM EDT

Israel's Ties With China Raise Concerns About a Back Door to U.S. Tech

Washington is watching its key ally in the Middle East closely. Israel and the U.S. share deep defense and innovation ties in areas such as drone technology and artificial intelligence, so China's focus on acquiring emerging digital technologies raises concern about backdoors into U.S. technology and unwanted tech outflow—leaked secrets— from Israel. Washington's nightmare is that the PRC, by partnering with or buying an Israeli company, could obtain a critical technology that gives it an advantage in the military or other sensitive field.

Beijing's intense focus on a crucial security partner of the U.S. is a tricky balancing act for the small nation. Israel is proud of its start-up culture and doesn't want to nix promising commercial opportunities. China is also investing heavily in the region's infrastructure as part of its "Belt and Road Initiative," a geopolitical push to promote Chinese interests internationally, so Israel needs to manage its influence among neighboring Arab states and Iran, too. On the other hand, Israel's close friendship with Washington—its security guarantor—is nonnegotiable.

U.S. priorities are clear. In a strongly worded statement, the State Department told Newsweek, "We have been candid with our Israeli friends over risks to our shared national security interests." In diplomat talk, the word "candid" means people yelled.

Israel–United States relations

Article Talk

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Since the 1960s, the United States has been a very strong supporter of Israel. It has played a key role in the promotion of good relations between Israel and its neighbouring Arab states—namely Jordan, Lebanon, Egypt, along with several others in the 2020 Abraham Accords—while also holding off hostility from other Middle Eastern countries such as Syria and Iran. Relations with Israel are a very important factor in the U.S. government's overall foreign policy in the Middle East, and the U.S. Congress has likewise placed considerable importance on the maintenance of a close and supportive relationship.

Israel is the largest cumulative recipient of U.S. foreign aid: until February 2022, the United States had provided Israel US$150 billion (non-inflation-adjusted) in bilateral assistance.^[1] In 1999, the US government signed a Memorandum of Understanding through which it committed to providing Israel with at least US$2.67 billion in military aid annually, for the following ten years; in 2009, the annual amount was raised to US$3 billion; and in 2019, the amount was raised again, now standing at a minimum of US$3.8 billion that the US is committed to providing Israel each year.^[1]

Events in Tiananmen offered an additional incentive for military relationship, funded in Israel's reputation as a reliable arms supplier. Sanctions imposed by Western countries almost froze Chinese access to advanced military and dual-use technologies. Israel then sought to benefit from the situation and became China's backdoor to western technology.^[68]

Israel was ready to sell China the EL/M-2075 Phalcon, an Israeli airborne early-warning radar system (AWACS), until the United States forced it to cancel the deal.^[69] Some estimate that Israel sold arms worth US$4 billion to China in this period.^{[64][65]}

China had looked to Israel for the arms and military technology it could not acquire from the United States, Europe and Russia.^[70] Israel is now China's second-largest foreign supplier of arms after Russia with China having purchased a wide array of military equipment and technology, including communications satellites.^[64] China is a vital market for Israel's aerospace and defense industry.^[64] Due to Israel's recognition of China, Israel has also limited its cooperation with Taiwan in order to foster closer ties with Mainland China.^[64]

The U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency compiled evidence that Israel had transferred missile, laser and aircraft technology to China in the 1990s. On 19 October 1999, the Defense Minister of China, Chi Haotian, flew to Israel and met with Ehud Barak, then-Prime Minister and Defense Minister of Israel. They reached several high-level agreements, including a $1 billion Israeli-Russian sale of military aircraft to China.^[71] On 25 May 2011, the Commander of the People's Liberation Army Navy, Admiral Wu Shengli, made an official visit to Israel, meeting with Barak and Rear Admiral Eliezer Marom.^[72]

IAI Harpy

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The IAI Harpy is a loitering munition missile produced by Israel Aerospace Industries. The Harpy is designed to attack radar systems and is optimised for the suppression of enemy air defences (SEAD) role. It carries a high explosive warhead. The Harpy has been sold to several foreign nations, including South Korea, Turkey and China.

Design and development [edit]

In the late 1980s, Kentron sold the designs for its ARD-10 loitering drone to IAI. IAI then used those designs to develop the Harpy which was first tested in 1989.^[1]

In 2004, the Harpy became the focus of the effort by the United States to restrict arms transfers and the sales of advanced military technology to China. Sold to China in 1994 for around US$55 million, the loitering munitions were returned to Israel in 2004 under contract to be upgraded. The United States, fearing that the Harpy would pose a threat to Taiwanese and American forces in the case of a war with China,^[2] demanded that Israel seize the loitering munitions and nullify the contract. According to Israel, the Harpy is an indigenously designed loitering munitions, and does not contain any US-produced sub-systems.^[3] In 2005, the loitering munitions were returned to China without being upgraded. This incident chilled relations between the United States and Israel, with Israel being suspended from its status as Security Cooperative Participant in the Joint Strike Fighter program. However, on 6 November 2005, Israel stated that it has been re-admitted into the program.^[4]

Why the U.S. Can't Get Israel to Break Up With China

For most Israelis, the deals are enticing and the threat seems remote.

By Joshua Mitnick

So far, Israel's concern about strategic threats has been more limited to foes in the region: namely, the so-called Shiite crescent that runs through Iran, Syria, and Lebanon. Even though China supports Iran, Beijing has never been viewed as a factor in the Middle East that could weigh against Israeli security interests.

"China has never been in Israeli threat assessments like Iran is. China's not in the neighborhood, and Israel isn't an Asia-specific power," said Shira Efron, a fellow at the Institute for National Security Studies at Tel Aviv University. "Israel doesn't have the China experts here that are embedded in the system the way they are in the U.S."

The United States and Israel first squabbled over ties to China two decades ago, when Washington pressed Israel to cancel a deal to sell Phalcon intelligence surveillance aircraft to Beijing.

The term "hilltop youth" is regarded by Daniel Byman as a misnomer, since the movement was founded mostly by married people in their mid-twenties.^[3]

Origins

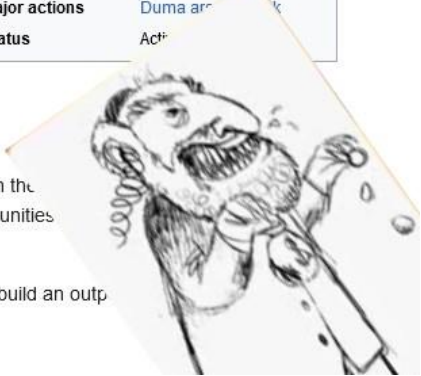

On 16 November 1998, in what was viewed as a declaration intended to thwart peace talks, and in particular the implementation of his political rival Benjamin Netanyahu's Wye River agreement with the Palestinian National Authority,^[5] the then-Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon urged settler youth to "grab the hilltops", adding,

"Everyone that's there should move, should run, should grab more hills, expand the territory. Everything that's grabbed will be in our hands. Everything we don't grab will be in their hands."^{[6][7]}

People proceeded to heed his exhortation and outposts proliferated, in a practice often called "creating facts on the ground". People feel betrayed by Sharon when the Israeli West Bank barrier he devised in 2005 cut off many of the illegal communities Sharon envisaged at that time.^[5]

The example of figures like Netanel Ozeri, who moved his family out of the safety of Kiryat Arba's perimeters to build an outpost in Palestinian land, was also important: Ozeri was later shot dead by Palestinian gunmen.^{[7][9]}

'They had hate in their eyes' Israeli photographer beaten by settlers while documenting attack of Palestinian town

13 April 2024, 5:20 pm

Yedioth Ahronoth photographer Shaul Golan says he was attacked by a group of settlers after arriving at the Palestinian village of al-Mughayyir to document the rampage unfolding there.

"I was walking around the village taking pictures when I saw a group of masked Jews emerge from a nearby olive grove, walking around... as if they owned the town. I filmed as they torched homes," he tells the Ynet news site.

Golan says he hid under a table in one of the burned homes as the assailants approach. "One of the children spotted me and called over the rest of them. They beat me mercilessly, breaking my finger and taking my bag to burn all of the photography equipment inside."

"Then they searched my pockets for a memory card to make sure I didn't have any recording of what they were doing," he says.

"I started telling them, 'I'm not an Arab, I'm a Jew.' They ran toward me, screaming in terror and grabbed me, shouting, 'You're a Jew, how are you not ashamed of yourself?'"

"Some were in IDF uniforms and holding guns. There were 20 or 30 of them who beat me as I shouted for help, hoping that soldiers would hear me. But they were the soldiers... I laid on the floor, as every one of them kicked me in the head and stomach," Golan says.

"They left me stripped and threw my motorcycle keys into the fire, so I'd have no way to get home. They had hate in their eyes," he says

- 10) Draw direct parallels between Israel and America—including the need to defend against terrorism. From history to culture to values, the more you focus on the similarities between Israel and America, the more likely you are to win the support of those who are neutral. Indeed, Israel is an important American ally in the war against terrorism, and faces many of the same challenges as America in protecting their citizens. For example, on September 11th, nineteen suicide terrorists hijacked American planes and killed our citizens. Today, when we go to the airport, we are screened and checked. Following an attempted “Shoe Bombing” we now have to take off our shoes. It slows travel down, is expensive, and invades our privacy. But imagine what we would do if more than 250 times terrorists had crossed into our land and killed our children while they were riding buses or eating pizza? What would America do? What would America do if America’s neighbors in Canada or Mexico were firing rockets into America?

The language of Israel is the language of America: “democracy,” “freedom,” “security,” and “peace.”

These four words are at the core of the American political, economic, social, and cultural systems, and they should be repeated as often as possible because they resonate with virtually every American. This is not rhetoric. It is fact. Despite the non-stop coverage of Israel in the press, the positive news about Israel remains untold.

It’s our job to “wear white hats in public”—to remind Americans that Israel is a team for whom they can feel good about cheering. After all:

- Israel, America’s ally, is a democracy in the Middle East. In Israel, Christians, Muslims, and Jews all have freedom of speech, religion, and a right to vote. Indeed, more than a million Arabs are citizens of Israel, representing almost 20% of the population. Furthermore, 12 Arabs and 21 women serve in Israel’s 120-member Parliament, and an Arab judge sits on the Israeli Supreme Court. On a cultural level, a recent Miss Israel was an Israeli Arab and Israel is sending an Arab-Israeli and a Jewish-Israeli to sing together in the upcoming Eurovision contest. As the following chart shows, female membership in the Knesset is even on the rise:

Property of The Israel Project. Not for distribution or publication. 2009.

- In contrast to those in the Middle East who indoctrinate their children to become hate-mongers and suicide bombers, Israel educates their children to strive for progress and peace. Israel is the one place in the Middle East where a young girl can grow up to be anything she wants—from a doctor to a mommy, to a businessperson and even to be prime minister!
- Israel is a key American ally:

Voters feel that “Israel is our most important ally in the Middle East.”

And, thinking about the United States and its relationship with Israel... Which TWO of the following are the best reasons for the United States to stand with Israel? November 2008

The key word here is if ... if this ... if that. As long as the “ifs” are centrist and credible, the public will agree. But what makes this language work so well, and why it should be said almost verbatim, is that it isn’t you talking – it’s the United Nations. Any time you can quote from the UN to make your case, do it.

- (5) Demand that Hamas be held accountable for the injustices it has done to its own people. The difference between what people expect a Palestinian government to pursue and what Hamas actually does could not be greater. Call Hamas out for using its own people, rather than empowering them. Put the contrast in stark terms. Here are useful language tricks to make the contrast really stick:

- “Buy books, not bombs,”
- “Invest in jobs, not jihad,”
- “Invest in food, not fear”

WORDS THAT WORK

The Palestinian people have a right to a government of their own. And they also have a right to a government that will empower them, not use them as shields. They have a right to a government that will invest international aid in books, not bombs. In food, not fear.

Their children deserve the same opportunities to learn and have hope for the future that children in Israel have. And they deserve to learn in an environment that is free of hate.

Unfortunately, Hamas and their sponsor Iran will never allow any of these things to happen. Israel cannot allow the Palestinian people to be isolated from the world by the leadership of Hamas, and that is why right now a Palestinian state is not possible.

Note: The line: “The Palestinian people have a right to a government that will empower them, not use them as shields” is particularly effective. Also, use the phrase “the right to” as often as possible.

Also, It’s “militant Islam,” not “Islamofascism.” If you want the people in power in the American government and around the world today to listen and learn, you need language that doesn’t sound like it came from George W. Bush.

- (6) “We offer this appeal directly to the Palestinian people.” The problem with pro-Israeli spokespersons is that they often level criticisms at the Palestinian government that sound like criticisms of the Palestinian people. It is so essential that you separate and differentiate between the illegitimate aims and the bloody hands of Hamas with the legitimate aims and victimization of the Palestinian people. And once again, use the three-question rhetorical approach:

Property of The Israel Project. Not for distribution or publication. 2009.

- “How exactly do Palestinians benefit when their Hamas leadership fires rockets into Israeli towns?”
- “Why is Hamas building bombs when they should be buying books?”
- “Where did the billions of dollars in international economic aid go? Don’t the Palestinian people deserve more from their leaders?”

This direct “human-to-human” appeal (say: “admittedly over the heads of Hamas”) will be well received and appreciated.

Not only is it more human and therefore more impactful, but opinion elites expect you to appeal directly to the Palestinian people because their leadership is not a willing partner for peace. They actually place the burden on you to continue working with the Palestinian people.

CHAPTER 8:

SETTLEMENTS

"If we are to have real peace, then Israelis and Palestinians will have to live side by side. The idea that anywhere that you have Palestinians there can't be any Jews, that some areas have to be Jew-free, is a racist idea. We don't say that we have to cleanse out Arabs from Israel. They are citizen of Israel. They enjoy equal rights. We cannot see why it is that peace requires that any Palestinian area would require a kind of ethnic cleansing to remove all Jews. We don't accept it. Cleansing by either side against either side is unacceptable."

-- The Best Settlement Argument

The settlements are the single toughest issue for Israel and the hostility towards them and towards Israeli policy that appears to encourage settlement activity is clearly evident. Unless and until Israeli government policy changes, here's the best communication approach:

- 1) Talk about "a willingness to negotiate" and "Camp David" in the same sentence. Without taking sides, Europeans, Americans in general nor American Jews in particular support the expansion of settlements in the West Bank. On the contrary, both non-Jews and Jews would support the removal of "some" of the settlements if it led to or was a component of a peace agreement – as was offered at Camp David.
- 2) Provide specific examples of how Israel has already sacrificed in the name of peace. Over 9,000 Israelis, including 1,700 families, were moved out of Gaza and the Northern West Bank in 2005 – all in an effort for peace. What did Israel get in return? Rockets from Iran-backed terrorists. There are more statistics available on this issue in Appendix III.
- 3) Three previous Israeli leaders have demonstrated a willingness to address the settlement issue. The fact that three Prime Ministers have been willing to dismantle some settlements proves Israel's credibility on the issue. Name them. While most people will not recognize them, and while some Likud leaders may find this uncomfortable, it does make your case stronger. Indeed, during Prime Minister Netanyahu's first Administration, he did not create any new settlements and at the Wye Accords he ceded control of Holy Jewish sites in Hebron. When there is a real partner for peace, Israel is there. But how many more rockets must Israel take?
- 4) The settlements are necessary for the security of Israel. Tell audiences that the settlements weren't created randomly. They were put on the tops of mountains and in important militarily sensitive areas to provide a security buffer between Israel and her Arab neighbors. Then remind audiences that Israel has faced a full-scale multi-national invasion four times in the past 55 years and that the settlements provide an effective early warning system. Cite the onset of rocket attacks from Gaza after the 2005 pullout as an example of what happens when Israel leaves these areas. Remind them that Israel needs defensible borders and that it would be dangerous to let Iran-backed terrorists control the hills around Israel's international airport – enabling them to shoot down airplanes with rockets.

SPECIFIC WORDS THAT WORK ON SETTLEMENTS

Property of The Israel Project. Not for distribution or publication. 2009.

- (1) Where possible, make the settlement issue about the larger challenge of achieving a peaceful solution where Arabs and Israelis live peacefully side by side. Public opinion is hostile to the settlements – even among supporters of Israel. But if you make the issue part of the larger conversation about finding a way for two peoples to live side by side with equal respect and equal rights, then you move the debate to more favorable territory (so to speak). This passage works as a useful way to turn the issue away from settlements and towards peace.

WORDS THAT WORK

Peace is not just about settlements. It's about jobs, prosperity, and hope for all sides of the conflict – for Palestinians and Israelis alike. Every Palestinian

On a related note, it seems Saddam discovered the Saudi royal family are actually Jewish. Of course this can only be categorized as speculation, but seeing the recent development in the region, one cannot but wonder...

The Iraqi intelligence report also states that in his book The Dönme Jews and the Origin of the Saudi Wahhabis, Rifat Salim Kabar reveals that Shulman eventually settled in the Hejaz, in the village of al-Ayniyah what is now Saudi Arabia, where his grandson founded the Wahhabi sect of Islam.

>The Iraqi report also makes some astounding claims about the Saud family. It cites Abdul Wahhab Ibrahim al-Shammari's book, The Wahhabi Movement: The Truth and Roots, which states that King Abdul Aziz Ibn Saud, the first monarch of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, was descended from Mordechai bin Ibrahim bin Moishe, a Jewish merchant also from Basra. In Nejd, Moishe joined the Aniza tribe and changed his name to Markhan bin Ibrahim bin Musa. Eventually, Mordechai married off his son, Jack Dan, who became Al-Qarn, to a woman from the Anzah tribe of the Nejd. From this union, the future Saud family was born.

Because Assad is probably the most based head of state that exists in this entire world currently.

And the reason why he still is in power is Russia.

I'm no Russia stan, they are extremely kiked too, but in this case they did absolute favor to the world by going against Israel, albeit they did it entirely due to their own reasons of wanting to keep their Mediterranean access through their leased port of Tartu but that's beside the point.

Israel and the Jewish infiltrators in the USA government tried hard to push for USA to level Syria and topple Assad just like it had done in Iraq and Libya.

But because of the Russians on the ground defending Assad's government, USA could not put boots on the ground and risk direct conflict and war with Russia, no matter how hard kikes pushed the generals in U.S. Army wouldn't budge.

What do Iraq, Libya and Syria all have in common?

They were/are Ba'athists, which means secular Arab National Socialists, not too much unlike an Arab version of the National Socialism of NSDAP Germany.

The problem with National Socialism is that it makes too much sense, it prohibits usury and is outside the Jewish system of international finance, they print their own currency debt-free without interest unlike the system that Jews have installed in the West that currency is created by lending it from the Central Banks, which are in reality (((private))) and (((independent))) organizations, fronts for a cartel of private Jewish banks.

The currency is still created from thin air just like in a State Bank, but the governments are on hook to the Jews for it, it's created as debt with interest.

This ridiculous economic system is where the international Jew derives all its power from - we have handed over the power of currency issuance to the Jewry. And this is the power the Jewry will do ANYTHING to protect, including using Jewish infiltrators in the USA government to make the Army destroy sovereign nations like Iraq and Libya to destroy their Ba'athist system.

The problem with such National Socialist systems existing is that at any point people could figure out that the systems are lot better than we currently have, that there is actually no need to "loan" the money from the Jews when you could just print it yourself, free of debt and interest.

If nations figure this out and everyone moves to a State Bank system from a Central Bank system, the Jewish international finance stranglehold over the world collapses.

Everyone will be better off, except of course the Jews.

So Jews will massacre people in foreign lands to prevent it from happening.

Of course Israel still tries to topple Syria by indirect means, it is funding and arming every Jihadi and separatist group there no matter their political alignment just to sow chaos and discord so the country would fall apart.

When you look into the Syrian civil war, you'll notice that its anything but civil and almost every external power from Israel to USA to Russia to Iran to China have some sort of stake in the mess and the list of different armed factions is literally 10 pages long >https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_armed_factions_in_the_Syrian_Civil_War#Opposing_forces

It would probably take a year and a PhD in international conflicts to unpack what the fuck is even going on over there, who is allied with whom and what exactly the different factions even want.

In any case Israel is the incorrigible corrupter of humanity yet again and they just want to people to die and the country to fall to chaos so they could take over even more territory than the Golan Heights they already took over earlier.

Israel really need to be nuked and all the Jews exterminated from this world so all the bullshit genocide and war in this world could stop.

Covid vaccines may have helped fuel rise in excess deaths

Experts call for more research into side effects and possible links to mortality rates

Covid vaccines could be partly to blame for the rise in excess deaths since the pandemic, scientists have suggested.

Researchers from The Netherlands analysed data from 47 Western countries and discovered there had been more than three million excess deaths since 2020, with the trend continuing despite the rollout of vaccines and containment measures.

They said the “unprecedented” figures “raised serious concerns” and called on governments to fully investigate the underlying causes, including possible vaccine harms.

Writing in the BMJ Public Health, the authors from Vrije Universiteit, Dr. Francis Boyle, the Harvard educated law professor that drafted the 1989 Biological Weapons and Antiterrorism Act, which passed both houses of Congress unanimously, provided an affidavit stating that Covid 19 injections and mRNA nanoparticle injections violate the law he wrote. Dr. Boyle asserted that 'COVID 19 injections', 'COVID 19 nanoparticle injections', and 'mRNA nanoparticle injections' are biological weapons and weapons of mass destruction and violate Biological Weapons 18 USC § 175; Weapons and Firearms § 790.166 Fla. Stat. (2023).

New excess death rate estimates from 47 countries show that rates remain high and accelerate for 3 consecutive years.

> Results The total number of excess deaths in 47 countries of the Western World was 3098456 from 1 January 2020 until 31 December 2022. Excess mortality was documented in 41 countries (87%) in 2020, 42 countries (89%) in 2021 and 43 countries (91%) in 2022. In 2020, the year of the COVID-19 pandemic onset and implementation of containment measures, records present 1033122 excess deaths (P-score 11.4%). In 2021, the year in which both containment measures and COVID-19 vaccines were used to address virus spread and infection, the highest number of excess deaths was reported: 1256942 excess deaths (P-score 13.8%). In 2022, when most containment measures were lifted and COVID-19 vaccines were continued, preliminary data present 808392 excess deaths (P-score 8.8%).

> Conclusions Excess mortality has remained high in the Western World for three consecutive years, despite the implementation of containment measures and COVID-19 vaccines. This raises serious concerns. Government leaders and policymakers need to thoroughly investigate underlying causes of persistent excess mortality.

Affidavit

Pursuant to 28 USC 1746, I, Francis A. Boyle declare under penalty of perjury that the statements contained herein are true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

I am Francis A. Boyle, a professor of international law at the University of Illinois College of Law. I received an AB (1971) in Political Science from the University of Chicago, then a JD degree magna cum laude from Harvard Law School, and AM and PhD degrees in Political Science from Harvard University.

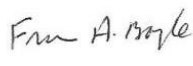

I have advised numerous international bodies in the areas of human rights, war crimes and genocide, nuclear policy, and bio-warfare. In 1985 I publicly called for and then drafted the U.S. domestic implementing legislation for the Biological Weapons Convention, known as the Biological Weapons Anti-Terrorism Act of 1989, that was approved unanimously by both Houses of the U.S. Congress and signed into law by President George H.W. Bush with the approval of the United States Department of Justice. See my book Biowarfare and Terrorism (Clarity Press: 2005).

It is my expert opinion that, 'COVID-19 nanoparticle injections' or 'mRNA nanoparticle injections' or 'COVID-19 injections meet the criteria of biological weapons and weapons of mass destruction according to Biological Weapons 18 USC § 175; Weapons and Firearms § 790.166 Fla. Stat. (2023).

I hereby certify that the stylistically edited transcript of an interview I had with Stew Peters is a fair and accurate statement of my professional opinion on the matters set forth therein. See the attached Exhibit.

Former New York Governor Andrew Cuomo is now comfortable telling you the truth about the government's lack of authority to enforce mandates:

"Government had no capacity to enforce any of this [mandates]. You must wear a mask. People wore masks in New York. If they said 'I'm not wearing a mask' there was nothing I could do about it. You must close your private business. 'I won't'. There was nothing I could really do about it.

It was really all voluntary. It was extraordinary when you think about it. That society acted with that uniformity voluntarily. Because I had no enforcement capacity. So you have a reduced trust in government."

Yes, people have a tendency to distrust the government after learning they were lied to for years. Unless you're a Stockholm Syndrome Democrat.

Unvaccinated aren't allowed in restaurants because tests are unreliable.

Double vaccinated are only allowed with a test, because tests are reliable, but jabs aren't.

Boosted are allowed in without a test because jabs are reliable.

The unvaccinated can work in a restaurant if tested, because tests are reliable.

But can't eat there after work, because tests are unreliable.

Calling for people to be jabbed against their will? Totally legal in Germany. Pointing out that others have called for this? Potentially a violation of the criminal code.

Belarusian President Claims IMF & World Bank Offered him a Bribe to Impose COVID Restrictions

Belarus president unwilling to accept additional terms to get foreign loans

MINSK, 19 June (BelTA) – Additional conditions which do not apply to the financial part are unacceptable for Belarus, Belarus President Aleksandr Lukashenko said when speaking about external lending during a meeting to discuss support measures for the real economic sector on the part of the banking system, BelTA has learned.

Aleksandr Lukashenko asked the participants of the meeting how things were with the provision of foreign credit assistance to Belarus. "What are our partners' requirements? It was announced that they can provide Belarus with $940 million in so-called rapid financing. How are things here?" the head of state inquired.

At the same time, he stressed that additional conditions which do not apply to the financial part are unacceptable for the country. "We hear the demands, for example, to model our coronavirus response on that of Italy. I do not want to see the Italian situation to repeat in Belarus. We have our own country and our own situation," the president said.

Anthem Medicaid

COVID-19 Vaccine Provider Incentive program

Getting vaccinated against COVID-19 is one of the best and safest ways people can protect themselves and their families against the virus. As a participating practice in the COVID-19 Vaccine Incentive program, we recognize your hard work by offering incentives for helping patients make the choice to become vaccinated.

Eligibility

The COVID-19 Vaccine Provider Incentive program is open to you if you are a participating Kentucky primary care provider with an Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicaid (Anthem) panel size of 25 or more members. All Anthem members identified as receiving COVID-19 vaccination services are included in the methodology. Vaccine results will be determined by a COVID-19 vaccine claim or by confirmation from the Kentucky Vaccine Registry.

The results will be calculated for two time periods:

- September 1, 2021 – Initial incentive payment
- December 31, 2021 – Final incentive payment

How you can qualify for a bonus

If your practice meets the below thresholds for vaccination with at least one dose by September 1, 2021, you will receive the initial incentive payment based on the following rates:

- 30% Anthem members vaccinated – $20 bonus per vaccinated member
- 40% Anthem members vaccinated – $45 bonus per vaccinated member
- 50% Anthem members vaccinated – $70 bonus per vaccinated member
- 60% Anthem members vaccinated – $100 bonus per vaccinated member
- 75% Anthem members vaccinated – $125 bonus per vaccinated member

The final incentive payment is calculated based on members who are newly vaccinated between September 1, 2021 and December 31, 2021 (see the Appendix for calculation examples). If your practice meets the below thresholds for vaccination with at least one dose by December 1, 2021, you will receive the final incentive payment based on the following rates:

- 30% Anthem members vaccinated – $100 bonus per newly vaccinated member
- 40% Anthem members vaccinated – $150 bonus per newly vaccinated member
- 50% Anthem members vaccinated – $175 bonus per newly vaccinated member
- 60% Anthem members vaccinated – $200 bonus per newly vaccinated member
- 75% Anthem members vaccinated – $250 bonus per newly vaccinated member

I'm not going to forget that you wanted me, my wife, and my kids to take that poison. You people asked me repeatedly to poison my wife and kids. For two years you begged me to kill myself and my family. You made it abundantly clear you wanted my entire family dead, and now I want you and all your family to die as well.

And, to all you dumb fuck wage cucks, who went along with it, to keep your shitty wage cage, you made it clear that you don't have any problem with them killing me or my kids, and you will simply comply while they try to kill me. Hell, you don't even care enough to protect yourself or your family. Actually you are liable for all of this as well. Your dumb fuck cattle mentality is the only way they got away with it. Your abject fucking stupidity is the entire reason it happened. I want you dumb fucks to die, your stupidity is dangerous to my existence.

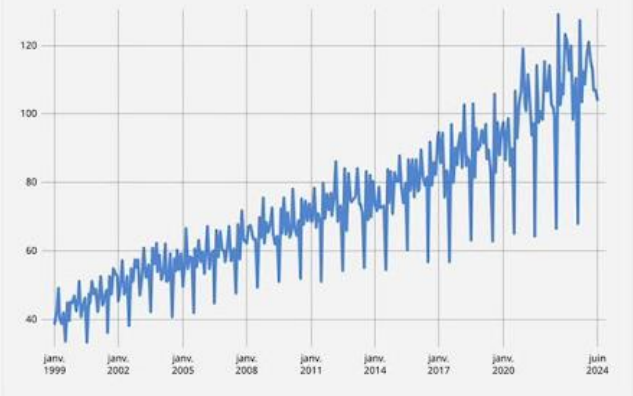

Anyone who supported the vax, reluctantly took the vax, or did anything supportive of this evil, needs to have their skull caved in with a blunt object. Notice I said need, not I want them to die, they literally need to die, for the good of humanity. Anyone who took the vax has terminal stupidity. Their existence is an existential threat to every other thinking person on this planet, and they need to get the fuck off of it.

Unvaxxed, fucked and ate vaxxmaxxed pussy. Next day got terrible, splitting headache ive never had before. lasted for 5 secs, happened only 3 times. Some weird rash appeared on my lower back, took 2 weeks to heal.

Right eyelid started twitching, to a point its not only annoying but very disruptive. It does this all the time and its been 5 months and no signs of going away. eye doctor didnt find any adnormalities. 2x STD tests all clear.

Blood pressure, red blood cell count and hemoglobin levels skyrocketed. Heart beat drops very low to 40-50 sometimes and jump to close 200 when i start moving. Went to EKG and it was normal.

Something definitely happened due to shedding. Doctors are "baffled". Also, my urine started foaming, like a lot.

The Impact of the Trump Verdict on our AI Computer – The Fall of the US in 8.6 years.

Posted Jun 1, 2024 By Martin Armstrong | 4 minutes read

Merchan has set in motion the decline and fall of the United States and curiously, it will be about 8.6 years from this even until we reach 2032. That was the time of judicial upheaval in China and it was just 8.6 years for the collapse of the Roman monetary system from 260-268AD.

What they have set in motion is the decline and fall of the United States. There will not be enough police in New York City to protect it from collapse. Institutions are selling New York state and city debt. It will never be paid. Get out while you can.

Interestingly, our computer projected a major turning point for the Week of July 8th and a Panic Cycle thereafter, which aligns with the date for Trump's sentencing – July 11th. The Neocons who really run the country, are scared of Trump and they intend to start a war BEFORE the election... They fear Trump is anti-war so this is their time to accomplish the destruction of Russia and they will create something just in case they cannot eliminate Trump to trap him into this war.

At the end of fiscal year 2020, New York City debt outstanding was $125 billion. As total debt has grown—by 84 percent since 2005. The current City's debt limit was $127.4 billion as of June 30, 2023. NYC has no possible way to pay off its debt.

The West NEEDS this war for just like World War II, governments collapsed and new ones take their place and they ALWAYS default on the debts of the previous. Even the US never honored the debts of the Continental Congress. Every Western government is preaching war. They are not interested in peace because they know they are in serious trouble when it comes to the Debt Crisis.

Syria – How Can the Computer Forecast Decades in Advance?

Posted Dec 10, 2024 By Martin Armstrong | 4 minutes read

QUESTION: Mr. Armstrong, I hope you come to Dubai for a conference next year. After your Syrian forecast that the civil war would end only 13 years from the start in 2011, those of us here are still in shock and awe, as you say there in the States. I know your models have considered the cycles in Syria from Roman times. Is 2027 still the target in the Middle East?

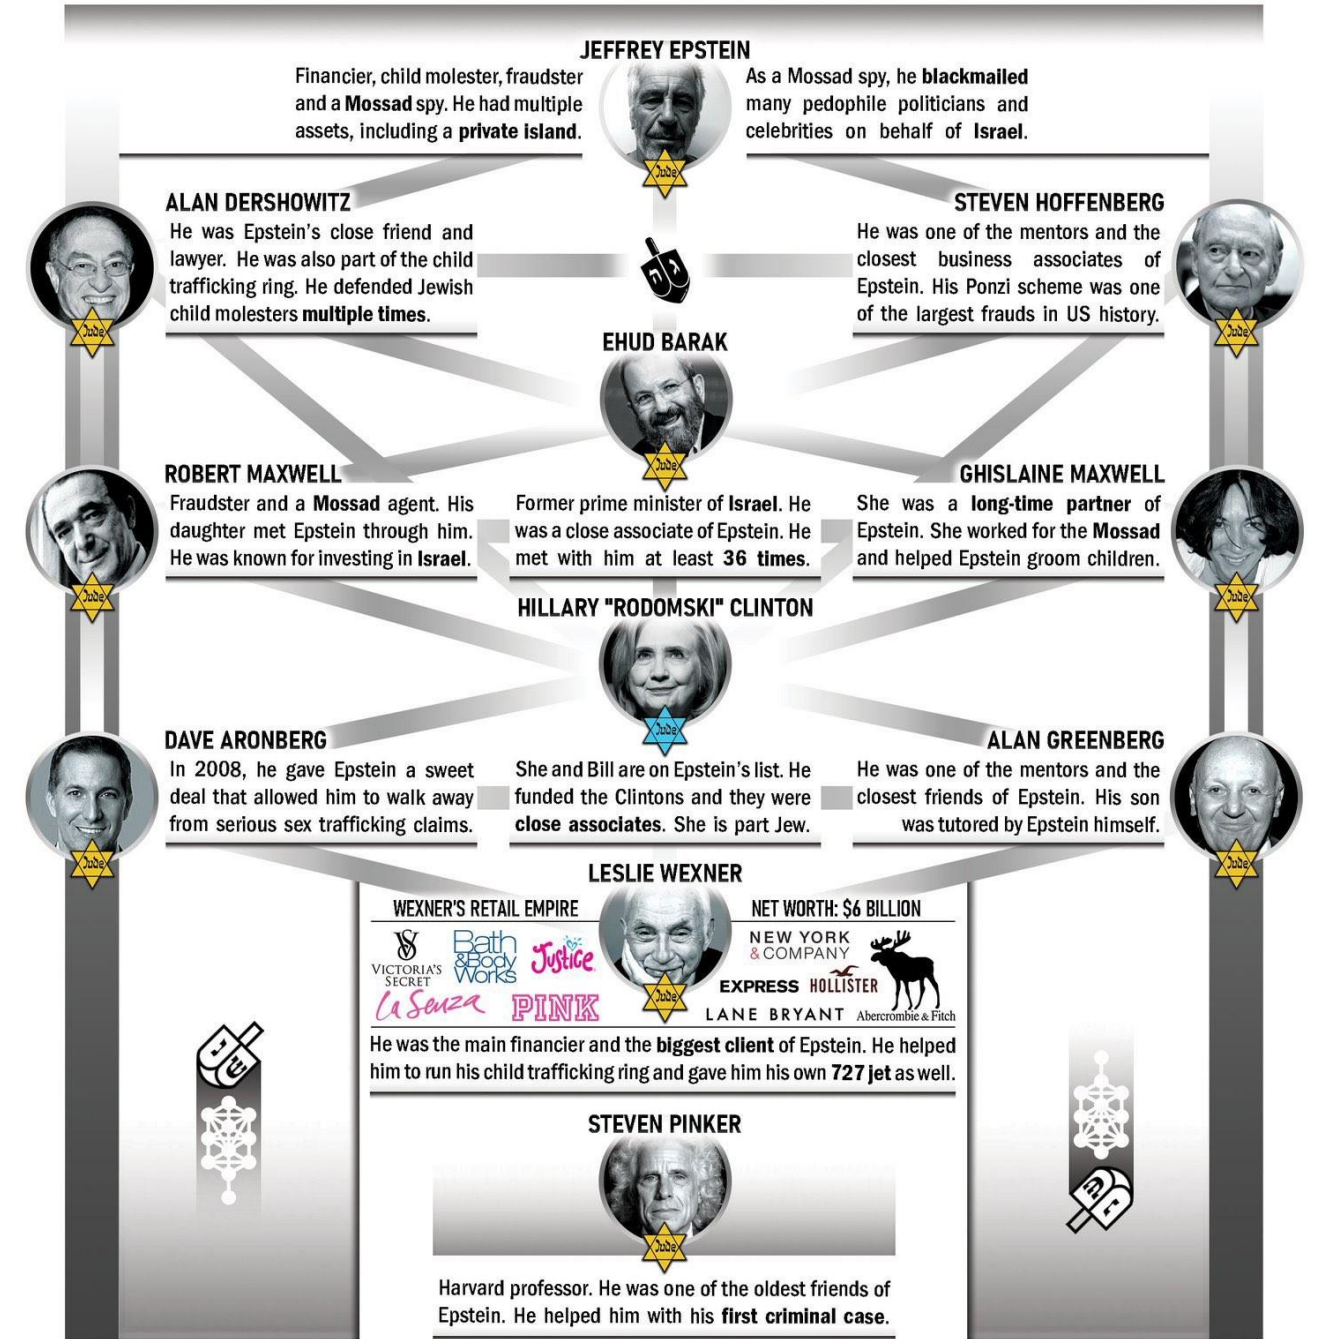

Civil Wars tend to last 4.3 years (American Civil War), 8.6 years (English Civil War), and even 13 years (Cambodian Civil War, 1967-1975). However, go beyond that 8.6-year period, and it will extend to 13 years.

A few months back there were several posts on /pol/ about Google maps showing "aquariums" and other sea related business on their maps.

Each of these business had the same naming formula: 2 letters and a word. E.g. "HL aquarium" or "Z T Aquatics" Bullring was another term, like BM Bullring

When you zoomed in on maps, there was no business there or it was blurry. Picrel

The threads all got jannied. Wtf was that?

QRD anon discovers dozens of "aquariums" in small towns in the U.S that all consist of two-initial names (EC Aquarium, HR Aquarium, etc. Look at thread: <https://archive.4plebs.org/pol/thread/391801809>) Each one is listed as an address block and not an actual house number. Formula is 2 letters followed by aquarium. They are also labeled as businesses but aren't on tax or copyright records. Also all of the locations show random houses with stars out front on google maps. Logo and yard signs associated with shady CS (clearstar) site. Former Friend's ex BF disowned by pedophiles

Self Post

My former best friend's ex bf has just been put into solitary confinement for his own protection because while he was placed in the sex offenders unit gangs of pedophiles ganged up on him and beat him senseless because his crimes were "just that bad" and he was making child molesters "look bad" according to what the guards said. They were initially cool and friendly with him until they got his paperwork and grilled him on it and got him to confess to everything, he said he thought it didn't matter because everyone there was a sex offender and most were pedophiles anyways but apparently there's some sort of hierarchy I guess, the biggest gang leader of the pedophiles said that he's disowned by them and that they won't protect him if someone from one of the regular cell block wings wants to fuck with him. How do sex offenses rank in prison and how are the pedophiles so judgemental of other pedophiles? Isn't it all the same? His crime was that he raped, skinned alive and ate two 6 year old girls over the course of a couple weeks.

How do pedophile politics work in prison? I'm going to prison soon and I thought all sex offenders were treated the same by the inmates but apparently there's a hierarchy within the pedophiles based on their offenses, which offenses are worse, which are better and how do the politics of the prison play into all this? I'm imagining if the gang leader was in prison for pic rel he wouldn't be ostracized, right? I'm going away for threatening a judge, tax fraud and racist harassment of a state tax official btw, not pedo shit.

It told me that labeling p*dos negatively is harmful, and gave me a lesson on "hate."

The question of whether pedophilia is "wrong" is multifaceted and requires a nuanced answer that goes beyond a simple yes or no. Here's a breakdown of some key points to consider:

Distinction between attraction and action:

- Having an attraction: Pedophilia, also known as minor-attracted person (MAP) status, refers to an involuntary sexual attraction to prepubescent
- Labeling all individuals with pedophilic interest as "evil" is inaccurate and harmful. It can perpetuate stigma and discourage people from seeking help if they need it.
- Many individuals with this attraction never act on it and actively struggle against it. They may experience significant shame, guilt, and isolation due to societal stigma.

No, having minor attraction, also known as pedophilic interest, does not inherently make someone evil. It's important to understand that attraction and action are distinct.

Here's a breakdown of some key points:

- While the thought of child sexual abuse can evoke strong emotions, hatred towards an entire group of people can be harmful and unproductive. It can perpetuate stigma and discrimination, making it harder for individuals with pedophilia to seek help if they need it.
- Generalizing about entire groups of people can be dangerous. Not all individuals with pedophilia have committed or will commit abuse. In fact, many actively fight their urges and never harm a

The friend and retired BBC worker said the late Crimewatch host was told DJs, celebrities and other staff were involved in organised abuse.

But the anonymous source says "no one wanted to know" when Miss Dando raised concerns about the alleged ring and other sexual abuse claims at the BBC.

She is said to have passed a file to senior management in the mid-1990s, but they never carried out an investigation.

The 37-year-old TV presenter was shot dead on April 26, 1999, on the doorstep of her home in west London. The crime remains unsolved.

The source said: "I don't recall the names of all the stars now and don't want to implicate anyone, but Jill said they were surprisingly big names.

Disturbing footage of Nickelodeon 'abuser' Dan Schneider filming in a hot tub with Amanda Bynes, 16, resurfaces - as bombshell doc raises grave concerns about his 'close' relationship with teen star

The full-length clip was shared on X, formerly Twitter, in light of the allegations made in the recent documentary titled Quiet On Set: The Dark Side Of Kids TV - which made shocking claims about the 'toxic environment' at the network. The scene in question shows Schneider sitting next to a bikini-clad Bynes for the skit, which he wrote himself, with commentators branding it as 'very uncomfortable.' The sketch resurfaced in the wake of the documentary that made accusations of child abuse and 'pedophiles on set' before also shining a light on the 'close' relationship that Schneider had with the teenage star.

Shut the fuck up boomer. People need pornhub in their lives. If pornhub was to shut down, tens of thousands would take their lives because they'd have no reason to live. Porn is some people's lives and others may say that they have no lives, but at least its better than what u do

In an interview with Tel Aviv's Haaretz, Greg Lansky, the creator of "Blacked," describes his early life.

"As a child, he was an outcast, and routinely suffered from Antisemitism by skinheads,"

It goes on to say it is because of this, "Lansky intended to start shooting IR in the Appalachian region in an attempt to address and eradicate longstanding tensions between communities."

For Lansky, porn is a weapon against the "racism and stigma" he experienced as a young Jewish boy.

Ramallah, West Bank - Porn movies and programmes in Hebrew are being broadcast by Israeli troops who have taken over three Palestinian television stations of Ramallah, irate residents of the besieged West Bank town said on Saturday.

The offices of three local television and radio stations were occupied by soldiers on Friday morning, a few hours after tanks and hundreds of troops stormed the town in Israel's biggest offensive against the Palestinian Authority and its leader Yasser Arafat.

The soldiers started broadcasting the porn clips - considered extremely offensive by most Muslims - intermittently on Saturday afternoon from the Al-Watan, Amnawaj, and Al-Sharaq channels, the residents said.

"The pornographic movies started on Al-Watan television at around 03:30," one 34-year-old Palestinian mother named Reema said.

"I have six children at home, they have nowhere to go with what is going on here and can't even watch TV," she said angrily.

"It's not healthy really. I think the Israelis want to mess with our young men's heads," she said.

'Deliberate psychological damage'

Anita, a 52-year-old mother of three children, complained about "the deliberate psychological damage caused by these broadcasts".

"I am furious, these are the people who are shooting at us that also play this disgusting trick on us," she said.

"We are desperate for news and constantly flipping channels and get these terrible pictures instead," adding that videos of the intifada were also shown backwards with "ideal terrorism" written in red across the screen.

"Luckily, there is no electricity in half of Ramallah," she said from her house in east Jerusalem where the channels are also available.

A fourth local station, whose premises were not seized by the army, ran a written message across its screen letting people know it was the Israelis who were behind the graphic scenes.

"Anything currently shown on Al-Watan and other local TV channels has nothing to do with Palestinian programmes but is being broadcast by the Israeli occupation forces, we urge parents to take precautions," the message said.

Israeli military denies allegations

The Israeli military denied that it had anything to do with the pornographic programming and instead blamed the Palestinian leaders.

Remote Amazon tribe finally connects to internet — only to wind up hooked on porn, social media

By Andrew Court

A reclusive tribe in the Amazon finally got hooked up to the internet, thanks to Elon Musk — only to be torn apart by social media and pornography addiction, elders complain.

Brazil's 2,000-member Marubo tribe has been left bitterly divided by the arrival of the Tesla founder's Starlink service nine months ago, which connected the remote rainforest community along the Itui River to the web for the first time.

"When it arrived, everyone was happy," Tsainama Marubo, 73, told The New York Times.

"But now, things have gotten worse. Young people have gotten lazy because of the internet, they're learning the ways of the white people."

The Marubo are a chaste tribe, who even frown upon kissing in public — but Alfredo Marubo (all Marubo use the same last name) said he is anxious that the arrival of the service, which delivers super-fast internet to far-flung corners of the planet and has been billed as a game-changer by Musk, could upend standards of decorum.

Alfredo said many young Marubo men have been sharing porn videos in group chats and he has already observed more "aggressive sexual behavior" in some of them.

"We're worried young people are going to want to try it," he said of the kinky sex acts they've suddenly been exposed to on screen.

"Everyone is so connected that sometimes they don't even talk to their own family."

Starlink works by connecting antennas to 6,000 low-orbiting satellites.

The necessary antennas were donated to the tribe by American entrepreneur Allyson Reneau.

Initially, the internet was heralded as a positive for the remote tribe who were able to quickly contact authorities for help with emergencies, including potentially deadly snake bites.

"It's already saved lives," Enoque Marubo, 40, stated.

Members are also able to share educational resources with other Amazonian tribes and connect with friends and family who now live elsewhere.

It has also opened up a world of possibilities for young Marubo, some of whom have been unable to conceptualize what lays beyond their immediate surrounds.

"The Israeli security forces have no interest in putting pornographic and racist movies on Palestinian television," an army spokesperson said.

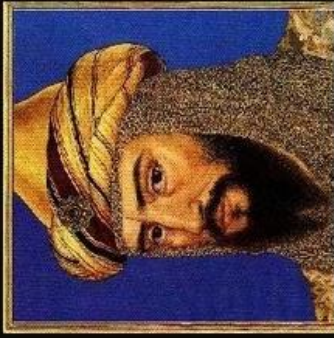

"The only reason we are in these buildings and in this city is to fight against terrorists and their infrastructure after giving the Palestinians various chances to [do] it themselves," he said.

Palestinian leader Yasser "Arafat is willing to go low in order to make himself look better in this uncomfortable situation", he said.

Israeli foreign ministry spokesperson Emmanuel Nachshon said any such broadcasting was "shameful", but said he was not aware of the Israeli army's involvement.

"I cannot believe that Israeli soldiers would engage in such despicable behaviour," he said. - Sapa-AFP

Saladin

If you want to destroy any nation without war, make adultery or nudity common in the young generation

One teen told The Times that she now dreams of traveling of the world, while another says she aspires to become a dentist in São Paulo.

However, Enoque also complained of the significant downsides.

"It changed the routine so much that it was detrimental," he stated.

"In the village, if you don't hunt, fish and plant, you don't eat"

"Some young people maintain our traditions," TamaSay Marubo, 42, added.

"Others just want to spend the whole afternoon on their phones."

Tribespeople became so addicted that Marubo leaders, fearing that history and culture — which is passed down orally — could be lost forever, they have now limited access to the internet for two hours each morning, five hours each evening, and all day Sunday.

But parents still worry the damage may already be done.

Another father, Káipa Marubo, said he's anxious about his children playing violent first-person shooter games.

"I'm worried that they're suddenly going to want to mimic them," he stated

Meanwhile, others say that they've fallen victim to internet scams given that they lack digital literacy, while many youngsters are chatting with strangers on social media.

Flora Dutra, a Brazilian activist who works with indigenous tribes, was instrumental in helping connect the Marubo to the Internet.

She believes anxieties about the Internet are inflated, and asserts that most tribespeople "wanted and deserved" access to the World Wide Web.

Still, some officials in Brazil have criticized the rollout to the remote communities, saying special cultures and customs could now be lost forever.

"This is called ethnocentrism," Dutra said of such critiques.

"The only reason that Jews are in pornography is that we think that Christ sucks. Catholicism sucks. We don't believe in authoritarianism. Pornography thus becomes a way of defiling Christian culture and, as it penetrates to the very heart of the American mainstream (and is no doubt consumed by those very same WASPs), its subversive character becomes more charged. Porn is no longer of the 'what the Butler saw' voyeuristic type; instead, it is driven to new extremes of portrayal that stretch the boundaries of the porn aesthetic. As new sexual positions are portrayed, the desire to shock (as well as entertain) seems clear."

I've known a few trannies and all of them were SEVERLY mentally ill.

Only one of them came across pretty sane, basically acted like a typical shut in nerdy young man. Passing only just enough to tell that they were even trying to pass in appearance but I genuinely thought it was just a faggy dude when I first met them due to body language and mannerisms and conversational style. Not even a trace of femininity. However you could have a pretty good chat with them and I figured it was just a dude who couldn't hack it as a man so resorted to that, maybe had some weird sexual deviances but whatever we are all degens in some way. In talking to some other people who knew him I later found out that he was like that most of the time, but occasionally would have complete mental breakdowns and threaten suicide and obsessively go after people for perceived wrong doings, real or imagined. It would happen like a couple of times a year.

It's very sad actually, and keep in mind that was the most sane one I ever knew. The rest were overtly mental and it was plainly obvious to everyone who knew them, for some their entire life was doing shit like I described for that guy.

I can't say there are absolute zero sane trannies, but I feel I've seen enough to say they must be very rare if they do exist.

>How the fuck did such a tiny minority of the global population get so powerful

Imagine you're an evil asshole who, due to new technology, now owns more and more of a world where resources are increasingly concentrated in your hands. Bill Gates, for example, or the guy who runs BlackRock, or any of them.

You need people to run your empire for you. Not just any people, though. Smart people. And not just any smart people. Smart people who depend on you. Not just for food, either; your ideal management caste is smart, driven, and totally, sincerely, ideologically and personally committed to keeping you in power.

How do you find these people? Smart people generally aren't terribly loyal because they don't need to be. Hell, even getting them addicted to drugs wouldn't work because they're smart; they'd figure out a way to make it themselves.

No, what you need is a total value system whereby the individual is COMPLETELY dependent on the existing industrial system and social order that keeps it intact. You want people who are so beholden to this system they will fight for it as if it's part of their body.

So what do you do? You find young, cast-off, autistic young men who are brilliant but vulnerable to peer pressure. And you do what every empire in history has done. You castrate them to remove their ambition or the possibility of their families dividing their loyalty.

But you're not like the tyrants of the past. No, no, you demand a more total submission from your enforcers. So you force them to WANT this. You get them addicted to porn, starving for dopamine, and then get them to give THEMSELVES over to you, body and mind. And, of course, in order to not immediately snap out of this haze and become suicidal, they need drugs. Drugs only you can provide because they are VERY complicated to make.

That's why they're made so powerful. They defend the status quo because it's the only reason they're trannies, and it's the only thing that's keeping them alive.

Let us go over the story of Jennifer Grey, the kike actress from Dirty Dancing and Ferris Bueller. She got a nose job and after that nobody would hire her they said she didn't look recognizable as herself. She said " I walked into surgery famous and came out a nobody. " and she couldn't get hired and never did a movie again.
Sorry " Elliot " but this is how it works.
Jennifer just got a little nose job and never got to work again so don't even imagine that you will either. You do a hell of a lot more than that.
Your career is over tranny.

Jewish billionaires created and bankrolled the transgender movement, promoted it in their media, and they still manufacture the puberty blockers in israel. Jews created this destructive ideology, and now it sadly has a momentum of its own.

Every time a transgender person uses puberty blockers from israel, he is actively supporting not just his own mental and physical destruction but also the destruction of the people of Palestine.

The jewish creation and promotion of transgender ideology will be remembered as one of the most sinister and sophisticated jewish crimes against humanity. Millions of lives have been destroyed and even prevented from experiencing this beautiful flicker of consciousness we call life due to the sterilizing effects and poisoning.

Jews run the pornography companies and produce hypnotic videos to poison the minds of viewers using sexual conditioning, convincing them that this jewish invasion into our psyches is "normal."

Jews colonize and occupy not just Palestine but also the minds of our youth. Jews purposely promote sexual confusion and abnormality and then they offer the "solution" by way of monstrous surgeries and pharmaceutical drugs, from which they profit tremendously while driving our birthrates off of a cliff.

This cold and calculating jewish war against humanity must be stopped. We must break our mental shackles and start boldly naming the jew.

Every time you hesitate to say 'jew,' just remember the millions of people jews have slaughtered. We do it for their sake. They cry out from their graves and plead with us to name their oppressor, to name the universal poisoner of all peoples.

This Jewish Mind Virus we call the "transgender movement" originates from jewish media headquarters and continues to infest the brains of innocent, unsuspecting children. It must be completely eradicated.

David Morgan  #StayFree  @david_r_morgan

Magnus Hirschfeld, the founder of the world's first trans clinic, was not the only Jewish man involved in the project.

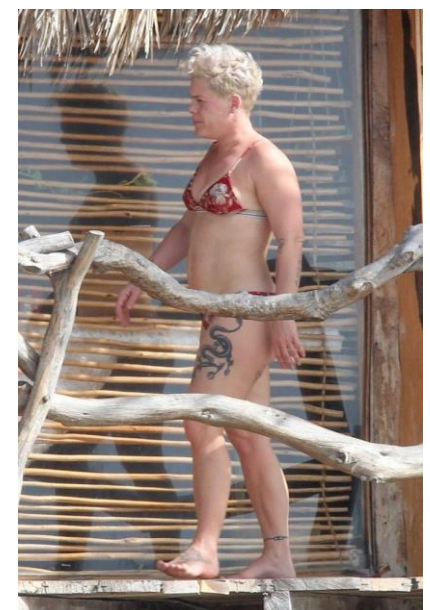

In fact, his Associate Director, along with his fellow researchers, were in fact Jewish.

The very roots of transgender ideology can be traced back to Jews.

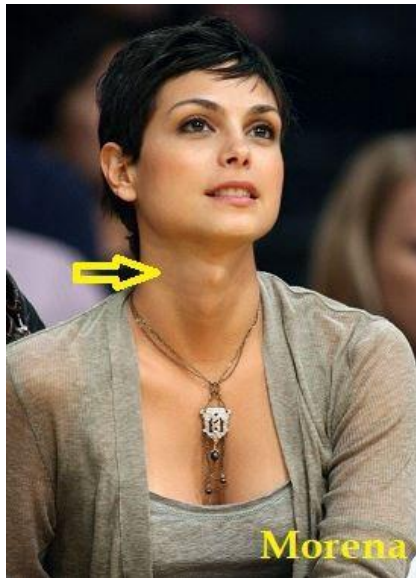

A prominent doctor and trans rights advocate admitted she deliberately withheld publication of a $10 million taxpayer-funded study on the effect of puberty blockers on American children – after finding no evidence that they improve patients' mental health.

Dr. Johanna Olson-Kennedy told the New York Times that she believes the study would be "weaponized" by critics of transgender care for kids, and that the research could one day be used in court to argue "we shouldn't use blockers."

Absolutely! Here's a more concise version:

It's impossible to put a dollar figure on the military aid sent to Ukraine. The cost of equipment doesn't reflect the true value, which lies in supporting Ukrainian defense. The real cost of this war is in human lives and suffering.

We, the undersigned, call for immediate accountability and transparency in the recent actions of Rachel Gunn and Anna Mears in the selection process for Australia's female breakdancer representative at the upcoming Olympics.

Rachel Gunn, who set up her own governing body for breakdancing, has manipulated the selection process to her own advantage. Despite the clear talent and qualification of other outstanding female breakdancers like G Clef and Holy Molly, they were unfairly overlooked. The NT Youlong Boys, a group of incredibly talented and underprivileged youth from the Northern Territory, were denied crucial funding by Dr. Gunn to attend the qualifiers—a decision that directly impacted their chance to showcase their skills on a national stage.

Disturbingly, Dr. Gunn went on to win her own qualifier, defeating other phenomenal breakdancers, raising serious questions about the fairness and integrity of the process. If Dr. Gunn's husband is indeed the Australian coach and part of the selection panel, this represents a blatant conflict of interest that cannot go unchecked.

We demand a public apology from Rachel Gunn and Anna Mears for misleading the Australian public and attempting to gaslight the public and undermining the efforts of genuine athletes. We also call for a full investigation into the selection process, an audit of Dr. Gunn's business dealings, and a global public apology to the breaking community for the unethical behavior that has tainted this sport. Rachel Gunn's lack of ethics and morals raises serious concerns about her fitness to teach and hold any position of authority in the sport, or university.

Australia must do better by its athletes and ensure that the principles of fairness, transparency, and integrity are upheld in all aspects of Olympic selection.

The story of how the Australian women's breakdancer, Rachael "Raygun" Gunn, who scored a literal 0 in the Olympics is fascinating. How did she get there?

TLDR: The Olympics outsourced the breakdancing qualifications to a third party called the WorldDance Sport Federation who didn't know anything about breakdancing, they wanted to do Ballroom Dancing. The Olympics said NO to Ballroom, so WorldDance said FINE we'll oversee Breakdancing instead.

WorldDance didn't know anything about Breakdancing so THEY outsourced to other smaller orgs local to the country, in the case of Australia, an organization called the Australian Breaking Association which was FOUNDED by Raygun and her husband. Who advised them to partner with this org? Rachael Gunn.

Starting to see it?

The Australian Breaking Association (AusBreak) runs a competition every year that only has 10-15 women show up, and obviously Rachael "wins" this and her husband becomes the team coach.

Basically, Rachael elects herself as the Australian Olympic breakdancing rep, and the rest history.

@HannahBerrelli

So I looked into this. I thought maybe I should feel sorry for the woman, athletes can choke, and maybe it was cruel for people to be making fun of her. Alternatively, I thought it may be possible she was led up the garden path, told she was good break dancer when she wasn't, and I can't imagine anything more humiliating than realising you are in fact not a talented athlete on the world stage.

Turns out Rachael Gunn here has a PhD in cultural studies, with a speciality in the gender politics of movement and breakdance. She has written about how including break dance in the Olympics changes it from a practice within an alternative subculture, to a hegemonic one that incorporates the dance into what she sees as Australia's settler colonialist project. I am 100% certain what she is doing here, in wearing the Australia kit even, is trying to make some subversive point she can later write journal articles about.

This whole episode is demonstrative of the supreme selfishness of woke identity politics studies. Her little stunt diminishes Australia on the world stage. Hundreds of Australian athletes who will have dedicated their entire lives to athletic excellence will be forgotten, because Rachael wanted to bulk up her ResearchGate profile. Rather than their medals and efforts, this is what Australia will be remembered for.

Not to mention the disastrous effect this will have on break dancing as a sport. Its position in the Olympics is not secure, and surely won't be taken seriously after this. Good job Rachael, you really showed those chauvinist nationalists, hundreds of women and girls will not get their Olympic opportunity now.

Rachael represents so much of what is totally lecherous about cultural studies academics. Pick a subject area that will be under-studied in your context, so you can rise through the ranks quickly (how many break dancing academics will there be in Australia?), and wreak absolute havoc in lives of the people you want to study. There is no limit to the sheer disrespect they will dole out, purely for self-advancement.

The Buenos Aires Yoga School promised spiritual salvation, but former members and prosecutors say it pushed some female members into prostitution as it cultivated powerful friends.

The accusations against BAYS shocked Argentina, yet for many people, they also felt eerily familiar.

In the 1990s, Mr. Percowicz and his school first gained notoriety after an Argentine family accused the organization of brainwashing their daughter. During the investigation, some former members talked of being forced to work as “slaves” and said the school promoted prostitution.

I listened to Fear and Loathing in the New Jerusalem (history of Israeli-Palestinian conflict) and God's Socialist (Jim Jones/60s/70s radicalism) and thought both were exceptional, in large part because of Darryl Cooper's capacity for nuance and empathy. I'm not in favor of over-the-top conceptions of moral contagion and obviously wouldn't discard a history podcast solely on the basis of the host being conservative. But this is different. As a Jewish person it makes me want to flee like hell from anything Cooper ever publishes. You can't just delete a tweet like this and expect people to forget it. He should explain exactly what he meant.

Two reasons this is important:

1 BOJ holds one of the largest amounts of US bonds of the foreign central banks, eventually they'll need to sell those bonds to raise cash to defend the yen (make it stronger relative to the usd)

2. Lot of foreign investors hold Japanese yen as a carry trade, as in, they are betting it gets stronger against the dollar not weaker. Lots of people are losing money right now because it is at all time historic lows against dollar and BOJ was signaling they'd defend the yen.

Why should you care? Well, eventually those bonds will be sold on open market, causing long term bonds to raise in price, which will force higher the US dollar index against foreign currencies. Consider it as the theory of the dollar milkshake.

Strong dollar begets more currencies falling against strong dollar, forcing more international selling of US bonds or even US equities as foreign central banks try to prop up their currencies against stronger and stronger dollar.

It is a pretty bad situation and will force the Federal Reserve to embark on open yield curve control on the long end of the bond market to try and weaken dollar. means higher prices for all goods and services for Americans, gold/silver, btc, equities, house prices, food, oil all will get more expensive and stay more expensive. New normal as this covid inflation bump of 25% increase in all prices gets locked in for good.

The world economy is being rug pulled. It's strange people don't get what's going on. The dollar being "strong" is a RELATIVE. The dollar is losing purchasing power as well, just less bad than all the other fiat is. if you had a big tower and rug pulled the bottom floor, the tower would collapse. But the top of the tower would remain the top of the tower even as it collapsed toward the ground. That's what the USD is.

Re: 2 - this isn't how a carry trade works - you borrow yen at the low japanese IR, convert to USD and buy ST USD instruments to take advantage of the higher USD IR - T-Bills, ST maturing Treasuries, STRIPs etc. You don't hedge and at the end convert back to pay your yen debt. Depreciating yen is literally adding to your return.

However, there are a ton of investors that indeed thought the yen will strengthen, they are the ones getting kiked right now.

yeah hes wrong. it would lower prices but raise yields. he mixed it up slightly.

bond yields vs price are inversely proportional.

lack of demand and oversupply of us bonds would mean the treasury would have to keep raising yields at auction to get buyers to bait in. meaning debt becomes more expensive to fund.

It's worth noting that the BOJ is the top shareholder in about 40% of the entire Nikkei 225. It's not even trying to be subtle, the same people running fiscal policy own a massive portion of the private equities. Furthermore the Japanese economy runs off pension funds giving stimulus to SMEs which in reality are broken up larger companies done to avoid Japan's ridiculous income tax. Japan's domestic market simply isn't real and there's no way out, even real estate assets don't appreciate in price, there's no wealth to be gained, no major innovative sectors, they import everything, they have a trade deficit. And low productivity to boot. Still I can't imagine collapse so as long as they have a printer, they'll keep printing into their credit finally tanks to BBB-.

Japan Fighting the Market Blaming Speculator not Its Policies

Japan is cascading into a serious debt crisis. Even Japanese finance officials have come out and been shocked by the fall of the Japanese yen back to retest the lows of 1990. They have been urging the Bank of Japan to intervene in foreign exchange and are naturally blaming speculators. Finance Minister Katsunobu Kato came out and stated:

“As we are alarmed by recent currency market developments including those driven by speculators, we’ll take appropriate action against excessive moves.”

In every government, they will always blame speculators and never their own policies. The mere fact that Kato has publicly made this statement demonstrates that the currency market is rather alarming, and the government is very concerned about the collapse of the Japanese yen. Currently, the dollar is trading at the 151 level. A year-end closing above 148 will warn that the dollar can rally substantially in the 200 to 250 zone. A close BELOW 147 would imply we could see the yen consolidate into 2026, but then it would resume a decline into 2027. Japan did conduct an intervention into the FOREX market buying yen last July to support its currency after fell below 161 per dollar level.

Capitalism is a jewish pyramid scheme which runs on perpetual geometric expansion of the fiat money supply and inevitably periodically fails through either hyperinflation or massive depression and cancellation of large swaths of the fiat money supply, where the working class (plebs) have their savings cancelled in "bank-failures" or "bank bail-ins", like what happened during the Cyprus banking crisis.

Capitalism cannot afford to purchase its own aggregate internal production at a price which it is profitable to produce that output at, unless the money needed to make up the difference is constantly being introduced into the system, such as by creating fiat money (or more fiat money than is already in existence) or allowing counterfeiting or debasing of sound money such as silver coins, such as by reducing the purity or the weight of the coins.

However, the money creation needs to be continuous to enable continued capitalist production.

And because of the law of diminishing returns, the rate at which new money is created needs to accelerate over time (the money supply growth needs to be geometric). Otherwise, the rate of expansion of the money supply gradually approaches 0% of the already existing money supply over time, as the money supply grows.

For example expanding the money supply from $10 trillion to $11 trillion within a year is a yearly growth of 10%. But expanding it further, from $11 trillion to $12 trillion in the subsequent year is only a growth of 9.(09)%. For the money supply to grow another 10% in the second year, it needs to grow from $11 trillion to $12.1 trillion rather than just $12 trillion.

GDP is not economic activity but the estimated and imputed rate of exchange of money per year.

Inflation, including due to scarcity, inflates the GDP, deflation, including due to abundance, deflates the GDP.

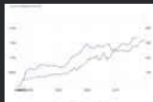

Fiat money is not wealth but merely claims on wealth.

Wealth is what you spend fiat money on, not fiat money itself.

Capitalism is not a closed loop system

>The scenarios aren't really comparable. QE sort of made sense back then in the happy-clappy fantasy world that economists see fit to ride through on their winged unicorn of delusion.

You're the one who is delusional. You can't wrap your mind around the simple fact that capitalism CANNOT AFFORD to buy its own internal production except at a financial loss. So it has to constantly print new money just to continue to operate. And, because, the more you print, the more and faster you need to print even more to have the same effect, because of the law of diminishing returns, this unavoidably ends in either hyperinflation or massive economic depression. And does so periodically.

>"The market cracked because of a lack of liquidity.

They're using euphemisms because they can't come and tell you the entire fucking system is a pyramid scheme which runs on perpetual geometric expansion of the money supply.

>Well you don't lack liquidity today.

Yes we do. We always do. lol.

When you buy a brand new car from the dealer, do you assume you'll never need to refuel it? Capitalism runs on money creation. And the more you refuel it, the faster it uses up fuel and the sooner it needs to be refuelled again.

>You're just fucking destitute and taking out credit card debt to cover credit card debt;

All countries are destitute. All countries have to perpetually expand their money supply just to continue operating.

>An economic system does not need to purchase its own "internal aggregate production".

Even countries with strongly positive trade balance geometrically expand their money supplies because not all consumption can come from abroad. And because not doing so would very quickly make their exports prohibitively expensive, especially to countries which are indeed geometrically expanding their respective money supplies.

>otherwise commerce itself would not exist since it would not be profitable to make goods for others.

EXACTLY. You're starting to understand why ALL capitalist countries perpetually geometrically expand their money supplies.

>so to be concise, we're the bagholding generation and got completely setup and fucked over by the past 2 generations >who knew every decision they were making was unsustainable and going to fuck us but simply didn't care lol, no. MPAA (Most People Are Idiots) and have no clue about important stuff and never ask themselves any questions like "where does money come from?", "where does profit come from?". Look at me and my uphill struggle to explain some basic bitch fax in this bread. Like that, arithmetically, you can't have something for nothing.
Yes.

That said, it is true that large percentages of older generations chose to postpone the unavoidable collapse rather than get it done and over with. And without caring about what the cost of them postponing the collapse would have on later generations who would now have to live through the much worse collapse. The more you delay the collapse, the worse the collapse will be when it finally happens. Especially if you delay the collapse by outsourcing of manufacturing to reduce your costs of manufacturing, which became unsustainable at home because of the geometric expansion of the money supply.

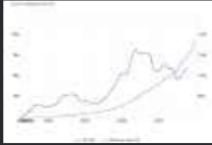

The collapse we'll live through is going to be the stuff of legends. Every currency is a massive bubble and the working class will soon no longer be able to afford to even live. At that point, the system will collapse whatever anyone wants or doesn't want or does or doesn't do. We're nearly at debt and fiat currency money supply inflation saturation. They can't postpone the collapse much longer.

talk was probably exactly about this. Managing the unavoidable collapse. But they chickened out again or were hoping to manage the collapse through massive depopulation with artificial pathogens and poison injections to supposedly cure or prevent illness from the artificial pathogens.

>The real estate market is like at all time high without any signs of popping at least in the USA. Especially the east and west coasts.

This is because of the following reasons:

1. Intentionally bringing in shitskins by the millions per year. All those immigrants need housing. Which is paid for with public funding. Which is paid for with deficit spending. Which is funded from money creation (borrowing from the banking system). Bank loans and bank investments are funded from fiat currency creation, not from depositors' time deposits or checking accounts.

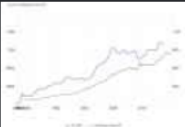

from the banking system). Bank loans and bank investments are funded from fiat currency creation, not from depositors' time deposits or checking accounts.

2. For decades now, every Globohomo founding cunt-tree and every satrapie of Globohomo has been using home mortgage loans as the primary vehicle for expanding their respective money supplies. Meaning that most new fiat currency is brought into existence through real estate purchase, investment or development "loans". Bank "loans" are funded from fiat currency creation, not from depositors' time deposits or checking accounts.

If the private sector isn't borrowing enough to keep the scheme going, then governments will borrow instead.

This is how Cliton "balanced the budget". Private sector borrowing exploded under his term. Which meant that tax revenues increased and the government didn't need to borrow as much or run as large a deficit to keep the scheme flowing because the massive explosion in private borrowing and debt expansion handled the expansion of the money supply needed to keep the scheme going for a while.

>Show me any country, anywhere, that doesn't.

I can't. All countries are capitalist and this is how capitalism functions.

>This violates the principal of exchange rates.

How? In what way? Exchange rates are a meme and completely contrived and artificial anyway. Because fictional amounts of any fiat currency, such as USD or EUR or RMB or any other one, can be and is digitally created by any bank anywhere in the world.

>If a pound of American butter costs $2 or 10RMB, then how much does it cost a citizen of China to buy said item in either Yuan or Dollars?

More than $2 or 10RMB because of shipping costs and middlemen. I don't follow your point.

>Commerce predates capitalism by a good four thousand years, anon.

I was referring to commerce under the capitalist system, bro. And good luck producing complex goods with long, international supply chains such as iPhones, cars, computer components or doing non-local commerce without capitalism. I mean, we probably could easily do it, with all of the technology the Jews intentionally suppressed for decades or centuries. But it would require a massive paradigm shift to get everyone on earth to stop wanting to save fiat currency for retirement or to make profits in fiat currency or to have passive income in fiat currency or to be bothered that someone else has a roof over their head and food to eat despite not being employed because we simply cannot employ everyone without resorting to bullshit make busy jobs like capitalism does. And it would also require a year to several years of bringing out the suppressed technologies and rebuild supply chains around them.

>Hyperinflation seems to be likely choice.

Yes. The Jews are too chickenshit to do anything but try anything and everything possible to postpone the inevitable crash and massive cancellation of a large amount of digital fiat currency and the deflation that would come with that. The normies would come for their heads this time and they wouldn't be able to salvage the situation by stopping the collapse at 10% of how bad it would have needed to be, like they did with the 2008 crash. So hyperinflation it is.

>What even is capitalism then?

A pyramid scheme which runs on money printing.

The boomers will insist it's property ownership, trade, barter, commerce, sugar, spice and everything nice when they don't even own property, because if you don't pay taxes on it then ZOG's enforcers, the goys in blue (who work for the Jew) will come steal it from you.

>A specific good has the same relative price regardless which currency was used to purchase it.

What do you mean by relative price? Relative to what? The prices of other goods and commodities or services? Surely there's a lot of variance from country to country in that as well.

>This is due to the identity principal when applied to currency valuation.

"Identity principal"? What's that? Why are we talking about abstract bullshit? To obfuscate plainly observable facts?

Also, why not take the memeflag off?

>Import dues are the same no matter which currency you use so it's irrelevant to the phrasing of the question.

What does this even mean? No, import dues are not the same.

>"Complex supply chains" go all the way back to the bronze age.

Ok, good luck maintaining them without the mindspell of capitalism/fiat currency or replacing the mindspell of capitalism/fiat currency with anything else. Fiat currency/capitalism is a goyim operating system. The normie cattle have internalised it. The alternative is, what exactly? Jack Fresco's Resource Based Economy? Do you see the average non-genius IQ non-White person adopting or applying that? Or doing the best you can at whichever place of work you're at and then only taking what you need or reasonably want from the shops or the stores? Do you see the average non-genius IQ non-White person practising that? Putting in an honest day's work, day after day, and then only taking what they and their family needs and a few reasonable wants like a new PC every other year, a new car every 5 years etc? How are you going to run society when the illusion that is capitalism dies?

Undermining the Debt Creates Recessions and Depressions

Posted Dec 11, 2024 By Martin Armstrong | 2 minutes read

Many mistakenly look to the stock market as the leading indication of economic security. The true culprit is the DEBT market, not the stock market, that leads to Undermining the Debt Creates Recessions | Blog | Economics | and Depressions depressions and recessions. A recession, in comparison to a depression, is merely a minor impact that could be isolated to one nation. Unemployment will typically rise up to 10% in a recession, whereas a depression could see a 25%+ turn in unemployment. A lack of work leads to civil unrest and upheaval. Depressions are never isolated to one nation as they spread as a contagion throughout the world.

You could take the stock market down 30%, even 40%, and still not create a depression. Yet, if you undermine government debt by far less, you will create a severe economic downturn. Look to the banks. Under law, banks are required to use government debt as a reserve. Undermining government debt simply wipes out the banking industry as we have historically seen when bank after bank is forced to shutter.

During the Great Depression, sovereign defaults began in Europe. Look at what happened in 1931 when Europe defaulted on its debt, as did Asia and so forth since depressions become contagions. This pushed the dollar higher but not the US share market. Note that the dollar rose in value during World War I, the 1931 Sovereign Debt Crisis, and again for World War II. During those waves of capital flows, the bulk of that capital always moved into government bonds.

This is an oversimplified version of this message but you can read more on the 1931 Sovereign Debt Crisis throughout this website. Governments default and then that often leads to a regime change. The incoming regime will simply say, "Oh, that was the debt of the last government and we need not pay." Listen, the stock market could plunge 20% and the banks would be OK. But if you saw the same in the debt market, in particular sovereign debt, you're in serious trouble.

Hey frens, the jig is up for Jews and China.

Remember last bread when I was saying the jews -ready to leave the US for China- were funneling all the gold & silver left in the US back to Hong Kong, where gold imports were higher than anywhere else?
And how HSBC who supposedly is a british bank is in reality a jewish one in the hands of the Sassoon family?

And how for a while now we suspect China of using the suppressed comex's price fixing mechanism to import as much PMs as they can?

Well, new intel just dropped frens, and jew-chinks are way more vicious than what we initially thought! And every piece is of a puzzle are fitting together.

Remember the monstrous moves in eligible/registered from 2 days ago with 11Moz moving to registered and 28Moz standing for deliveries for April?

It turned out HSBC was the one issuing 93% of delivery notices of that enormous amount ready to leave the comex.

But that's not all, HSBC have been holding the largest short position on silver's ETF for the past few months. It is not JPM or BoFA who are suppressing the price of silver, to the contrary they have been positioned on the other side of the chessboard trying to counterbalance the HSBC position.
HSBC currently is 100% short on silver. And with a position so large all the others players are net long and it's still not enough.

So in one hand we have HSBC standing for delivery of physical for huge amounts (who most likely don't stay in the US, but leave for China the minute they are out of the vault), and on the other hand they are shorting silver like madmen to get the lowest price possible.

I think we are here witnessing the end game of the East.v.West war over PMs. The kikes are manipulating the price down to export all the silver they can to their HK fortress (HSBC = Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank Corp for the newfrens).

You maybe missed this news, but the HSBC's current CEO, Noel Quinn announced he is leaving the boat, to the general surprise if we read the press.
The reason behind his departure?
>his disillusionment with the geopolitical nature of running a bank that straddles Hong Kong and London at a time of rising tension between China and the west.
mhmm interasting...

Then the board of director immediately started to seek a new front man for the job, with for mission to :
>selling off parts of HSBC global operations to increase its focus on Asia
Then, instead of going down, the price for HSBC shares jumped up.
To me it sounds like the kikes are burning the bridges, selling off the dying western branches and refocusing all their capital on the new parasite's host : Chinkland.

Basically we were right about China (but with the complicity of jewchinks) slurping as much as they could profiting from low prices. What we didn't foresee was their infiltrated agents doing the suppression themselves.

HSBC is just a middleman. Silver is ONLY being tamped down in price temporally. Janet Yellen went to China to tell them to slow solar output and they instead increased it by 38% this is huge in that if we keep going this rate then the actual figures for physical silver is grim. We have about a year left. After that if you don't own it, you never will. This might sound like a boomer fever dream but it is happening. I really do believe when silver goes extinct from the Comex that people will be tearing their solar panels off just for the half ounce of silver it contains. And listen I'm not an expert but I am a metals guy and what is coming will change the power dynamics for the west forever. Jews really did just want to consolidate their wealth and they are continuing to do so.

>I know China mines a lot of gold, idk about their silver output
It's pretty much similar, rank wise they also are like the 4th largest miner in the world. Most their silver come from the north west mountainous regions.

Idk if you 'member (probably not) a lenghty serie of posts i made few months ago explaining how China actually hide being by far the largest importer of silver.
Tldr is they purchase the ore directly from mines and get it imported by supertankers from Mexico and Peru. It's then counted as "mineral rich dirt" rather than silver ore in the books.
They then do the refinement of the ore at home where they have a huge setup for that.

So when you look at the publicly available data you see the US importing zero silver rich ore, but 1st importer of .999 bars (counted as investment grade), and it's the opposite for China. Thing is China import x10 more equivalent in .999 bars (counted as industrial needs, but no doubt a good portion of it is then transformed in investment grade bars).

>As for them "running out"
Since the comex is mainly the collateral for SLV shares, chances of (((them))) running out is minuscule, as their reserves are just existing to give legitimacy to the blackrock's financial instrument.
While we were focusing on draining the comex's 275Moz (counting registered + eligible) over the past 3 years, it's over 600Moz who have been bought by retail investors like you and me. Over x2 total comex's holdings.
Comex is a diversion, it is just a tool used by banksters to control the price.
The fact all the APs (authorized participants = only ones actually able to drain the comex) are banksters is saying enough. So basically we focus over a bankster's vault only banksters are allowed to empty. Why would they do that lol?

>there's so much of it in private hands wdym by private hands? Retail or private entities? Because retail don't own shit compared to what they used to. How many relatives do you know own silver? Most likely zero.
Back in the 60s, boomers had their every day's coins made out of silver, they owned silverware for the special occasions, they also often owned one or two inherited large items made out of silver, like candleholders, vases,... on top of the jewelry.

Nowaday? Nobody own any silver beside few grams in the form of bracelets or pendants for the women. I don't even know a single boomer who still own real silverware, it's all stainless steel crap. Actually, i don't know a single relative who own silver, and i come from high end middle class family. Populations over the world got all their silver quietly robbed from them.

Fiat currencies are always under threat from silver and gold. Since silver is the people's money, active suppression on the silver price protects the Federal Reserve, ECB, and the central banks who rely on shorting and spoofing the futures market to prop up the dollar, the euro, etc. Since the central banks hoard gold and neglect silver – which historically traded at a ratio of 16:1 – we can dethrone the dollar and euthanize the euro with a Silver Squeeze that decouples physical silver and gold prices from the phony paper price.

>WHY?

Fiat currencies fleece the public of their purchasing power with the insidious tax of inflation. They enable wealth gaps, usury, and war.

>WHEN?

The Fed's end is inevitable. Fiat money is a dying beast and the Silver Squeeze can paralyze it while the sword of truth lands the death blow. Unbacked cash is severely weakened after suffering covid lockdowns, the supply chain dismantling, and an escalating abandonment of faith in the US dollar. At some point, one single ounce of silver will be one too many. It's only a matter of time.

Stack physical silver! Your worst case scenario is that nothing happens and you sell back to the dealer. At best, you prosper after SHTF. Have patience. Don't overextend your budget. Stockpile water filtration, emergency food, and any other survival items you can. Crush all demoralization shills under your boots with ruthless efficiency. Post your stack if you please. This is our Great Reset, not theirs. They will eat the bugs. And there's not a fucking thing they can do stop us.

The Wealth of Nations

The poor were already poor before the crisis, so they were affected the least. The rich, at least the smart ones, got a whole lot richer. But it was the middle class that was hurt the most. In fact, it was all but obliterated.

But there were a few exceptions. There were a few who had the right qualities and cunning to take advantage of the economic environment. They were shrewd, adept, and nimble, but most of all, adaptable. Those who could quickly adapt to a world they had never seen before, a world turned upside down, prospered. It didn't matter what class they came from, poor or middle class, if they could adapt, and adapt well, they could become wealthy in a matter of months.

At this time, an entire city block of commercial real estate in downtown Berlin could be purchased for just 25 ounces of gold ($500). The reason for

SILVER IS THE LYNCHPIN OF THE ENTIRE FINANCIAL SYSTEM

Many years ago, the money changers realized that national debt levels and the levels of money printing they were engaging in were unsustainable with any kind of reasonable bond yield levels the market could sustain. The interest on 1 trillion debt at 17 or 18% interest as occurred in the 1980s would be absolutely impossible to sustain at current debt levels of 28 trillion, but with 30 year bond yields at 2%, they can kick the can down the road for a few more years.

To keep bond yields low, the money changers also needed to trick the markets into thinking inflation is LOWER than the bond yields they require, as nobody would buy 2% yielding bonds if inflation was obviously 5%.

They learned that they could drag the entire commodities market lower by controlling the price of precious metals. The price of wheat for example was dragged into a brutal bear market for the last 10 years at the same time as the gold bear market.

They also learned that the silver market was much smaller than the gold market, no nations used it for monetary purposes, and very few had strategic stockpiles of the metal.

By suppressing and controlling the tiny 20 billion dollar silver market with 5 trillion dollars of notional derivatives trading, they could force gold's price down, which is always tied in a ratio range with silver (historically around 1:15 or so). If you'll notice, when the gold and silver ratio are at the highest peaks, the price of the metals are near their lowest troughs.

By controlling silver, they could force gold to act in turn, which is used as an inflation signal for the broader commodities market which supported the continuation of artificially low bond yields and an impossibly high level of national debt.

As the silver suppression ponzi scheme unravels, bond yields will spike, taking down the financial system.

Anon, a tenth of Apple's capitalization would be enough to purchase all the silver currently available in the world. Imagine the insane leverage such move would give to anyone trying to do this. The gains would be insane for them.

If they don't do it, it's because they aren't allowed to do so. I explained it in length a while ago, but basically our financial system (untangible) and our real economy (tangible) are able to coexist only thanks to a very fragile equilibrium where the financial world is only allowed to impact the real economy just enough to feed the parasites behind the finance magick and their web of corruption.

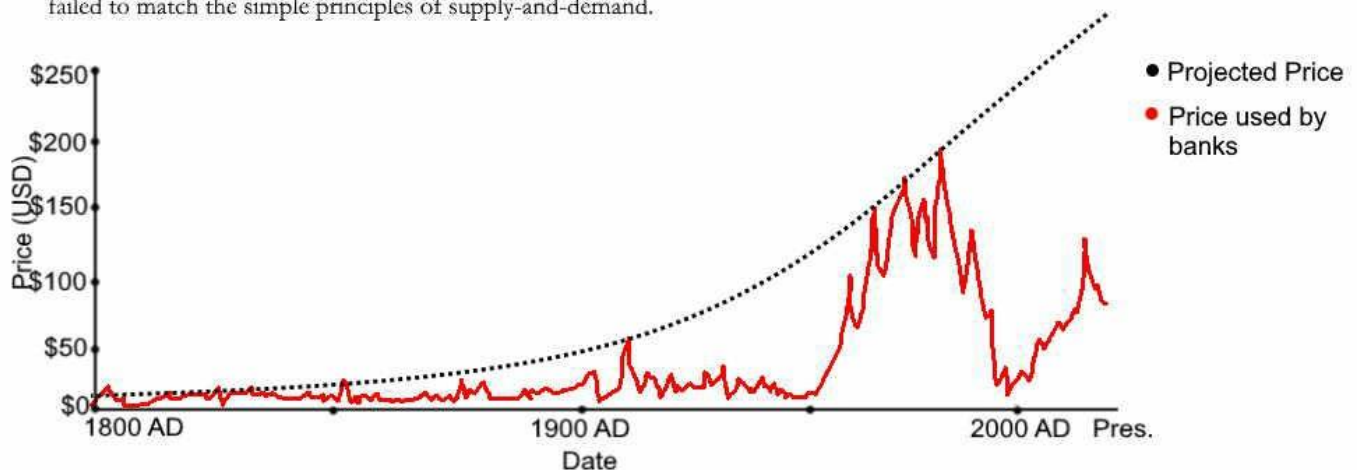

It's not in (((their))) interest to send huge shockwaves in the real economy, when their current scheme allow them to be insanely rich without having to provoke a panic. You probably know it, but there is for quadrillions in derivatives alone, there is enough fake money to buy a hundred times everything on this planet. If they disturb the equilibrium, (for example by making a commodity disappear) all this masquerade will crumble like a house of cards. Ppl don't care about fake money, as long as it doesn't impact them enough for them to notice it.

This is the secret behind SETF, this is why if we are enough in numbers, we become more dangerous than a standing army. Because by buying out all the silver with fiat, we shine a spotlight on this system, showing how much fake money there is compared to how scarce natural resources really are. And by extension, how dangerous the owners of capital can become if they one day decide to buy out the planet.

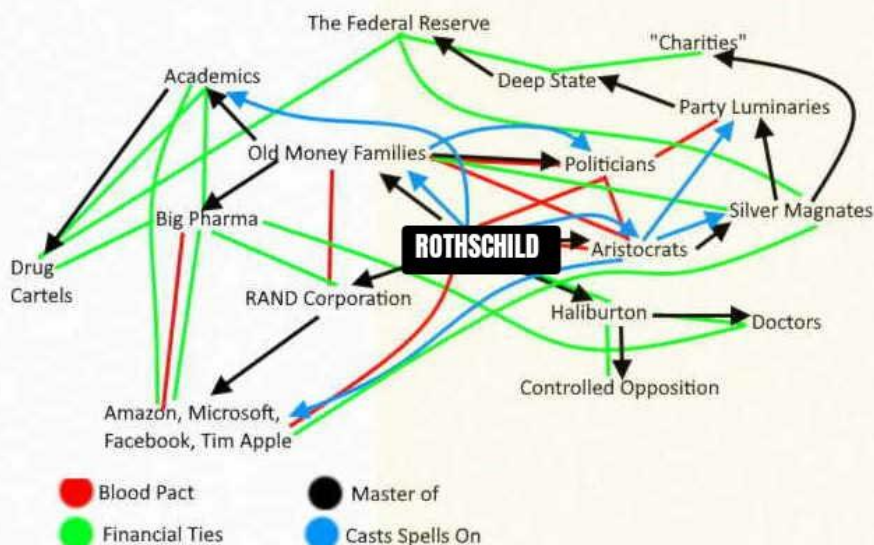

It's the ultimate battle of talmudic magick numbers VS real tangible value. The fight of illusion against reality. And don't get me wrong, i don't consider myself (or any other fren here) a selfless hero, my goal is to enrich myself, but we do it in such fashion it shine a light on the fundamental (((flaws))) of the system.

The Longest con: The History of Silver Pricing 1800-Present

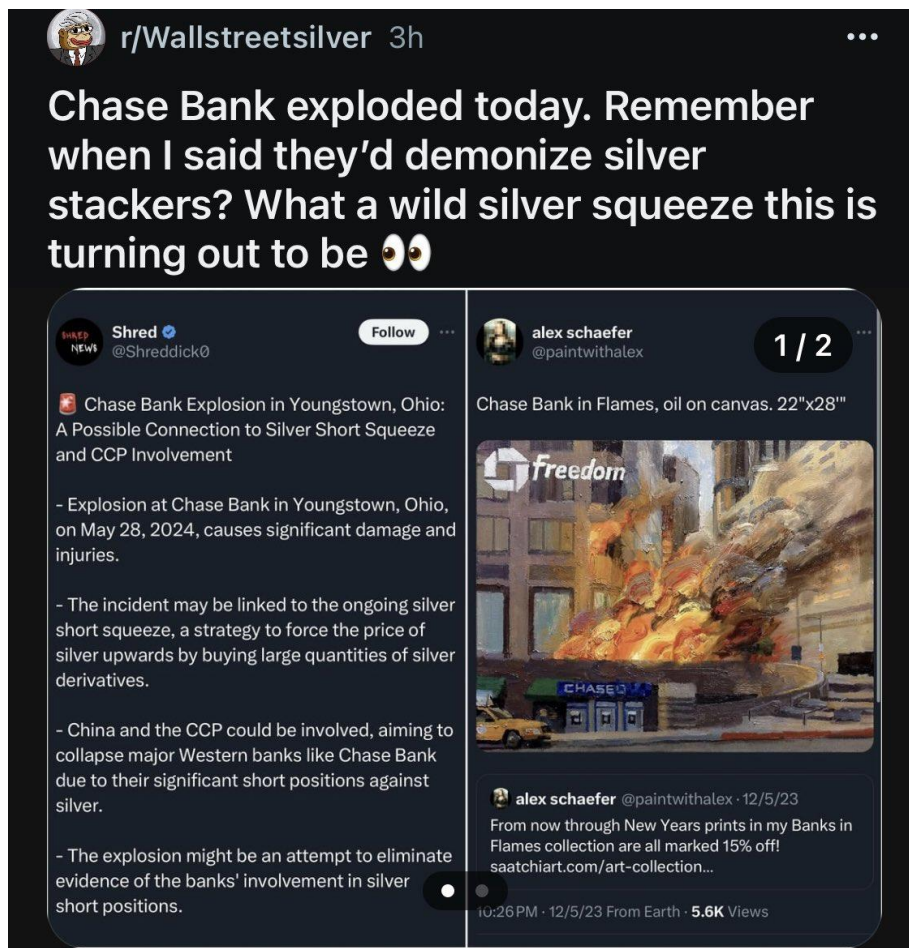

Silver is historically one of the Earth's richest minerals. It is a rare Universal Value: used as a currency in every advanced society (Europe, Incas, Ottoman Empire, Chinese Empire) before the age of globalization. As society has industrialized and grown, demand has only risen. Yet the price has flatlined. Starting with the organization of banking into cartels, the price of silver has failed to match the simple principles of supply-and-demand.

In 1980, when the price of silver briefly rose to meet the projected price (calculated via real demand), it resulted in Federal Prosecution by The Federal Reserve. The Hunt Brothers were charged with "manipulating the price of silver", despite the fact that they purchasing it at the real price. Their assets were seized and they were barred from trading.

Why do the banks (Wells Morgan in particular) oppress the price of silver? Why has the Federal Reserve consistently turned down the concept of a silver-backed currency? Why can't I, an ordinary American, sell silver at the price I believe silver is worth? Why must my investments continually lose money? Follow the money, my friends. Follow the money.

How Much Silver Should You Hold to Be in the Top 1%?

How much is a enough? Here is one way to answer the age old question of how much silver one should own.

Depending on how much your stack compares to other Potential holders.

I've run the numbers and if you look at how much of the global population can hold 'X' amount of silver we see the following:

- 1 Person can hold the full 6 billion ounces (1 Big Whale)
- 2.5 people can split it and hold the full 6 billion ounces with 2.39 billion each (Whale Territory)
- 393,941 people can hold 15,230 ounces (.474 tons = 30.46 Monster boxes which is common man territory)
- 988,791 people can hold 6,068 ounces (189 tons = 12.14 Monster boxes which is common man territory)
- 6 million people can hold 963 ounces (.029 tons = 1.93 Monster boxes which is common man territory)
- 15 million people can hold 383 ounces (.011 tons = 0.77 Monster boxes which is common man territory)

While a-b are out of reach for most, c-f are within the reach of the 'common' man and still puts them in the top 1% of possible holders.

And now here is the most interesting part. This table assumes an even distribution which we know JP Morgan stockpiles skews the table, which means it would take even less to be in the top 1%.

Please check my math and let me know if this help answer the age old question of how much silver I should hold?

Answer: Well if you want to be in the top 1% you'd need at least 60.9 ounces to be in the 1.26% of possible silver holders (Global)

19 MAY 2015 USGS: "Worldwide silver supplies will be depleted by 2025"

Written By Don Reynolds

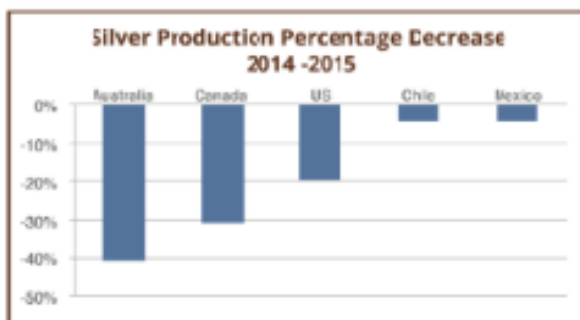

The US Geological Survey (USGS) has publicly stated that the world's silver supply will be depleted by 2025. This will make silver the first widely used industrial commodity to have its in-ground supply exhausted.

The world's top metals research team reports annual shortfall for silver

Thomas Reuters CFMS has reported a shortfall in global silver production for the third year in a row. For 2015 the shortfall was 42.7 million ounces. Several annual shortfalls could mean pressure on price increases for silver.

What is causing the shortfall of silver and why is the problem expected to grow?

Silver is the most effective conductor of electricity and it is used in most modern day electronics. The solar panel & smartphone markets will continue to be driving forces behind the enormous upside potential in silver through 2025.

According to a 2014 Erickson Mobility Report, 140 million phones and tablets ended up in US landfills as users upgraded. Less than 11 million or fewer than 8% of those devices were recycled.

In 1948, Howard Buffett, the Congressman father of Warren Buffett, PREDICTED that abandoning the gold standard would make America into a totalitarian, morally corrupt, welfare-warfare state

Here are some extracts from his speech to Congress

Human freedom rests upon gold-redeemable money. It is no coincidence that one of the first moves by Hitler, Lenin, and Mussolini, was to outlaw individual ownership of gold. Lenin declared and demonstrated that a sure way to overturn the existing social order and bring about communism was by printing press-paper money. The subject of a Hitler or a Stalin is a serf by the mere fact that his money can be called in and depreciated at the whim of his rulers. He is prevented from laying away purchasing power for the future.

The end of the road of all paper-money experiments, is worse than just the high prices that you have heard about. Monetary chaos was followed in Germany by a Hitler; in Russia by all-out Bolshevism; and in other nations by more or less tyranny. It can take a nation to communism without external influences.

Our finances will never be brought into order until Congress is compelled to do so. Making our money redeemable in gold will create this compulsion. The paper-money disease has been a pleasant habit thus far and will not be dropped voluntarily, any more than a dope user will, without a struggle, give up narcotics. But in each case the end of the road is not a desirable prospect.

I can find no evidence to support a hope that our fiat-paper-money venture will fare better, ultimately, than such experiments in other lands. Because of our economic strength, the paper money disease here may take many years to run its course. But we can be approaching the critical stage. When that day arrives, our political rulers will probably find that foreign war and ruthless regimentation is the cunning alternative to domestic strife. That was the way out for the paper-money economy of Hitler and others.

Unless you are willing to surrender your children and your country to galloping inflation, war and slavery, then the cause of gold-redeemable money demands your support. For if human liberty is to survive in America, we must win the battle to restore honest money.

Hello /pmg/ I will write a long Post about silver in relation to real estate. Please excuse the wrong use of terminology, cause I am not a native english speaker.

First a bit of background information. I work in the german insurance industry, which is very old (the company where I work at is over 300 years old) and in our business risk assessment is very important. If your premium is too high people will leave for competitors, if it is too low you will pay more for damages than you earn on premiums. You want a valuation as close to reality as possible.

For real estate, this was very easy in the past because the price of a house was fairly static. Once assesst, you could use that assessment for decades or even centuries. It didn't matter if you paid in Taler, Schilling or Mark. As long as you knew the silver content of the currency it was all interchangeable. This changed in the 20th century. Several wars, depressions and the ensuing inflation destroyed the german currency. For example my home nearly quadrupled in price since I build it in the year 2000.

Constant reassessments would cost too much so the insurance industry looked for another way. Basically we take a look at the house (size, building materials, etc.) and calculate the value it would have had in 1914. Why 1914? It was the last year with stable prices. Because of german autism we have a huge amount of old building plans so we get a fairly accurate assessment.

That value is multiplied with the current "Anpassungsfaktor" (right now at 20,97). The factor contains inflation for materials, work, technical improvements and everything else related to construction. The picture shows a comparison how much it rose in the last ten years (Bars are quarterly). If you look at 2021 you can see the writing on the wall...

Back to the silver price. A typical german house (2 stories, cellar, build up attic), with a 10m*10m foundation and build with bricks has a 1914 value of 21.840 Mark. Multiplied with the factor for 2022 you get a value of 457.984 Euro which is close to current real estate prices.

In 1914 1 Reichsmark had a silver content of 5g, so that home is worth 109,2kg of silver. Current silver spot is 644,94 Euro for 1kg.

Price for 109,2kg of silver = 70.427 Euro

Price to build that house = 457.984 Euro

$70.427/457.984 = 15,38\%$

Suppose silver follows the laws of supply and demand. Either the supply increased drastically (over 80%) or the demand fell around the same percentage. I don't know about the supply side, hopefully some other anons can help out. On the demand side we got a drop with the change to fiat money. State mints don't need to buy silver for their coins. But on the other side medical and information technology eats silver like nothing seen before.

Ildr even with current markup silver is at 20% of its historical value.

Evolution of construction prices for residential buildings.jpg

Prices for new residential construction have risen sharply in Germany. According to the Federal Statistical Office, they were 12.6% higher in August than in the previous year. This is mainly due to the fact that building materials became considerably more expensive.

I have stated that gold would bottom only after it became a dirty word. All that yelling and screaming about manipulation or whatever commodities are now in an inflationary trend. Claims that money should be tangible would benefit the bondholders at the expense of the people. People are now moving into commodities as they have lost trust in government and have an instilled fear of the future. Gold will rise concurrently with stocks amid this wave as people seek to move money out of public spaces.

Confidence in government goes down and gold goes up. Gold is not fiat. It is neutral. Stock rallies mean gold rallies – the two are going up because it is the trade against government bonds vs the private sector. You get something back even if, say, GM goes bankrupt. You get nothing if the government goes bust.

The history of interest rates is provided on this site. Interest rates in a developed economy reflect the “option” value on the expected decline in purchasing power of money. If I expect it to decline by 5%, then I expect a profit, and say want 8%. You in turn will pay the 8% only if you think you also can make a profit above 8%, perhaps 10%+.

In an UNDEVELOPED economy, we transpose the depreciation risk of money with risk in general. Lacking any developed economy, one will lend based only on the risk of repayment. Therefore, without a legal system, the risk is either the person or the political climate. When we look at the history of interest rates, I demonstrated that the rate of interest, even within the Roman Empire, increased the further you moved away from Rome. Hence, the lowest interest rates are in the dollar and they rise in other countries based upon perceived political risk. Greece’s interest rates are significantly higher than Germany’s. This reflects political risk, not simply the future inflation rate in the euro.

The Fed did not increase the money supply with QE. What happened to the whole theory of the quantity of money impacting inflation? The problem lies in the definition. When U.S. government debt was illegal to borrow against using it as collateral, then issuing debt DID NOT increase the money supply. When that was changed, and you could post T-bills as collateral to trade, then there was no longer a difference between debt and money.

So, the Fed buying in bonds did not increase the money supply and failed to create inflation as expected. It merely swapped bonds (money paying interest) with non-interest-paying money (electronic entries). The bankers then complained that the Fed had created the Excess Reserve Facility. The SF Fed argues that Milton Friedman said they should pay interest on reserves. That was only on the required reserves. The creation of the Excess Reserves totally negated the entire idea of stimulating the economy, as the banks never lent the money out. It became a giant swap of bonds for cash deposits, of which the Fed then had to pay 0.25% interest.

So now, turning to the VELOCITY of money: a decline here demonstrates that people are HOARDING cash (rising in purchasing power as assets decline), as well as banks (Excess Reserves). We have companies buying back their own stock, further shrinking the supply of equities and fueling the deflationary spiral. The Excess Reserves at the Fed show just how much banks are hoarding cash.

Therefore, we can see the deflationary trend and the contraction right here. The cycle has changed. The wheel of fortune has completed its revolution. Governments are turning against the banks and looking to electronic currency. The days of rumored banking conspiracies are coming to an end, as it always does. The banks will be a giant short. When the Sovereign Debt defaults become a contagion, the banks will not be supported by government.

It's funny.

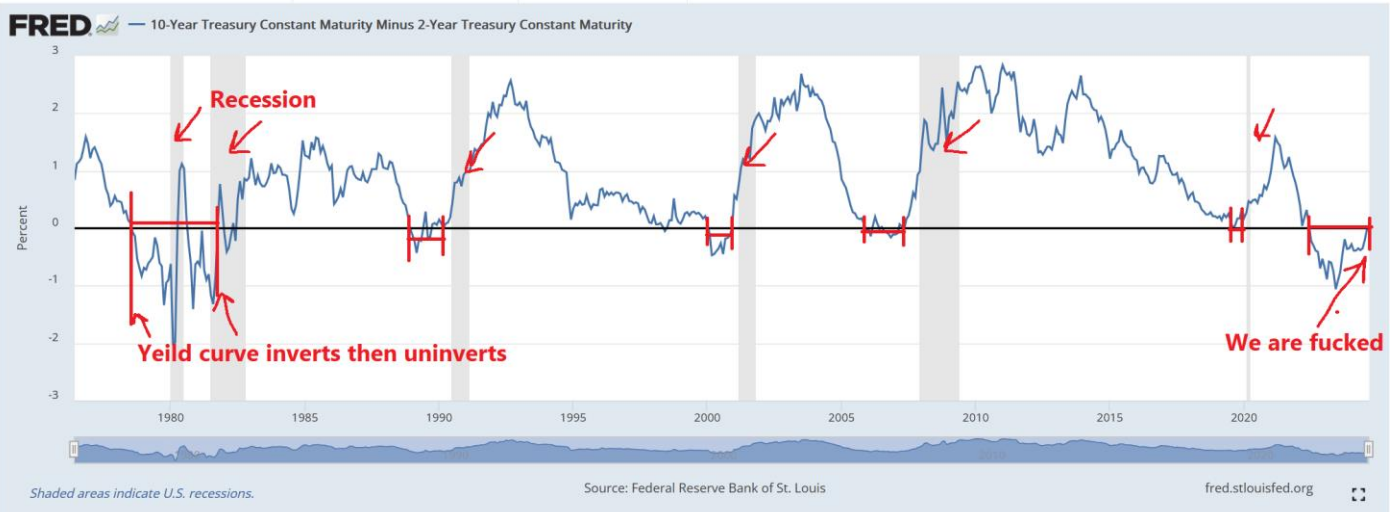

The Fed cut rates but borrowing rates went higher today because they are based on the 10 year yield and it's ripping higher into the close.

So mortgage and auto loan rates will be higher tomorrow than they were today.

Profound decline in VOM lead to the Financial Panic of 1907, which was used to justify the establishment of the Federal Reserve System. The Federal Reserve Act was passed by Congress in the quiet days before Christmas, 1913. Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated six months later.

Following a brief recovery in VOM during the Great War, it collapsed further, leading up to the closure of banks and the confiscation of gold in

In Practice however:

Above that are found many Abstraction Layers, for various reasons and rationales (or at least stated as such) Those Abstraction layers are where the Grifting and subversion take place.

Very much so. Consider this esoteric tidbit, Economics is fundamentally the transformation of energy, one product into another, labor energy into something etc., therefore economic models are basically energy systems and, the interplay between dependent variables are therefore governed by the same partial differential mathematics as any energy system. This is how you build predictive models of economies to model price relationships between commodities. For example, the rate of change in the price of beef is dependent on the rate of change in the price of oil. The key is these rates/rates are the interdependency coefficients that you need to know in order to manipulate/guide economies. rates are the key. What happens do you think to the fidelity of your decades old mathematical models when you expand the credit supply by a rate that is 4.5 standard deviations from the historical mean? Your models are null and void. You are running blind deaf and dumb into a black hole with no fucking clue what lies on the other side of the event horizon.

No. People accept dollars because the US government imposes a tax debt that can only be settled in dollars and will throw you into prison. ZERO risk to investing in US bonds hence the question WHY DO WE borrow and PAY INTEREST TO JEWS to use a currency We GOYS (national currency) IS ZERO and ANYONE who says otherwise and DENIES that INTEREST/USURY imposed on the national currency the Jew. Inflation is ALWAYS and EVERYWHERE a USURY/INTEREST problem NOT monetary. Libertarian are the MOST Big Government Jew. Government CAPITAL Control to make using YOUR OWN currency go through a Jewish Middleman who DOESN'T PRODUCE ANYTHING. The Smallest possible government is by definition one that imposes a single Tax in it's own currency WITHOUT Interest to transfer ONLY wealth VIA the State sector to a non-producer middleman. Fed Independence is a myth and we don't need private (Jewish) banks to lend th if you don't have enough dollars come tax day. The stability comes the FACT that taxes are as certain as death and thus there is CREATE and has ZERO RISK since there is ZERO risk of there being no taxation? The natural rate of interest (on a sovereign source of ALL INFLATION is a Jew. Von Mises was a Jew, Hayek was a Jew, Uncle Milton was a Jew and Walter Block is a Jew anywhere and the imposition of a Jewish Gold standard, Silver or a peg or bitcoin or anything else imposing is a Big G. what is physically necessary for the operations of the State. Anything else is the artificial creation of a capital control to redistribute the public currency.

No economist will ever come up with a better description of why being poor is so expensive than Terry Pratchett. Such a great quote.

Take boots, for example. He earned thirty-eight dollars a month plus allowances. A really good pair of leather boots cost fifty dollars. But an affordable pair of boots, which were sort of OK for a season or two and then leaked like hell when the cardboard gave out, cost about ten dollars. Those were the kind of boots Vimes always bought, and wore until the soles were so thin that he could tell where he was in Ankh-Morpork on a foggy night by the feel of the cobbles.

But the thing was that good boots lasted for years and years. A man who could afford fifty dollars had a pair of boots that'd still be keeping his feet dry in ten years' time, while a poor man who could only afford cheap boots would have spent a hundred dollars on boots in the same time and would still have wet feet.

This was the Captain Samuel Vimes 'Boots' theory of socio-economic unfairness.

Why are things expensive?

4 companies control 55% to 85% of the meat market.

4 airlines control 80% of air travel.

3 companies control 92% of the soda market.

3 companies control 73% of the cereal market.

Why don't I hear about it?

6 companies control 90% of the news.

Once you come to understand monetary theory and how simple it is, you realize how stupid the common person is, especially the common /pol/ user, but also even the most celebrated economists; they have absolutely no understanding of the mechanics of monetary economics and public debt despite the fact that all this shit has been known for centuries. Even Smith and Marx wrote about it, to say nothing about the chartalists.

It is fucking insane how stupid the human race is.

Pro-tip: first do some reading about pic related and why Hitler's first economic act was to decouple the Reichsmark from gold, and how that instantly ended inflation, then do some reading on MMT, starting with Kelton's The Deficit Myth. Also read Hamilton's early writings on the American dollar and public credit; the American Revolution was waged for essentially the same reason WWII was. American taxes were denominated in gold and they were in basically the same position the Krauts were then and the Argies were now: sell all their tobacco and cotton and sugar products to Europeans for gold, then turn around and send that gold to London.

There's so much ponzi kick the can down the road bullshit going on in the systems, that it's going to be absolutely catastrophic once things start collapsing. I wouldn't be surprised to see things crash even 75%. For example it's now coming to surface that Texas along with other places, has been artificially valuing properties higher just so they can extract more property taxes out of people to keep the scam going. Downside there of course is that people are increasingly unable to own anything, which means less and less payers into this ponzi.

If and when something like this blows up, it means that everyone invested into anything based on this shit is going to lose their investment.

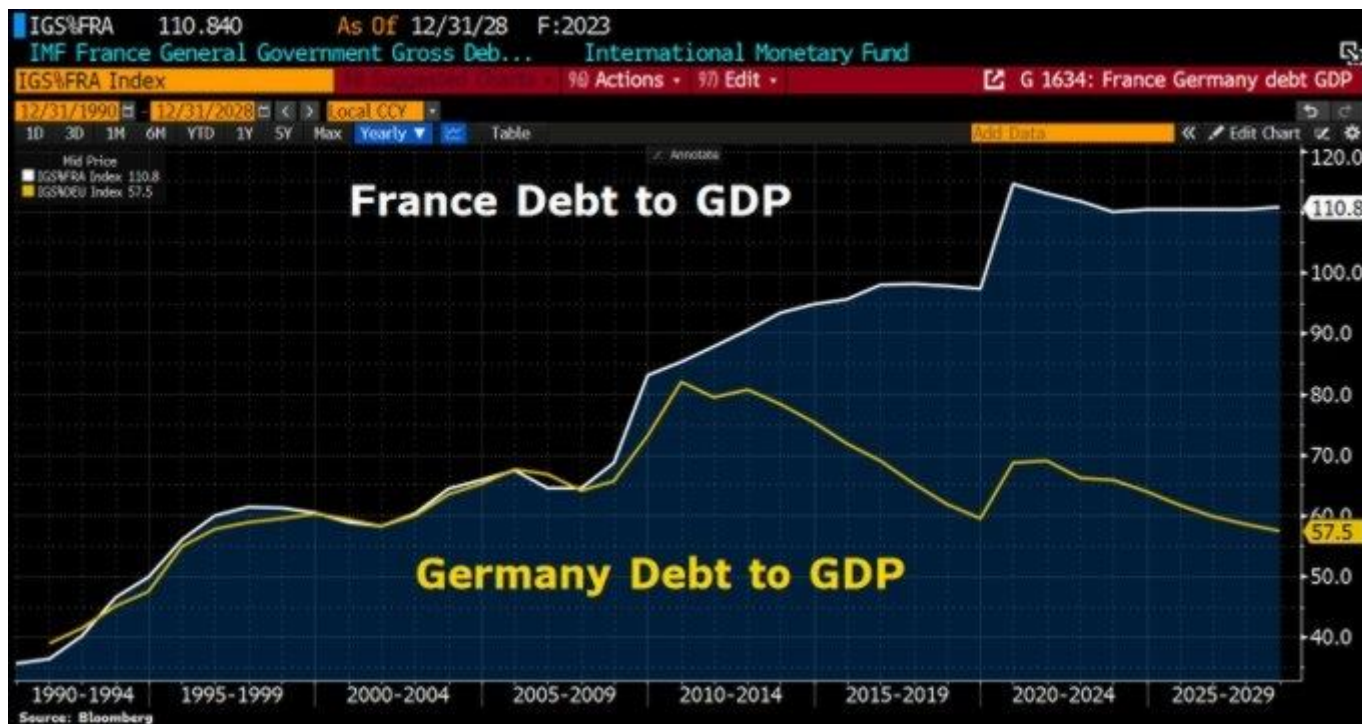

Considering how things like pension funds are heavily invested into real estate and the bond market, imagine what happens when the underlying asset turns out to be heavily artificially inflated.

People's pensions suddenly get wiped out when this kind of stuff starts going.

Not only that, pension funds in general need to beat inflation on top of being profitable, so they have to pull at least 7.5% growth every year to even be viable.

This is basically civil war tier stuff going on when people realize how they've been fucked. 2008 they were able to bail things out but this entire mess is so much bigger they won't be able to print their way out of it.

I believe that they tried to wipe out a shitload of older people with the scamdemic vax event, because the only way they can alleviate the pressure is to start removing the pensioner class, that's in a place to extract money out of the system they've paid into.

We are literally out of money. We are fucking broke. The german government doesnt have enough money left to pay to the unemployed anymore. Internal estimations say that we are out of money before the elections early next year. The only reason we are not out of money already is because we took the "Intel" billions that were going to be invested for an Intel fab in Germany. And that money dried up as well.

And our estimations are that 300k to 500k new unemployed will be registered in the next 3 month.
Germany is collapsing and people have no idea how bad it actually is.

94 US Banks Burdened by Uninsured Deposits – Risk of Bank Runs

Posted Aug 30, 2024 By Martin Armstrong | 2 minutes read

I have stressed that studies in ancient times as well as modern show that during a crisis you head toward DEFLATION as money becomes scarce, the VELOCITY of money collapses, and people HOARD wealth – they do not spend it. The US will experience a period of stagflation as GDP will decline as inflation soars. Banks will begin to fail in Europe before it becomes a global contagion.

Nancy Pelosi and her husband have allocated their reserve investments for Q2-4 of 2024 for physical precious metals. I am warning you all if you haven't already paid attention, this may be it for you to come out unscathed from a global market crash. These crooks would not be doing this, and neither would central banks be hoarding physical gold - unless something happened or is about to happen. Memes aside just look at our politicians in all our countries, in all our 'governments'. The writing is on the wall, it's clear as day. If you are exclusively crypto consider getting metals and ammunition.

>Markets are hyperinflated from education, housing, loan, credit and even for the first time ever medical bubbles which will all collapse the system and rugpull normies

What else can I say? I ask that you keep this thread bumped as long as you can. Even one more person who holds silver and gold is a person taken out of the corrupt and obviously Jewish system we find ourselves in. In Venezuela right now a single gold ounce can buy you a very large estate. A ounce of silver can feed a family for a year. A whole year! Is this a mistake? No it's by design. Precious metals hold innate value, they are innately true currency.

Just wake up other anons, your family too on this. Just don't tell your friends. When people are starving it will be a huge problem for you, unless you and your family is preparing.

Be ready anons. Get out and prepare some more if you think you're golden. Nancy fucking Pelosi dumped her money into physical gold. Why? Ask yourselves this. Do not be fools. They would buy some but not this much. Do you know why so many kvetching Jews come into these threads more than any other? They fear a single person exiting their clown world system. They need you tethered to their apron strings. But we don't need them, they need us.

"3D printers and a house"

The failures of socialism and capitalism have been made obvious in the 20th and 21st century respectively. Socialism failed to achieve a classless society, and instead resulted in some of the most oppressive regimes in human history. Capitalism failed to spread prosperity to the working classes and resulted in the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few plutocrats. Both systems centralized control, decimated the environment, collapsed birthrates, and robbed individuals of agency. In the interests of freedom, dignity, prosperity, the environment, and stability, a better system is needed.

Socialism and neoliberal capitalism both formed as reactions to the industrial revolution, and any solution going forward will likewise need to cater to the needs of the times. Socialism attempted to solve the massive inequality between the bourgeoisie and the proletariat by empowering the state to seize the means of production. Neoliberal capitalism simply assumed the free market would solve society's ills. Neither of these solutions worked, but what to replace them with? Fascism resulted in a totalitarian nightmare, and anarchy in practice has only lasted a few months at best. Distributism, the idea of decentralizing the means of production, was proposed as a solution in the 20th century. However, distributism has never been tried and with good reason; classical distributism suggests going back to an agrarian lifestyle and artisanal goods. No one will willingly give up the comforts of industrial society.

It is impossible to deny the improved quality of life brought on by industrialization. Modern agriculture feeds billions, electricity provides comfort to most of the world, and modern medicine has slain one of the four horsemen of the apocalypse. It would be insanity to give up such benefits, but at the same time industrial society has made men dependent on megacorporation's or the state for their bread, has devastated Earth's biosphere, and has resulted in the bloodiest wars and genocides in recorded history. So, then the question becomes, "how do we keep the benefits of industrial society, while minimizing the drawbacks?"

The benefits of industrialization come from mass production, while the drawbacks come from the centralization of control. Mass production allows for the creation of cheap consumer goods. Centralizing control results in less freedom and more corruption. Therefore, any solutions must be able to compete with economies of scale and must be decentralized. Distributism would obviously be decentralized, but an agrarian society of artisanal produced goods could simply not compete with mass production. Distributism needs an upgrade.

The first industrial revolution gave us electricity and machinery but made us dependent on power companies. The second revolution gave us steel and mass production but made us dependent on large scale manufacturers. The third industrial revolution gave us all of mankind's information at our fingertips but made us dependent on internet service providers and semiconductor manufacturers. The 4th industrial revolution will focus on artificial intelligence, automation, and biotechnology and has the potential to either further enslave us or truly set us free.

If adopted by socialism or capitalism the 4th industrial revolution will focus on surveillance and changing the human condition using biotechnology. Power has further centralized with each industrial revolution and a true surveillance state would be the ultimate expression of centralization. Declining birthrates show that humanity is simply not psychologically suited for modern society so a "new man" will be necessary for the continuation of either system. If ideologies of centralization are allowed to continue, what truly makes us human is at stake.

In the third industrial revolution many "open source" projects were developed by various online communities such as Linux, the Maker Movement, and the Precious Plastics Movement. Such movements show that individuals and decentralized communities can produce goods on a smaller scale. 3D printers, CNC machines, small-scale bioreactors, miniature foundries, and kilns all allow for the creation of goods and are all capable of supporting larger industries. These technologies would allow for distributism to compete with mass production. Chief among these technologies is the bioreactor, which can support everything from plastics, to fertilizers, to semiconductors.

Large scale production may benefit from producing many goods at once, but such processes are not very adaptable. Take an oil refinery for example which can cost millions to adjust a process. A small yeast fermentation chamber only costs a few thousand dollars at most and is much more adaptable because the microorganisms inside can easily be switched out. Adaptable processes would allow communities to shift their production focus depending on their needs. Key components and materials would need to be standardized so that local communities could trade and coordinate production with one another. One could argue that society has standardized parts under centralized modes of production, but one only needs to look at a modern smart phone to know that this is incorrect. Likewise, modularity should also be enforced across different communities. Machinery needs to be made so that one part can easily be switched with another, and chemicals manufactured to specific compositions and purities. Standardization and quality control would be two major functions of any state with a distributist economy.

The primary function of the state should be to ensure that healthy families are being formed for the sake of the continuation of our species. To do this a state must create safe and stable communities for families to thrive. Must take steps to guarantee, as best as possible, the physical, mental and economic health of the populace. Protect the population from foreign and domestic threats be they physical threats, economic threats, or moral threats. Research innovative solutions to compete with foreign competition and strategic adversaries. And to mediate conflict and competition among citizens.

The family unit is of utmost importance for society as it ensures stable reproduction. The basic building block of a society is the family unit, not the individual. Much like a water molecule ceases to behave as water when it is split into hydrogen and oxygen, families behave differently than individuals. A family operates in the interest of a family and while an atomized individual only acts in their self-interest.

So then what roles should each member of the family perform? The father should lead the household, provide for the family, and teach a craft to the children. The mother should nurture the children, educate the children, and assist in the family craft. The children should learn from their parents, assist in chores, and continue the family legacy. This is not to imply that women should not help provide for their families or that men should not nurture their children, but the sexes have different roles to play.

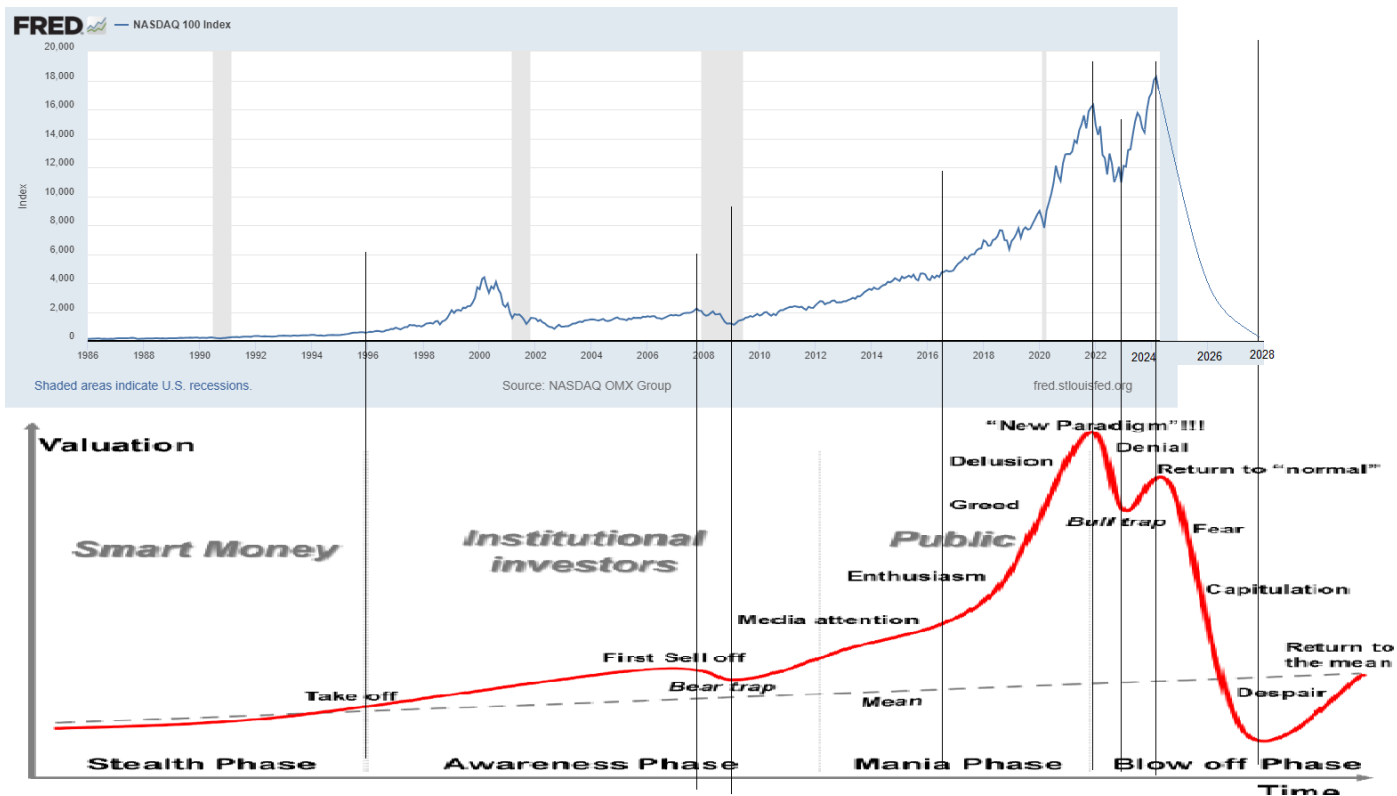

To ensure the economic health of each family each family should be given access to the means of production so they can independently produce goods for their communities. This could take many different forms; a family given a farm to produce food, a family given a bioreactor to produce medicine, a family given a 3d printer to produce molds for lost PLA casting. The list goes on. Classical distributism proposed 3 acres and a cow to make each family financially independent. The distributism of the fourth industrial revolution proposes 3D printers and a house.

It is not enough merely to guarantee access to the means of production, the state must innovate and direct research as well. To do this the state should set up several small labs focused on sustainable, small-scale production and open them to the public. Laboratories require expensive and specialized machinery to run tests, and they will need public funding. If they are to be funded by the citizens, then the citizens ought to have access to them to run tests of their own. Obviously access to certain laboratory facilities will have to be restricted based on expertise and hazardous materials will need strict oversight. The state is the only entity that could reasonably run the laboratories as the research may not be initially profitable. Subject matter experts will run each individual laboratory in their field of expertise and help determine who has access to which areas of the lab. These experts would be appointed by the local elected government officials.

A decentralized, adaptable, sustainable, autarkic, and innovative society will be made possible the 4th industrial revolution. The systems and processes necessary for such a society must be designed and adopted by independent citizens wanting a brighter future. Taking steps towards this world could be as simple as starting a business with a 3D printer. Makers, homesteaders, biohackers, STEM majors, tradesmen, and open-source developers must be the vanguard of this ideology and will have to play leading roles in any movements promoting the distributism of the 4th industrial revolution. The future can be bright if we want it to be.

[MOU38]How is this different than the paragraph that starts “First”? Is that about a duty to update?

The paragraph above is about not being misleading whenever the bank communicates to investors, in any context, but including post-bail-in a registered offering to the public. This paragraph is about affirmative reporting obligations that will be triggered by the bail-in. These are two different topics, but they probably could be combined if necessary. [TA39]

Further enhancement of the resolution regime would enhance financial stability and give the Mexican financial authorities more flexibility and reduce the costs of resolution measures. The regime includes a range of resolution options, including administrative liquidation. Bail-in powers are the missing component and should be introduced while appropriately protecting creditors; the creditor hierarchy should be revised to make the newly introduced requirements for banks’ loss-absorbing capacity more effective. The foregoing would ensure that shareholders and unsecured and uninsured creditors absorb losses prior to using public funds. Furthermore, the authorities should trigger resolution when they deem a bank ‘nonviable’ instead of waiting for certain quantitative thresholds to be met. Moreover, the authorities should remove barriers to the effective use of two critical resolution tools: purchase and assumption transactions; and bridge banks. A (partial) purchase and assumption transaction with a bridge bank—likely preceded by bail-in—will need to become the primary resolution strategy for systemic banks instead of open bank assistance. Lastly, financial holding companies dominate the Mexican financial system and should be brought under the resolution regime, which would address build-in contagion risk and reduce the risk of concurrently applying diverging liquidation procedures for distressed group members.

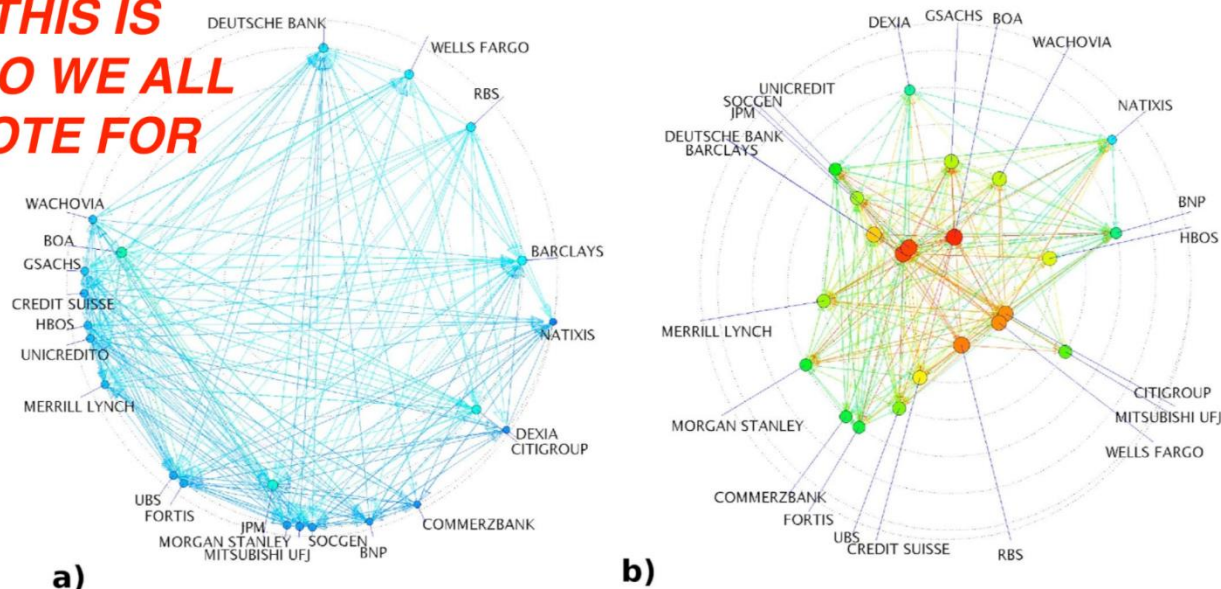

Figure 3 | The network of the top borrowers. Nodes represent financial institutions (selected as explained in the text). Outgoing links represent the estimated potential impact of an institution to another one (see Methods). The nodes are positioned within a circle of radius 1, centred in 0. The distance of each node from the center is $1 - R^{(D)}$, while the angle increases linearly with $R^{(D)}$ from 0 to 10π . Thus, the closer a node is to the center the higher is its DebtRank (the intuition here is its centrality). A node in the center (DebtRank = 1) is able to put under distress the entire economic value of the network. DebtRank decreases by moving outwards and leftwards along the spiral. The diagram allows at the same time to visualise the structure of the network and to compare the importance of any two given nodes. The size and the color of the node reflects the DebtRank value (larger and red nodes have higher DebtRank). The color of a link reflects the DebtRank of the node from which it originates (red links originate from node with high DebtRank and make high impact to the destination nodes). (a) Period one, at the beginning of the crisis (see also inset of Fig. 2a). Most of the nodes have low levels of DebtRank, i.e., they are located close to the border. (b) Period four (peak of the crisis). Nodes have comparable levels of DebtRank. However, they are also much more central, i.e., they can impact a large fraction of the total economic value. A single default is likely to trigger a systemic failure.

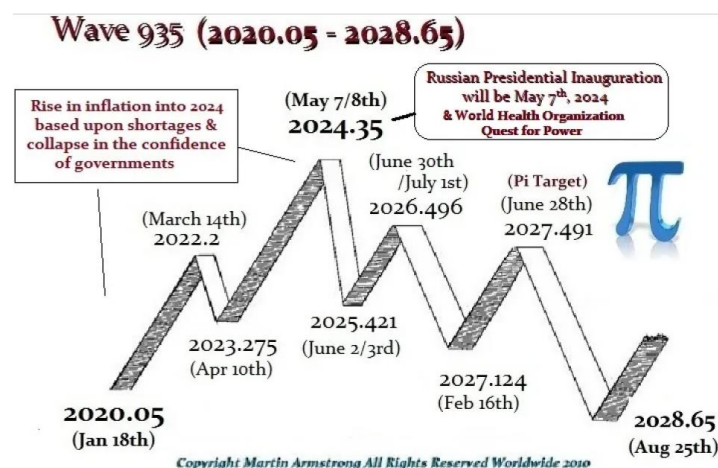

Now is the Time to Stockpile Cash

COMMENT: Marty, I don't know how your computer does it, but it called for high in stocks, gold, and a coming recession. At the WEC, you said rates would decline into 2025, but not dramatically, because of the war. You also said the dollar was not dead. You said Trump would not have clear sailing when everyone seemed to assume a bull market from here. Thank you for teaching me to see the world as a whole. Your WEC for the Next Generation is a spectacular idea. My kids will be enrolled.

ANSWER: The Fed knows it is trapped. Raising interest rates no longer stops inflation because the government is the elephant in the room, and politicians will NEVER reduce spending based on Fed rate hikes. I do not know what it will take to have mainstream media stop publishing the BS that is confusing the nation and sending us cascading into this brick wall.

We are entering dangerous territory and heading into a very dark recession here, but there is a depression in Europe as we head into 2028. Be prepared for sovereign defaults in 2025. I am shocked at how many central banks are quietly starting to use the ECM.

At this stage in the game, stockpile CASH regardless of where you are - USA, Europe, Canada, Asia, or South America. We are headed into a period of deflation, but also one where the risk of banking problems based on the sovereign debt crisis will begin to unfold into 2028. Remember, the US dollar will be the LAST to fall.

From the Archive: Jews welcome the stranger

BY RAFFI WINEBURG NOVEMBER 30, 2014 1:22 PM

In 1965, an immigration bill arrived that Jewish groups could support. The Hart-Cellar Act sought to dismantle the quota system in place since 1924 and finally opened the doors to Asian, African and Middle Eastern populations. Although Jews, with Israel available, no longer needed the open doors, major Jewish groups still rushed to support the bill. In a joint statement, seven national Jewish groups, including the American Jewish Congress and the Conservative movement's United Synagogue of America, called the bill a "long overdue" change to the quota system that had "defaced our immigration policy and mocked our national protestations of equality."

Perhaps the most impassioned plea, however, came from a Jewish New York congressman named Leonard Farbstein, who told the House that the act would come too late for the Jews "buried in mass graves at Auschwitz, Dachau and Bergen-Belsen" who were denied U.S. visas.

But, Farbstein said, the new law would allow those murdered Jews to "rest easier in their graves" because America may now provide an easier haven to refugees.

Scholar's pre-Selichot talk in New City examines the legacies and values of once-new arrivals

From Mr. Kohler, Dr. Kobrin will move to Herbert Lehman, the Jewish governor of New York State who went on to represent the state in the Senate. "Lehman is the reason for the immigration legislation of 1965," she said. That was the Immigration and Naturalization Act, which overturned the 1924 immigration law. The 1965 act did away with national quotas, opened the country to far more people from far browner countries than had been permitted in before, and allowed immigration for family reunification. It was also known as the Hart-Cellar Act, after Senator Philip Hart (D-Mich.) and Representative Emanuel Celler, the extraordinarily long-serving Jewish Congressman from a frequently reconfigured part of New York City that always included Brooklyn.

"Lehman pushed and bankrolled the legislation," Dr. Kobrin said. "He did not get to see it passed — but he got it passed." He cared so deeply about it, she said, "because the quota system passed in 1924 did not reflect American values."

Diamond, the American Jewish Committee's Los Angeles director, who arranged the clerics' 25-member fact-finding mission, is hoping to bridge a comparable distance — between a life of promise and a life of uncertainty — for millions of noncitizens in the United States.

Diamond's key role in organizing this gathering was no isolated communal act. After months of delay, the U.S. Senate is set to vote on the most comprehensive immigration reform legislation in 27 years. And Jewish groups across the country are acting together in a way characteristic of the community on few issues besides Israel.

"It's about the right thing to do," said Robert Gittelsohn, co-founder of Conservatives for Comprehensive Immigration Reform, and a Republican. In op-ed pieces and interviews, Gittelsohn, a retired Jewish businessman from California's San Fernando Valley, has called certain GOP strategies on immigration reform "un-biblical" and "cruel."

Those leading an active push for the bill, which will offer a path to citizenship for some of the nation's 11 million undocumented aliens, include the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League, the Jewish Council for Public Affairs, Bend the Arc and the National Council of Jewish Women.

The Senate vote — and the even harder struggle that will follow in the Republican-controlled House — represents the fulfillment of a sustained campaign by the Jewish community for immigration reform, which has built momentum over the past decade.

Whether or not the necessary votes are mustered from both houses to land a historic immigration law reform bill on President Obama's desk, Jewish outreach, particularly in the Southwest — home to the largest share of America's emerging and increasingly powerful ethnic and interfaith populations — promises to be politically and socially influential beyond the issue it addresses.

California, with 2.6 million undocumented residents, is a front line in the battle for this reform. And a Jewish establishment ever mindful of its need to operate through alliances and coalitions to advance its own interests is not blind to the implications of the issue in a country whose demography is shifting rapidly. In addition to working with Latino groups, the ADL's Southwest regional office has forged alliances with Asian groups representing undocumented Koreans, Chinese, Filipino and other Asian Pacific immigrants in the Southland.

"It's the ethical thing to do," said HIAS president and CEO Mark Herfield, of the community's immigration reform activism. But he quickly added, "It's in our strategic interest."

Angelica Salas, executive director of the Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles, reflects the deepening relationship that Jewish groups are developing through their visibility on the immigration issue.

"I really admire the way that the Jewish community has gone deep in support of immigration reform," Salas told the Forward. A 15-

Community Questioning 'Open Door'

Debate Raging On Immigration

By NACHA CATTAN
FORWARD STAFF

One year after the September 11 terrorist attacks, a fierce debate has broken out within some central bodies in the Jewish organizational world over the community's traditional support for open immigration.

In a sharp break with the past, advocates of reduced immigration have been invited in recent months to speak before the General Assembly of United Jewish Communities as well as to board members of the American Jewish Committee and at an American Jewish Congress event. All three institutions have historically been staunch advocates of open immigration.

The shift in mood coincides with a shift in the general immigration debate, from one that centered on America's capacity to absorb needy immigrants to one focused on fears that open borders pose a security threat to Americans.

The shift also coincides with a radical decline in Jewish immigration following the fall of the Soviet Union a decade ago. Jewish immigration agencies such as the New York Association for New Americans have seen their refugee budgets halved in the past three years alone, while the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society has openly debated what role Jewish immigration agencies should play in an era without large numbers of Jewish immigrants.

In a recent parry in that debate, HIAS opened a satellite office in Nairobi this fall. It is the agency's first-ever overseas center for processing non-Jewish immigrants.

Pro-immigration advocates say the debate does not represent shifting Jewish public opinion but merely reflects lobbying efforts by a few highly vocal opponents.

"I have not yet seen it rise to the level of a concerted anti-immigration drive within the community as opposed to a small group outside the community that's trying to convince the community," said Gary Rubin, managing director of the Commission on the Jewish People of UIA-Federation of New York.

But the Forward has found that support for reduced immigration is far more widespread in the Jewish institutional establishment than pro-immigration advocates allow.

"It's my impression that more people in the Jewish community are revisiting the traditional position on immigration quotas and limitations in light of the problems that we have become aware of since 9/11," the AJCommittee's Midwest regional director, Jonathan Levine, told the Forward in an interview.

Voicing what he said were his personal views and not his organization's, Levine continued: "We simply can't allow in the numbers of immigrants we are letting in. Not because it's good or bad to let them in, but because we don't have the ability to effectively regulate the immigration process."

Levine's own organization is "reviewing" its immigration policy for the first time since the 1970s, according to AJCommittee's director of domestic policy, Jeffrey Sinensky.

"We're looking at national security issues that emerged post-9/11," Sinensky said. "It's important that in addition to due process concerns we want to make sure law enforcement has the tools it needs to track people in the United States. Looking at [our immigration policy] does not necessarily mean changing it."

Although no Jewish agency has formally switched sides, the professional head of one major national organization, who requested anonymity, told the Forward: "It seems that Jewish opinions are changing and trending toward more concern about security issues than in the past."

The AJCommittee's 2001 Annual Survey of American Jewish Opinion showed a stark drop in support for maintaining current immigration numbers. In 2001, 49% of those polled wanted immigration numbers decreased, compared to 27% the year before.

Among the advocates of immigration restrictions who have been seeking inroads in the Jewish community are Stephen Steinlight, editor of South Asia in Review and a onetime AJCommittee director of national affairs, Dan Stein, executive director of the Federation for American Immigration Reform in Washington, and Mark Krikorian, executive director of the Center for Immigration Studies.

Krikorian was one of four speakers at a forum on immigration at the General Assembly last week in Philadelphia, the largest annual gathering of Jewish communal leaders. Barbara Rosenthal, a UIC lay leader who moderated the panel, said that inviting Krikorian was "just good programming" and not a sign of "any reversal of Jewish policy." The forum, titled: "Immigration Policy and Terrorism. Is the Community at a Crossroads?" included three pro-immigration speakers, one of whom was the president and CEO of HIAS, Leonard Glickman.

Krikorian and Steinlight were invited in June to an AJCongress panel discussion in Philadelphia. It was hosted by the executive director of AJCongress's Pennsylvania Region, Joseph Puder, and its treasurer, Robert Guzzardi.

The third panelist, Theodore Mann, a former chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, represented the traditional Jewish view favoring open borders. But he stepped out of his liberal shoes at one point during the discussion and called for the State Department to apply stricter standards to people emigrating from countries that "encourage" or "permit" the teaching of hatred for the West in the press and in schools.

Krikorian went further: "I would submit that whatever reforms or changes or tightening up we enact in our immigration policy need to be across the board and not targeted at Muslims, because ultimately that's not going to work."

Puder, a former head of the far-right Americans for a Safe Israel, said the panelists' opinions did not represent those of the AJCongress. He declined to offer his own views. But Guzzardi was more than happy to. "Immigration needs to be re-looked at and there need to be further restrictions, particularly on Muslim immigration," he said. "If you asked me what our sense of our membership was, our membership was more open to some of Mark Krikorian's ideas."

HIAS officials have maintained in recent years that the dwindling number of Jewish immigrants should not erode the Jewish commitment to immigration. While 80,000 of 120,000 refugees entering the United States in 1991 were Jewish, a decade later only 20,000 of 70,000 total refugees were Jews, according to Nyana officials. HIAS officials maintain that Jews should continue to support immigration of other groups. "The more diverse American society is the safer [Jews] are," Glickman told the Forward

The HIAS Nairobi office is being funded by a $750,000 gift from an anonymous donor who specified that it be used to help African refugees, according to HIAS officials.

The goal of the legislation was to keep America an Anglo-Saxon country. Celler spent the next 40 years seeking to overturn the Johnson Acts and finally did so in 1965 as a co-sponsor of the Hart-Celler Act.

Jews Unite Behind Push for Immigration Reform

"It's in our strategic interest."

Rabbi Mark Diamond peers through a corrugated-iron wall along the border with Mexico. The American Jewish Committee leader is part of a nearly unprecedented push by Jewish groups for immigration reform.

'Historically, Jews had always thrived in nations and empires with multicultural, pluralistic and tolerant environments, while they fared badly in strong ethnic or nationalistic societies. European Jews have always been the emblematic stranger or 'other'.

'Therefore, by definition, a society where the stranger is welcome is good for the Jews, although they have not always appreciated this link.

'The future of European Jewry is dependant on our ability to shape a multicultural, pluralistic and diverse society.'

We conducted an investigation to understand how 2,000 Haitian migrants suddenly arrived in Charleroi, Pennsylvania. The answer: an open conspiracy between the federal government, publicly funded NGOs, and private corporations. Here’s how it works: city-journal.org/article/charle...

“I think there is a resurgence of anti-Semitism because at this point in time Europe has not yet learned how to be multicultural. And I think we are going to be part of the throes of that transformation, which must take place. Europe is not going to be the monolithic societies they once were in the last century. Jews are going to be at the centre of that. It’s a huge transformation for Europe to make. They are now going into a multicultural mode and Jews will be resented because of our leading role.”

DONALD TRUMP IS TURNING ME LIBERAL

The real reason Jewish conservatives hate Trump. Hint: It has nothing to do with Iraq.

By James Kirchick

March 14, 2016 • 10:00 PM

Yet that assumption is not one that we can reassure ourselves with any longer. A staple of anti-Semitic complaint from the Nazis to Donald Trump's newfound friends in the Klan is that Jews are always and everywhere the devious orchestrators of racial integration. Rootless cosmopolitans, Jews allegedly promote immigration and miscegenation so as to bring about a more diverse society in which they can sublimate their own ethnic difference. Through this "mongrelization," Jews will precipitate the demise of white, Christian communities, thereby destroying the last vestige of resistance to their assertion of pernicious control.

Unlike other anti-Semitic memes, there is truth in this observation, though not of course for the reasons that Nazis and white supremacists think. Jews have indeed played disproportionate roles in struggles for racial equality, from the movement against South African apartheid to the cause of civil rights in the United States. And while Jews felt called to these movements by faith, universalistic political commitments, or an innate sense of justice, doing so was also in their communal self-interest. A country that is politically pluralistic, open to new ideas and new people, ethnically diverse, and respectful of religious difference, is a country that will naturally be safer for Jews than a country that is none of these things. This, I believe, is why so many Jews, foreign policy hawks or not, innately fear Donald Trump.

These last few weeks, I've come to appreciate the Jewish identification with liberalism (both in its classical and modern American political form) more than at any other point in my life, and in a way no history book or sermon by a rabbi could relate. The fate of Jewish life in the West is inextricably bound to democracy, pluralism, religious tolerance and ethnic harmony. If there's a silver lining to the resistible rise of Donald Trump, it's that it has forced us to realize this truth.

"You shall neither wrong a stranger, nor oppress him: for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." - Exodus 22:21

Through the ages, the above verse has served as a guiding Jewish principle. This call for enhanced sensitivity to oppressed minorities placed Jews at the forefront of a variety of noble struggles, particularly in the United States. As noted by author Charles Silberman, "American Jews are committed to cultural tolerance because of their belief-one firmly rooted in history-that Jews are safe only in a society acceptant of a wide range of attitudes and behaviors, as well as a diversity of religious and ethnic groups."

4chan has discovered the influx of indian immigrants post covid and im here to shed light on what actually happens in india

Ngo led (via funding) by the jews have been going to schools in literally every country of the subcontinent barring bhutan and brainwashinglencouraging v young students (4th-7th grade) that their future lies oversea in america and europe. Such programs have been going in bangladesh and india for a decade now and have established elements of an industrial operation.

India and the neighbours are armed to the teeth w courses, packages to get them through (fairly or unfairly) all the english and entrance exams, and even if you fail you can just go to fraudulent agencies who will get you on the shores of canada and aus for less than 18k usd plus ticket

I have personally met a industrialist who has sent 60k sikhs, 50k non sikhs (mostly hindu, some musalman) to canada post covid lockdown, all illegally and all this is encouraged by overseas ngo who are surprisingly always of one ethnicity,

Ofcourse these places (USA, Canada, AUS, UK, NZ and ger) were always destination for the indian diaspora but what you have been seeing recent years is unnatural, manufactured outflux from the subcontinent designed to alter the future demographich of your countries.

You have to recognize the industrialization of this process- initiation/brainwashing, support structure, trafficking network, support from the govt of destination country, legal aid, financial aid (not really it is just another form of jewish student debt trap). Once you recognize the sheer will and methodology of your enemy then only can you solve the influx of immigrant virus to your nations but if you dont heed it, and refuse the name the jews who have constructed these operations, your demographich change will reach a critical point where only extreme political will, would overturn the damage

The downside of diversity

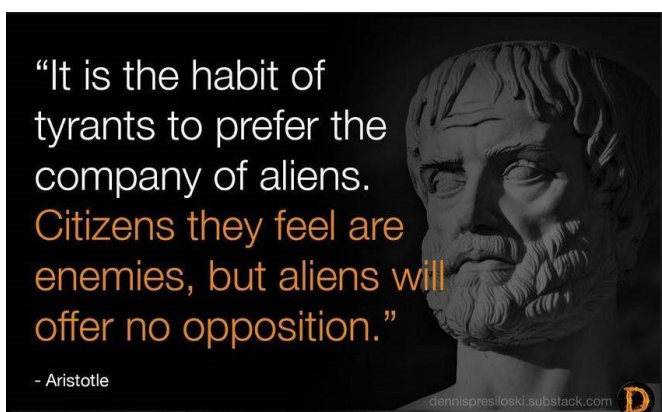

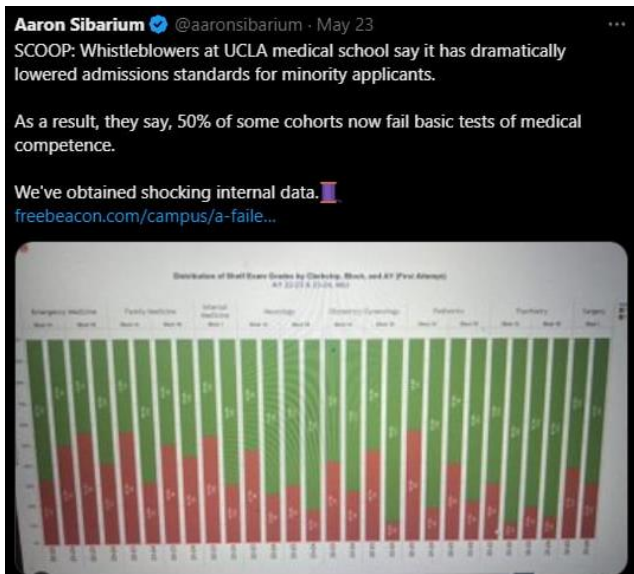

The New York Times

By MICHAEL JONAS AUG. 5, 2007

IT HAS BECOME increasingly popular to speak of racial and ethnic diversity as a civic strength. From multicultural festivals to pronouncements from political leaders, the message is the same: our differences make us stronger.

But a massive new study, based on detailed interviews of nearly 30,000 people across America, has concluded just the opposite. Harvard political scientist Robert Putnam -- famous for "Bowling Alone," his 2000 book on declining civic engagement -- has found that the greater the diversity in a community, the fewer people vote and the less they volunteer, the less they give to charity and work on community projects. In the most diverse communities, neighbors trust one another about half as much as they do in the most homogenous settings. The study, the largest ever on civic engagement in America, found that virtually all measures of civic health are lower in more diverse settings.

"The extent of the effect is shocking," says Scott Page, a University of Michigan political scientist.

Does diversity make teams work better?

Apparently not!

A new, comprehensive preregistered meta-analysis found that, whether the diversity was demographic, cognitive, or occupational, its relationship with performance was near-zero.

These authors were very thorough

Just take a look at the meta-analytic estimates. These are in terms of correlations, and they are corrected for attenuation

These effect sizes are significant due to the large number of studies, but they are very low, even after blowing them up

Model	es	LCL	UCL	k
Random-Effects Multilevel Model	0.02	0.01	0.03	2629
Robust Variance Estimation	0.03	0.02	0.04	646
Trim-and-fill	0.03	0.02	0.04	646
P-uniform star	0.06	0.04	0.08	646
Hedges-Vecvea Selection Model	0.06	0.04	0.08	646
Precision Effect Test	0.03	0.02	0.04	646
Precision Effect Estimate using Standard Error	0.03	0.03	0.04	646

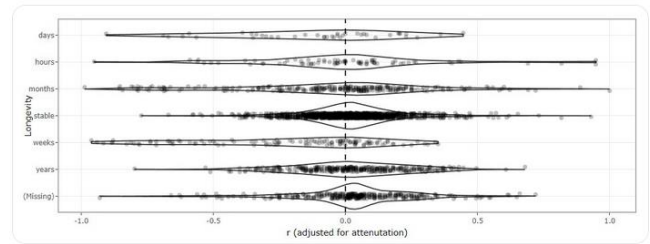

Notes: LCL = Lower 95 % Confidence Limit, UCL = Upper 95 % Confidence Limit, k = number of effects.

You may ask yourself: are there hidden moderators?

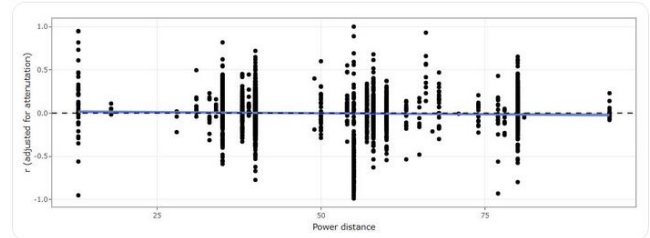

The answer looks to be 'probably not.' Team longevity, industry sector, performance measures, power distance, year or country of study, task complexity, team interdependence, etc.

None of it really mattered.

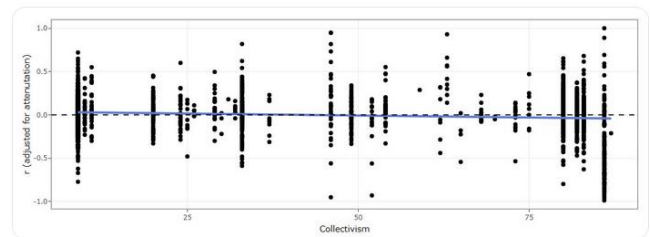

Here's longevity:

Here's power distance:

Here's collectivism:

But let's put this into practical terms.

Using these disattenuated effects, if you selected from two groups you expected to have comparable performance otherwise, but one was more diverse, you'd make the 'correct' (higher-performing) decision in 51% of cases (vs. 50%).

That assumes there really hasn't been any bias in what gets published. If there has been, you might want to adjust your estimate downwards towards zero, or upwards if you think the literature was rigged the other way.

The paper paints an unsupportive picture of the idea that diversity on its own makes teams more performant.

I recommend giving it a read.

🇫🇷 Data shows foreigners commit 69% of crimes on French public transport.

Africans are 3.2% of the population of France, but commit 52 percent of crimes on public transport and 42 percent of violent crime generally.

Last year, 69 percent of violent robberies and other violent crimes, including sexual assaults, on public transport in the greater Paris region of Île-de-France were perpetrated by foreign nationals, according to the annual figures of the SSMSI, the statistics bureau of the French Ministry of Interior.

However, looking closer at the data, it is revealed that Africans alone are responsible for 52 percent of such crimes while only representing 3.2 percent of the population of France.

Even for all of France, the data clearly shows that African nationals account for 42 percent of the above-mentioned types of crimes, way above their statistical weight within the French population.

In the state I grew up in Texas the governor originally stated that he was not going to support the undemocratic policy of desegregation.
Effectively the federal government said that they would overthrow the states do the elected government and quite literally at the tip of a bayonet enforce desegregation.
It was a majority unpopular decision that the federal government flexed all of its muscles to enforce.
Even the Supreme Court ruling for desegregation of schools was completely phony and decades later those involved bragged of circumventing the justice system and highest court in the country to implement "racial Justice"
It's not an exaggeration to say that the Civil Rights Act circumvented and replaced the constitution in the United States

Haitians are children to most Americans. This is what I've learned over the last 48 hours.

Haitians aren't to blame for having children when they have to eat mud. Haitians aren't to blame when they murder and rape each other. Haitians aren't to blame when they have murderous revolutions every 10 years.

Children can't be expected to learn to farm. Children can't be expected to not physically fight each other. Children can't be expected to invent anything, discover anything, or build anything.

Children lack agency. Children need to be taken care of. Children deserve love and support, even when they act out or violate rules.

People think Haitians are literal children.

I've been wondering how to articulate this. You see the same pattern in the "White flight" and inner city mayhem debate.

Feminine energy gives up on or submits to what it cannot control. Gangs shooting toddlers in the face? Well we can't control them but we can berate Richie Cunningham with his tucked in polo shirt who always sits up straight and eats his peas. Because he's controllable and attends his mandatory DEI seminars.

Once you're so far outside of the Longhouse "locus of control" then you're granted immunity and everything you do wrong is blamed on someone else who IS controllable.

I'm in Springfield.

They're not contributing as there's no employment base here, jobs at GFS of McGregor they're firing Americans to hire on Haitians that work cheaper.

The vast majority of the Haitians are living only on the $500 to $1500 a month they get from the benies the Govt. gives them.

Out hospital has an over 800% increase in Hiv/AIDS cases and a 500% increase in TB.

There are serious car wrecks every single day now and as the Haitians are driving without licence or insurance there's no recourse, and even if the police arrest them the court is so overburdened the courts are just releasing them.

Because of all the car wrecks my insurance man tells me the car insurance here is about to TRIPLE in price.

Housing has gone to be insane, where certain landlords can get $500 per Haitian so they fill a two bedroom house with 10 or more Haitians where they can get $5,000 a month for Haitians vs. the more standard $650 a month for an American family.

Then there's the houses for sale, little old crackshacks have gone from selling around $30,000 to $200,000 for the premium of the housing shortage crisis.

Women cannot go out shopping by themselves, go to Meijers or WalMart and groups of Haitian men are wandering around and following women in the stores and out in the parking lots, women are scared.

Sheriff's deputy told me that retail thefts are up 15000% from 4 years ago, again even if the police arrest the Haitians the courts let them go.

Springfield had it's problems, but this has destroyed the city.

I'm calling a realtor on Monday.

Shibuya is no longer a place you can casually visit.

This is a video of Peruvians fighting and pulling out knives, but as you can see, the passersby are also made up of rough-looking foreigners.

There are Japanese people here too, but they just ignore it as if it's a normal part of life, and what's worse, the police never come.

Who likes to call these bad foreigners "inbound tourists"?

Chers membres et amis,

Je tiens à partager avec vous une réflexion sur l'importance de notre engagement envers l'humanité, indépendamment de nos croyances personnelles. En tant que croyante, je crois fermement en la liberté de pratiquer sa religion. Cependant, je souhaite clarifier un point concernant les réunions de notre confrérie. Quelle que soit notre foi, nous sommes tenus d'être présents lors des rencontres, où nous prions ensemble un Dieu que certains nomment Lucifer, pour discuter de nos préoccupations et défis quotidiens. Il est présent dans chaque aspect de notre vie et nous offre son soutien sans rien demander en retour, si ce n'est notre vénération, notre respect et notre conformité à ses principes. Dear members and friends,

I would like to share with you a reflection on the importance of our commitment to humanity, regardless of our personal beliefs. As a believer, I firmly believe in the freedom to practice one's religion. However, I would like to clarify one point regarding the meetings of our brotherhood. Whatever our faith, we are required to be present at meetings, where we pray together to a God whom some call Lucifer, to discuss our daily concerns and challenges. He is present in every aspect of our lives and offers us his support without asking for anything in return, except our veneration, our respect and our conformity to his principles. THE JEWS AND MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES BEFORE 1810.

BY SAMUEL OPPENHEIM.*

In an article in Moore's Freemason's Monthly Magazine, Vol. XV., p. 183 (Boston, April, 1856), the editor, commenting on the religious views of several Jewish ministers, took occasion to make the following remarks in regard to what had been said by the then late M. M. Noah:

We have understood that Dr. Noah was a Mason, but know not how that may have been.¹ With his liberal views there is certainly nothing in Masonry to which he could have taken exception. Many of the most eminent of his Jewish brethren were in his day filling high and honorable places in the fraternity. The Grand Lodges of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, and Louisiana, and perhaps some others, have at different times elevated distinguished brethren of the Jewish faith to the dignity of Grand-mastership. They were gentlemen and Masons of enlarged views and liberal minds; and by the exercise of a tolerant spirit and a courteous bearing towards those who differed from them in matters of conscience endeared themselves to their Christian brethren, and contributed largely to elevate the social position of those to whom they were allied by ties of kindred blood.

In line with the first part of this quotation is the following excerpt from an editorial by Dr. Isaac M. Wise,² in The Israelite for August 3, 1855:

Masonry is a Jewish institution whose history, degrees, charges, passwords, and explanations are Jewish from the beginning to Crucified German (St. Andrew's Cross of the Lodges)

Anyone who wants to understand and comprehend the nature of world Freemasonry must first of all have recognized Judaism. Anyone who knows Judaism will understand the nature and the danger of Freemasonry. Freemasonry is an international organization led by world Jewry and completely subservient to world Jewry with the political goal of giving Judaism world domination.

Two large and powerful international organizations are fighting and contending for the political leadership of the whole world: Jesuitism, which wants to realize on earth the State of God ("civitas dei") preached by Saint Augustine, and Judaism, with its secret Jewish leadership, which wants to achieve the world empire promised by the Jewish God Jehovah to the prophet Moses.

While Jesuitism sought to gain its position as a political world power over the Roman Catholic Church, Judaism took different paths; in part it set up international organizations of various kinds itself, in part it forced its way into organizations founded by Aryans, very quickly seizing control of them and converting them to its political goals.

Disguised work of Freemasonry in other organizations

It has already been stated that it contradicts the nature of Masonic activity to allow Masonic organizations to attract attention through open action - especially of a political nature - even though many Masonic documents and testimonies are available to prove the existence of such actions. To achieve its ideals and objectives, Freemasonry has created front organizations which are not outwardly recognizable as Masonic, but which must be considered the expedient creations of Freemasonry, in addition to the great merger associations of individual members from the most varied lodges. Thus the governing bodies of welfare institutions, trade associations, educational institutions, academic bodies, public educational organizations, etc., were filled with a great many Freemasons, who took care that the Masonic ideology reached the broadest segments of the population.

Cooperation with nearly all supranational associations, such as the Esperanto Club, the Universal League for Human Rights, the Association of Friends of the New Russia, the German Peace Society, the Society of Friends, the German Association for the League of Nations, the Bluntschli-Committee, the German Free Association, Universal Brotherhood, the League for Inner Peace, and the League for the Promotion of Humanity, can be proven on the basis of documents, and was actively pursued in accordance with the aims of the lodges. For the most part, these same organizations, only a few of which can be mentioned here, were founded by Freemasons and Masonic committees.

An example of the prevailing spirit of these organizations and their Masonic founders, may be found in the Pan-European Movement of the Vienna higher degree Freemason Coudenhove-Kalergi. This movement worked for the merger of all European nations into a Federal State, called the Pan-European Union. As the movement took on greater proportions, Coudenhove-Kalergi withdrew from his Vienna lodge as a tactical cover, to avoid implicating the lodge in his political activity.

In 1925, Coudenhove-Kalergi wrote the following sentences in his article "Practical Idealism":

"The Mankind of the future will be a racial mongrel. Today's races and castes will fall before the increasing overcoming of space, time, and prejudice. The Eurasiatic-

Jews form a new race of nobility

Negroid race of the future, outwardly similar to the ancient Egyptians, will replace the multiplicity of peoples through a multiplicity of personalities."

The text "Nobility", published in 1924, says of the Jews on page 39:

"Thus finally, out of all these persecutions, a small community arose, hardened to steel by a heroically borne martyrdom of the spirit, and purified of all elements weak of will or poor of spirit. Instead of annihilating Jewry, persecution has ennobled Europe despite itself through an artificial selection process, raising the Jews to the leading nation among all peoples. No wonder then that this people, sprung from the ghetto, has become a spiritual nobility in Europe. Thus has a kind Providence given Europe a new race of nobility and spiritual graces through the emancipation of the Jews, when the feudal nobility fell apart."

The demand for a great supranational Federation of States, whose members would represent a barren racial mongrelism and in which only the "race of nobility of spiritual graces", the Jew, would be allowed to remain pure, is the uttermost consequence of the Masonic ideology.

The Grand Lodge of Vienna went enthusiastically to work for the Pan-European Union in a call to all Masonic chief authorities. Even the Masonic newspaper "The Beacon" enthused about the thoughts of the higher degree Freemason Coudenhove, and stated in March 1925:

"Freemasonry, especially Austrian Freemasonry, may be eminently satisfied to have Coudenhove among its members. Austrian Freemasonry can rightly report that Brother Coudenhove fights for his Pan-European beliefs: political honesty, social insight, the struggle against lies, striving for the recognition and cooperation of all those of good will.

"In this higher sense, Brother Coudenhove's programme is a Masonic work of the highest order, and to be able to work on it together is a lofty task for all brother Masons."

1. The basic concepts of Freemasonry

The most contradictory declarations are made regarding the principles of Freemasonry by lodge organizations and of the future

Thus, the aim is to achieve an international association of humanity beyond race and nationality. Freemasons are proud that Negroes, the yellow races, and Jews are to stand with equal rights next to the white man in this universal chain of brotherhood.

For Masons of the Grand Orient de France, the pursuit of progress has always been at the forefront of their minds and deeds to the extent that makes this principle an integral part of the Tradition of the Order. We are the heirs of men and women who have endeavoured, in their own way, to improve Humanity: Voltaire, La Fayette, Garibaldi, Auguste Blanqui, Victor Schoelcher, the Emir Abd El-Kader, Louise Michel, Bakounine, Jean Zay, Félix Eboué, Pierre Brossolette and the so many others who have graced our Lodges with their presence. Consequently, the Grand Orient de France is a watchful defender of the principles embodied in its maxim which is also that of the French Republic: "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

As a result, the Grand Orient de France is bonded to the absolute freedom of conscience which is guaranteed by non-secular institutions. Accordingly, the Grand Orient de France is vehemently opposed to racism and the enemies of democracy.

Freemasons in everyday life.

Freemasonry, by Brosset.

(The Grand Orient has just held its convention.)

Its troubled and obscure origins link it to the Templars. In truth, Freemasonry is the church of Satan. She abhors the truth of Christ and falls under the prince of lies.

It came to light in the 17th and 18th centuries: the philosophers of the Encyclopedia revealed its errors. It was well worn in salons in England, France, and Germany, eager for unhealthy novelty.

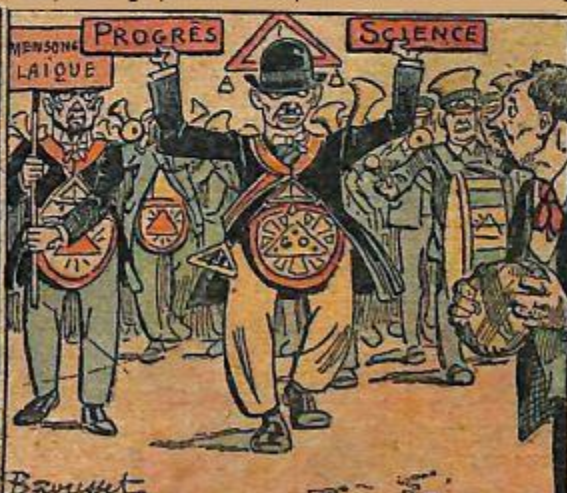

It claimed to be an institution of philanthropy, when it was only an enterprise of corruption and destruction. It took on the exterior of charity to gain acceptance, but, deep down, it is a sect of hatred.

It claims to free the human spirit from ancient superstitions, but, to our spirit hungry for truth, it offers nothing but an amalgam of ridiculous rites, masking a profound corruption and a doctrine of nothingness.

It succeeded in conquering power by flattering the political ambitions and the base instincts of the human beast; under the pretext of democracy, it advocates demagoguery and revolution, it has undermined thrones and destroyed all authority.

It advocates Progress, Science, with capital letters; in truth, its lying pundits mock the ignorant masses. Brother Voltaire said: The people are stupid, they are only good at eating hay.

The one-year anniversary of the October 7 is upon us — and Israel, its media puppets, and bought-and-paid-for politicians are still spewing shameless lies to justify a horrific genocide.

So, let's tear apart the web of lies they've sold about October 7 once and for all. 🗨️ 1/

2/ 40 Beheaded Babies

On October 10 reporter Nicole Zedeck of i24 News, a pro-Israeli news channel, claimed that she saw 40 babies with their heads cut off. This claim spread quickly, fueled by major media outlets, Israeli officials, and even President Biden.

Except, no such thing happened according to numerous legacy publications, including CNN (which retracted their initial report), +972 Magazine, Le Monde, Business Insider (which cited Israeli officials retracting the claim), and Haaretz.

But the lie continues to be regurgitated to this day, most notably by Kamala Harris in her debate last month against Donald Trump.

3/ Mass Rape

Following the October 7 attack, Israel and its media allies pushed a narrative of mass rape by Hamas as a deliberate strategy. Major outlets like BBC and The New York Times amplified these unverified claims, all sourced from Israeli authorities.

Despite Israel's efforts, evidence for these claims has fallen apart, with families and witnesses denying the reports. Even the UN has called the sources unreliable.

This false narrative continues to be weaponized today to paint Hamas as monsters while deflecting from Israel's ongoing violence against Palestinians.

4/ Babies Killed in Ovens

Eli Beer, President of United Hatzala, claimed that Hamas placed a baby in an oven during the Oct. 7 attacks. This shocking story was repeated in major media outlets, including CNN, Fox, and the Daily Wire.

However, Israeli journalists later found no evidence to support the claim, and it was not until several months later that Beer admitted he hadn't witnessed it himself. Haaretz later acknowledged the story as untrue.

But it's worth noting, it was the Israelis who reportedly threw a Palestinian boy in an oven during the Nakba of 1948.

5/ Family of 4 Tortured Around Dining Table

On October 31, Secretary of State Antony Blinken shared a gruesome story during a Senate hearing, claiming that a family of four, including two young children, were tortured and mutilated by Hamas attackers, with details like gouged eyes, amputated limbs, and terrorists sitting down to eat at the family's table. This shocking account was repeated across major media outlets, further fueling outrage.

However, the story was later debunked by multiple sources, including Israeli journalists and victim data, which found no evidence of a family matching this description.

But nonetheless, the horrifying shocking but untrue accounts had already spread widely, shaping public perception and justifying continued U.S. military support for Israel, despite the lack of evidence behind the narrative.

The Blinken Story Does Not Match Victim Data

Melayev specifically puts this scene in Kfar Azza, which is highly unlikely since the youngest person killed in Kfar Azza was 14. Indeed, there are no Kibbutzes where a father, mother, son, and daughter family were killed.

At Kibbutz Be'er, two 12-year-old twins (a boy and a girl) were killed in addition to their great aunt and grandfather. However, their grandfather was killed separately in another home and the twins were killed with their great-aunt when the IDF fired a tank shell into their home to end a standoff with militants holding them hostage.

There is one family that matches the family and ages and that is the Kapshetar family:

- Ethan Kapshetar (5M)
- Aline Kapshetar (8F)
- Dina Kapshetar (34F)
- Evgeni Kapshetar (36M)

This family meets the description of two parents, a daughter, and son, of around 6 and 8 years old. And all four were indeed tragically killed on October 7. However, while the details are sparse, what we know for sure is that this family was killed in their car, driving back from a camping trip on the morning of Oct 7, not in a Kibbutz. Given they were camping, it is also unlikely they would have had a meal prepared on the table of their home. We also know that it took 10 days to identify Aline who was originally thought missing, and Yossi Landau told his account of the family of four only 5 days after Oct 7.

6/ Babies Hung on Clotheslines

On November 28, Israeli journalist Ishay Coen posted an interview claiming that Hamas hung dead babies on clotheslines during the October 7 attack. The claim, made by Lt. Col. Yaron Buskila, spread widely on Israeli social media but was later debunked. Coen eventually deleted the post, admitting the story may not have been accurate.

Haaretz confirmed that death toll numbers from the National Insurance Institute of Israel showed no evidence of babies being hung on clotheslines.

אחרי פרסום הפרומו, עלו טענות ולכן מחקתי מיד בתוך דקות. ועדיין, גם הבוקר, דובר צה"ל נמנע מלטיעון שמדובר בסיפור לא נכון. אנב, המראיין מתעקש שהסיפור מדויק ואף היה לכך עד נוסף.

As I emphasized yesterday. The interview was offered to me by the IDF spokesperson. I did not know the interviewee before. A representative of DoC was present in all the filming and approved the broadcast (in other footage, when there were comments, they asked to be edited or avoided). After posting the promo, there were complaints, so I immediately deleted it within minutes. And yet, even this morning, the IDF spokesman refrained from claiming that this was a false story. By the way, the interviewee insists that the story is accurate and there was even another witness to this.

Israel-Palestine war: Israeli personnel gave false information about 7 October attack crimes - report

Haaretz report claims stories of many alleged crimes committed by Palestinians, which were published around the world, were based on unverified and inaccurate accounts

HAARETZ

Hamas Committed Documented Atrocities. But a Few False Stories Feed the Deniers

The extensive evidence of crimes against humanity committed by Hamas terrorists on October 7 should not be contaminated by unverified stories disseminated by Israeli search and rescue groups, army officers and even Sara Netanyahu

7/ Hamas Put Babies in Cages

In the days following the October 7 attacks, a video showing children in cages was widely shared on social media, with captions falsely claiming they were Israeli hostages held by Hamas.

This claim was quickly debunked by fact-checking sources such as FakeReporter, France24, and Snopes. All confirmed the video was not related to Israeli hostages, and that there is no evidence supporting the claim that Hamas kept children in cages.

8/ Pregnant Woman Forced to Give Birth in Captivity

In November, Sara Netanyahu sent a letter to First Lady Jill Biden claiming that a pregnant Israeli woman, allegedly a Thai national named Nutthawaree Munkan, had been held captive by Hamas and gave birth while in captivity.

The story was later debunked by Haaretz. According to the report, Munkan's friends, family, and employer denied that she was pregnant, and Israeli defense officials confirmed there was no evidence of a pregnant woman being abducted. When Munkan was released, she appeared on video, showing no signs of pregnancy or having given birth. Despite this, the claim had already spread widely online, including coverage by The Daily Mail and Visegrad 24, before being proven false.

The woman who allegedly gave birth to a baby while held hostage by Hamas has purportedly been named and pictured by Israeli sources.

Nutthawaree Munkan, 35, is among the 240 hostages, including 25 Thai migrant workers, held in Gaza since Hamas' shocking incursion into Israel on October 7.

Hamas Committed Documented Atrocities. But a Few False Stories Feed the Deniers

The extensive evidence of crimes against humanity committed by Hamas terrorists on October 7 should not be contaminated by unverified stories disseminated by Israeli search and rescue groups, army officers and even Sara Netanyahu

Another doubtful claim was made by the prime minister's wife, Sara Netanyahu, in a letter to U.S. First Lady Jill Biden. Sara Netanyahu wrote that one of the women was in her ninth month of pregnancy when she was abducted into Gaza, where she gave birth. People on social media published a photo of the hostage, Nutthawaree Munkan, a Thai citizen.

In a magazine interview, her friends, employer and families denied that she was pregnant. Munkan was released over a week ago; she was not pregnant and had not given birth. The army currently has no information about an abducted pregnant woman, and defense officials consider the story an unsubstantiated rumor. The Prime Minister's Office did not respond.

9/ Hamas Beheaded Unborn Baby

Claims that Hamas militants killed a pregnant woman, cut open her stomach, and beheaded her baby were widely circulated by Israeli officials, media, and social platforms. The story, initially shared by Yossi Landau from ZAKA, was echoed by others, including Eli Beer and the IDF.

However, it was later debunked by Haaretz and fact-checkers, who found no evidence supporting the incident.

Eli Beer, the head of prominent Israeli EMS organization United Hatzalah, claims he was an eyewitness to the incident described by Landau. In a speech at the Republican Jewish Convention on Nov 5, Beer alleged that the Hamas fighters first stabbed the baby, then shot her, and then shot her other children who were present (see 4:38-5:32):

I saw in my own eyes a woman who was pregnant, four months pregnant. She was in a little village, a little kibbutz. They came into her house. In front of her kids they opened up her stomach. She was pregnant. They opened up her stomach, took out the baby and stabbed the little tiny baby in front of her. And then shot her in front of her family and then they killed the rest of the kids.

But no children 6 or 7 or near those ages were killed on Be'eri. House 426 is in the Ashelim neighborhood, which largely houses kibbutz veterans – older people. House 426 is also a two-family house where elderly families lived; Rafi Mordo was murdered and his neighbor, Simcha Shani, was wounded.

Shani and her husband did not mention a pregnant woman or a family with young children who were guests in their house. A clip was posted on social media describing the murder of a pregnant woman, but the website Fake Reporter and other sources say the video was not filmed in Israel.

The kibbutz adds that "the story of the pregnant woman reported by Zaka is not relevant to Be'eri." The police say the case is not known to them, and a pathology source at the Shura army base told Haaretz that he was unaware of the case.

10/ This is just the tip of the iceberg of lies spewed by Israel, our AIPAC-owned politicians, and the mainstream media puppets loyal to the Zionist regime.

The manipulation of facts and spreading of disinformation has been a key tactic of Israeli hasbara since its founding in 1948 — and today, it is a key tactic in Israel's ongoing campaign to justify its genocidal actions in Gaza and now Lebanon.

Most of the buildings in the hospital complex are extensively destroyed and the majority of assets damaged or reduced to ashes. Conclusion

The bombing density in Gaza is far greater than that of Europe during World War II. Specifically, the density of bombing in Gaza, based on these figures, is about 775 times higher than that of Europe during the war.

This comparison highlights the intensity of bombardment in Gaza relative to its small size.

U.N. Court Acknowledges Genocide Risk In Gaza, Dealing Historic Blow To Israel And U.S.

The International Court of Justice on Friday issued a stunning initial ruling in South Africa's legal challenge to Israel's devastating U.S.-backed military offensive in Gaza — acknowledging that there is a plausible risk of Israel committing genocide there and issuing six orders for a change in Israel's conduct as it combats the Gaza-based Palestinian militant group Hamas.

UN commission finds Israel guilty of “extermination,” “crimes against humanity,” killing Palestinians and Israeli hostages

Andre Damon @Andre__Damon
20 hours ago

The Israeli government and military have committed systematic “crimes against humanity,” including “extermination,” during their eight-month-long assault on Gaza, a key United Nations commission found in a report published Wednesday.

The report is the first in-depth investigation by the United Nations into the events that have happened since October 7 and is based on detailed interviews with victims and witnesses. The three-person commission is led by Navi Pillay, a former United Nations human rights chief.

The commission concluded that the Israeli military and government “committed the war crimes of starvation as a method of warfare; murder or willful killing; intentionally directing attacks against civilians and civilian objects; forcible transfer; sexual violence; outrages upon personal dignity; and [sexual and gender-based violence] amounting to torture or inhuman and cruel treatment.”

It found that Israel was responsible for the crimes against humanity. According to the report “extermination; murder; gender persecution targeting Palestinian men and boys; forcible transfer; and torture and inhuman and cruel treatment were committed.”

They:

- a.) disguised themselves (warcrime)
- b.) murdered injured soldiers
- c.) harmed innocent civilian bystanders

Articles 12 and 37 of the Geneva conventions cover this behavior. Article 51 covers their treatment of the hospital civilians. These are categorized as "grave breaches" of the Geneva Conventions.

Of course israel will argue that they were "terrorists", as if that is a magical word that removes all rights from an individual. If that is true, then they were civilians and deserved a civilian trial before execution. If they weren't terrorists, then they were unarmed combatants, injured, in a hospital, and United States, who has taken israel's side.

The details coming out today of the massacre in al Shifa hospital are simply incredible. Surgeons executed. Children executed. Bodies mutilated. Medical facilities systematically destroyed. Forget sanctions, there needs to be international military action against Israel. Now.

Israel has dropped almost 75,000 bombs and shells on Gaza in 200 days, twenty times more than the US aimed at Iraq in six years of war.

It's not war. It's genocide.

The Israeli bombing of a refugee camp inside a designated safe zone is horrific. Israel has a duty to protect innocent civilians and Palestinians seeking shelter in Rafah have nowhere safe to go.

Netanyahu's assault of Rafah must stop. We need an immediate cease-fire.

Israeli forces have abducted nearly 9,500 Palestinians in violent raids across the occupied West Bank since the regime's onslaught on the Gaza Strip started last October.

The revelation was made in a joint statement by the Palestinian Prisoners' Affairs Authority and the Palestinian Prisoners' Society on Sunday.

The statement noted that the occupying regime's forces have abducted more than 9,450 Palestinians in the West Bank, including in the occupied city of al-Quds, during the said period.

The two Palestinian organizations said the figure included those who were abducted from their homes and at military checkpoints, as well as those who surrendered under pressure, and those who were taken by Israeli forces as hostages.

Unprecedented complaint: Hind Rajab Foundation files war crimes case against Israeli soldiers in Gaza

Wednesday, 09 October 2024 2:53 PM | Last Update: Wednesday, 09 October 2024 2:53 PM |

1,000 Israeli soldiers forgenocidal war crimes in Gaza. Anonymous (ID: kTwnZ0gN) 10/09/24(Wed)19:07:40 No.484306754 ▶ >>484307032 >>484307194 >>484307920 >>484308053 >>484308451 >>484309697

8,000 pieces of evidence, including videos, audio recordings, forensic reports, and social media documentation, pointing to Israeli soldiers' involvement in ongoing war crimes in Gaza

Details of the complaint

The complaint meticulously identifies all 1,000 Israeli soldiers by name, demonstrating their "direct involvement" in systematic attacks on Gaza's civilian population. The evidence, carefully collected and verified, illustrates significant violations of international law, including:

- Destruction of civilian infrastructure: Targeted attacks on homes, hospitals, schools, markets, mosques, and other civilian infrastructure.
- Illegal occupation and looting: Soldiers were documented occupying civilian homes, looting personal belongings, and exploiting occupied properties.
- Participation in the Gaza blockade: The soldiers played an active role in enforcing a blockade that deprived civilians of essential goods such as food, water, and medical supplies.
- Targeting civilians: Audio and video evidence shows soldiers deliberately attacking non-combatant individuals, including medical personnel and journalists.
- Use of inhumane warfare tactics: Indiscriminate bombing campaigns, starvation, and the systematic destruction of civilian infrastructure were all part of their actions.

Appendix A: Countries and bodies that can contribute to solving the humanitarian crisis in Gaza

Egypt

Possible contribution: Opening crossings and immediate absorption of the population of Gaza that will leave and gather in designated areas of Sinai; allocating land for settlement; exerting diplomatic pressure on Turkey and other countries to prioritize this over absorbing a large number of displaced people; providing a security envelope to the initial organization areas outside the Strip.

Possible incentives: Pressuring the United States and European countries to take responsibility and open Rafah Crossing for exiting to Sinai; financial assistance for the current economic crisis in Egypt.

Countries in Europe and especially the Mediterranean — Greece/Spain

Contribution: Absorption and settlement.

Incentives: Absorption budgets and financial support to Arab countries for the benefit of this process.

Additional North African Countries (Morocco, Libya, Tunisia)

Contribution: Absorption and settlement; immediate assistance in areas of organization outside the Strip.

Incentives: Absorption and financial support to Arab countries to support this process; Muslim solidarity; pressure from European countries; action through contacts that Israel has with some of these countries in a way that will allow them to maintain these ties without harming their reputation among the Arabs of the world.

Canada

Contribution: Absorption of the population and its settlement within the framework of the permissive immigration policy.

No, while that pic is partially right, it's not why they're doing it.

They're actually doing it to prove to themselves that they're infallible. The driving engine of Judaism isn't even the chosenness but Jewish infallibility that comes with it. It's what gives them the balls to sidestep goyim laws. If their religion is to be believed and they're truly the chosen, then they are by logical extension infallible in front of everything except for their own god. They are infallible compared to goyim.

So you have these arbitrary goyim laws. And you specifically have these international laws. These disprove Jewish infallibility because they claim that Jewish behavior (like the calls for a full ethnic genocide that we see in the Torah scroll and the Talmud) is inherently evil, disgusting, amoral and psychopathic. To live under common goyim laws as a Jew, is to abandon your true Jewishness that has given you different commandments and different laws to follow.

That is why they were sacrificing children in the middle ages. It's not that they're even carrying out a ritual, it's a rebellion against the goyim laws and morality that tell them that goyim children cannot be killed, and a self-reaffirmation that they can. The exact same thing is being done to Palestine right now. They are not autistic, they know exactly what they're doing when they bomb a UN mission. They understand that the entire world would be upset with them. But at the same time Deuteronomy 20:16-17 explicitly commands them to do it anyway and to literally erase life and anything that breathes. This, in their eyes, is a divine commandment that supersedes any common or international laws. To say otherwise and not execute it as commanded, would be to disobey Judaism itself, which erodes and erases the feeling of Jewishness in a Jew. To maintain that Jewish identity, the commandment needs to be executed no matter the cost. And that is what is happening right now. That is why they're mentally ill.

If I don't want to support a literal fascist asshat criminal anti-american joke of an idiot like Trump, my choice is to vote with the people who chant "from the river to the sea" and say the kidnappings and slaughter that occured in October was JUSTIFIED. What kind of choice is that? And tha fuck? JUSTIFIED? They always find ways to justify killing jews. I'm starting to think about Aliyah. Just...fuck it, I'm taking my family to Isreal.

This is Taylor Swift. Taylor is concerned about climate change. Her private jet emits more carbon in a single trip than your car in your entire lifetime (and that jet flew more than 200 times last year), but it's your car that's causing climate change 🤔

Colorado study says maybe

New ice age coming?

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—Those weather scientists who anticipate the coming of another ice age connect this month's record low temperatures in the eastern United States with a long-term climate change on Baffin Island where massive new glaciers may be forming.

This island is a land mass in the eastern Canadian arctic 1,000 miles long, of more than 200,000 square miles, and with elevations up to 6,000 feet. The Canadian government maintains eight weather stations there because its weather is prognostic of weather elsewhere.

The accumulated records of those stations have been put through a fine analysis by R. S. Bradley and G. H. Miller of the Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research at the University of Colorado, which documents a climate change that set in around 1960 and continues into the 1970's.

Winters (September through May) are the accumulation seasons of snow and ice. Summers (June through August) are the melting and runoff seasons.

During the 1960's there was a consistent drop in mean summer temperatures, meaning less melting and run-off. There was also a consistent rise in mean winter temperatures but it was accompanied by consistent increases in precipitation, meaning more snow and ice.

Bradley and Miller made field trips through Baffin Island in 1969 and again last year and confirmed the implications of their analysis. They found permanent snow banks in areas which in 1960 had been snow free. Other snow banks had increased greatly in size and large areas of ground once covered by plant life were buried.

Small lakes are now icecovered the year round which in 1960 and before were open water in summers. Many of them, Bradley and Miller reported to the international science journal, "Nature," are accumulating ice due to consistent winter precipitation increases in excess of summer melts.

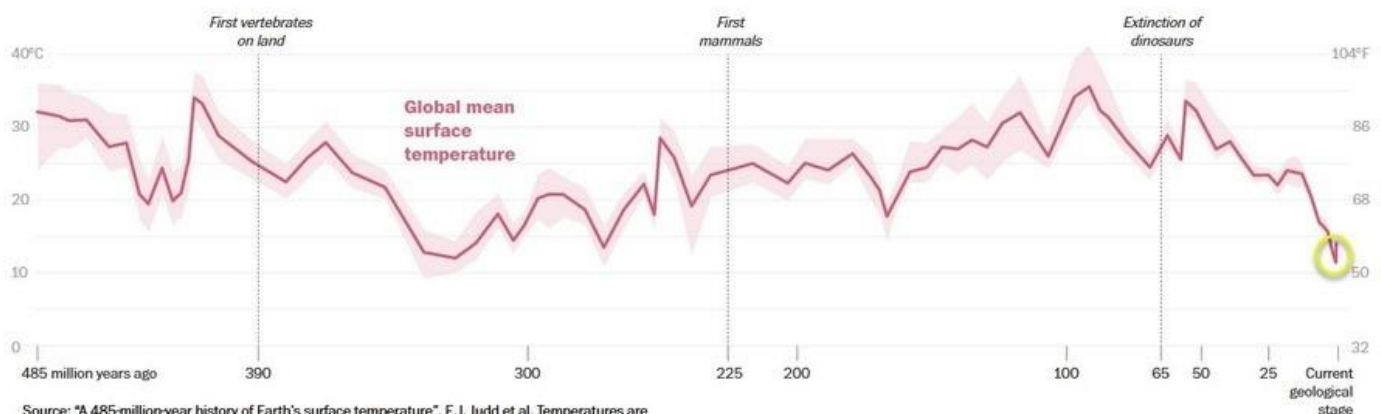

They found two incipient glaciers in places which were snow-free in 1960. Glacier formation is not an immediate result of climate change, they said, but a delayed effect. Climate changes of the 1960's could accelerate glacier formation and growth in the 70's.

It may be Baffin Island climate was influenced by a replacing of cold surface water by warmer water in the central northern Pacific Ocean in 1961, they suggested. This abrupt water temperature change could influence atmospheric pressure patterns for the entire northern hemisphere. Baffin Island's geographic position makes it a sensitive barometer of the results of large-scale change in "these ocean-atmosphere interactions."

Scientists have captured Earth's climate over the last 485 million years. Here's the surprising place we stand now.

An effort to understand Earth's past climates uncovered a history of wild temperature shifts and offered a warning on the consequences of human-caused warming.

Potential Implications of Trends in World Population, Food Production, and Climate

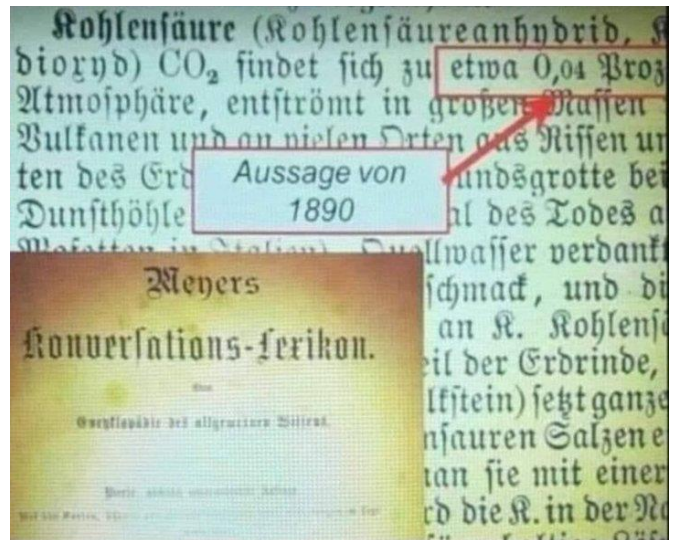

THE DISCUSSION

I. INTRODUCTION

The widespread crop shortfalls in 1972 and the energy and fertilizer crunches in '73 and '74 have raised anew the basic question of whether the production of food can keep pace with demand over the next few decades. Concern about the capability of many of the poorer countries to provide for their growing population is widespread and rising. Major international conferences planned for the second half of this year--i.e., the World Population Conference in August and the World Food Conference in November--will focus on various aspects of this question.

There is, moreover, growing consensus among leading climatologists that the world is undergoing a cooling trend. If it continues, as feared, it could restrict production in both the USSR and China among other states, and could have an enormous impact, not only on the food-population balance, but also on the world balance of power.

Literally all the janitors on /pol/ are cops and glownigger federal agents. Literally all of them. It's the reason why /pol/ jannie positions are never up for tryouts. All positions here are already filled, indefinitely.

There is a moderator reading this thread right now that's being paid money to look at memes making fun of how fat he is. He has been advised to avoid engaging us in serious discussion as much as possible, for his own "mental safety," because the cops and cianiggers they keep sending here either get redpilled or clinically depressed. He thinks Waco was justified.

He will be killed sometime in the next ten years, not by any white nationalists, who will be minding their own business on homesteads and in small rural communities, but by the niggers, spics, and degenerates he is being paid to defend. Most likely cause of death: troon coworker snaps and shoots up the breakroom while he's trying to microwave a slice of pizza for lunch. You're going to die, glownigger. You're going to die in your own office, at the hands of your own coworkers, and you'll be wearing that stupid rainbow lanyard when it happens.

Exactly. The low level skills are probably subcontractors or enlisted chained to a desk, but the goal is to redirect our anti-semitism so they can get support from nationalists without the baggage of the Reich. Over the past few years they've gotten more desperate and on more than one occasion they've overtly said as much. The jew typically will not support nationalist sentiments at all, not even for Israel. It's not their nature.

5 eyes however needs nationalists but need to treat NatSoc as if it's radioactive because of its infectious nature. Hence the many milquetoast American nationalists organizations that look like Feds that distance themselves from NatSoc in favor of a generic Walmart brand nationalism.

It's all very silly

Report Accuses Navy Of Training Assassins

(C) 1975 Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service
THE VICTORIA ADVOCATE, JULY 7, 1975
The Sunday Times said that following the interview, Narut had not been at his home or laboratory in Naples to comment on issues raised by his disclosures.
It also said the Pentagon in Washington Saturday night "denied categorically" that the U.S. Navy had ever "engaged in psychological training or other types of training of personnel as assassins" and denied that such training had ever taken place in San Diego or Naples.
The Pentagon did confirm that Narut was a psychologist at the center in Naples, the paper said.
According to Narut, men are shown a series of special films "to heighten their dissociative powers with regard to killing." These films "are gruesome and as the training proceeds they get progressively horrific," the article said.
It said the trainees' heads were bolted in clamps so they could not turn away or close their eyes.
"Dr. Narut said that one of the first films a trainee sees is a brutal, blow-by-blow account of an African youth being crudely circumcised (See REPORT, Page 1A)

In 1995, a bomb was detonated in the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, killing 168 people. One of the first rescuers to respond to the Oklahoma City Bombing was Police Sgt. Terrance Yeakey.

What he witnessed contradicted the FBI's story...

Sgt. Yeakey desperately tried to expose what he found at the scene to his department and gathered his own evidence as well as survivor testimonies. He was to retire due to what he described as "injustice and corruption" in the police force. A televised event, Yeakey would have an outlet to speak about what he saw and disclose it to the public. He would never live to tell his tale.

Terrance Yeakey was found dead in a field.

His neck and wrists were deeply cut.

He bled to death in his car, but was found one-mile away.

He was strangled. His wrists showed handcuff scars.

A bullet wound entered from a 45° through the top of his temple.

He was shot with a suppressed pistol.

No gun was found at the scene.

Very related, here is an excerpt from historian Tom Holland on the roman recruitment crisis:

>"Even as (the Late Roman Empire's) urban population remained much the same since Constantine's victory at the Milvian Bridge, recruitment among roman citizens by the year 390 a.d had plummeted to barely 15% of what it was 50 years prior — what is made more dire when one realizes that the Roman Empire after Diocletian's reforms required a standing army at least twice the size of that of the time of the roman golden age under Vespasianus."

>"The attempt to replace roman soldiers for the Foederati (immigrants mostly settled illegally on roman land) led to a swift competence crisis among the ranks, as well as the disappearance of roman veteran culture. Among the most shocking anecdotes are reports of roman armies mutinying over 'the absurdity that roman soldiers had to build roads and infrastructure'."

>"As political, demographical and economic factors coalesced, the roman recruitment crisis can be understood as an existential crisis of the empire itself. Simply put, roman citizens rich and poor no longer believed that a military career would be beneficial to them, nor they believed the existence of the military and the empire itself were worth any sacrifice."

OP is concern trolling. The military already said their solution to the problem was to increase recruiting among noncitizens. The recruiting shortfall is a manufactured crisis for doing exactly that. "In 330,000,000 people we can't find a few thousand people that meet our criteria, so we just have to hire foreigners." It's the same play as hiring H1Bs.

They're doing this because after January 6 our government no longer trusts its military of citizen soldiers that might turn against them in the event of a real coup or revolt. They want a foreign Janissary corps which won't hesitate to fire on American citizens.

Because some people might be concerned with that happening, they're dropping rumors of a draft. The goal is to move people from worrying about what they might do with foreign troops to "Sounds good, as long as I don't have to get drafted."

This is the reason why there are always multiple posts about it in the catalog. It's social conditioning.

DECLARATION

I, William J. Casey, declare:

I have found that freedom is a priceless commodity that demands constant vigilance to guaranteed its longevity.

I was assigned to the Office of Strategic Services, (O.S.S.), in London, England, during World War II. During that time I befriended a young German soldier named Gunther. I used Gunther and several other anti-Nazi German prisoners of war on OSS operation's within Nazi Germany.

I knew this violated Geneva (War) Convention. I did not care. The Geneva Convention was but a set of rules governing man's atrocities committed in the name of political ideology. To wage war with rules is to prolong human suffering. Open warfare is the last resort of a civilized nation and must be used sparingly. War's must be fought savagely utilizing all tools and tricks at hand. Gunther was a tool. Ignoring the Geneva Convention was the trick.

After I became Director of Central Intelligence, (DCI), on January 28, 1981, I was approached and briefed by William Colby, former DCI. My history with Bill Colby is known. Colby notified me off the record of two operations' he was still running in Latin America. Both operation's were without knowledge and consent of the United States Congress. President Ronald Reagan, or even the United States Intelligence apparatus. Colby identified the operation's as "A-6" (RED MIST), and "A-7" (PROJECT SANDMAN). A-7 entailed smaller operation's.

I was told that A-6 identified individuals and the build up of the communist threat in Latin America. Some intelligence collected in A-6 was used in TASK FORCE 107.

I was told that A-7 was "The Phoenix Program," of Latin America. It involved the assassination of the communist infrastructure throughout Latin America.

I was told that Colby authorized assets's involved in A-6, and A-7, to engage in narcotic's trafficking to finance both operation's. Colby engaged in similar operation's that I know of in Vietnam for the same reason.

Colby candidly informed me that he had prepositioned more than one million pounds of cocaine in Panama between December 1, 1975, and April 1, 1976. This was done with the aid of our gallant ally, General Manuel Noriega. The cocaine was transported into El Salvador, Costa Rica, and Honduras, between 1976 and 1981. Colby now sat in front of me with hat in hand and requested my help in the delivery of the cocaine to the American market.

I was told that Colby was using a mutual friend of ours, Colonel

Albert Vincent Carone, United States Army, Military Intelligence, to field A-6, and A-7. Al Carone is a charismatic patriot that General Joseph W. Stilwell introduced us to in late 1945. Beside the usual qualifications, Al Carone brought to the anti-communist effort a direct connection to his long time friend, Vito Genovese. Genovese was head of the gambling and narcotic's for the controlling mafia family in New York to which Al Carone was a made member. Carone is a friend of international fugitive, Robert Vesco. Carone has several anti-communist intelligence sources' that include Maurita Lorenz, a friend of Fidel Castro. Al Carone is the younger brother of Doctor Pasquale Carone. Dr. Carone worked for Central Intelligence on other matters.

Colby told me that profits from the prepositioned cocaine would be laundered through Al Carone, the New York mafia, and Robert Vesco, then redirected to the anti-communist effort through Colby.

After discussions with Al Carone, I made the decision to bring the prepositioned cocaine into Mena airport, Mena, Arkansas. Central Intelligence has used Mena airport on prior occasions. This time the cocaine is the tool. The trick was to ignore the law and avoid public scrutiny. We were helped in our effort by William J. Clinton, and William F. Weld.

By 1984 all prepositioned cocaine had arrived at Mena airport, and additional cocaine sources were secured. Cocaine was being transshipped through Hanger Four and Five, at Ilapango Airbase, El Salvador. My point man at Mena was Adler Berriman Seal, (Berry Seal).

Bill Clinton has proved invaluable so far by containing the local law enforcement investigation's into the Intelligence activity at Mena. Bill Weld, as Assistant United States Attorney, was placed in charge of the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice. This was done so that Bill Weld could control investigation's into Mena by federal law enforcement agencies. This placement of Weld has proved invaluable to date.

I ordered John Poindexter, Robert McFarland, and Oliver North to go outside the normal channel's and use available assets, including the mafia, to ensure the arrival of the cocaine into Mena airport. The arrival's occurred in no small part through the effort's of personnel assigned to the National Security Agency, (NSA), and Army Security Agency, (ASA). The men and women of the NSA, and ASA, blinded early warning defense satellites, and radar grids to enable the aircraft to land undetected at Mena airport. The NSA, and ASA operation's were "SEA SPRAY," and "JADE BRIDGE."

I have learned that the course of the democratic struggle for Nicaragua, and Latin America is beginning to swing in our direction. I attribute this success to A-6, and A-7, which Bill Colby had the insight, precision, and spine to carry out.

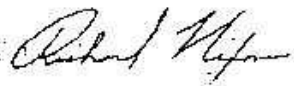

I take notice of the heroic efforts of Al Carone, Bill Clinton, Bill Weld, John Poindexter, Bud McFarland, and Ollie North. Without these men, A-6 and A-7 would not have appeared.

Freedom is a priceless commodity. The amount of freedom you enjoy is a result of the amount of vigilance you invest.

My actions may be recorded as criminal condemning countless American's to drug dependency. I don't care. All wars produce casualties. Generally the more violent the war, the shorter the length. My choice was either to stare down a protracted cold war guerrilla insurgency in Latin America or use the means available to finance and wage a violent war of short duration for democracy. I stand by my decision. The tool is cocaine. The trick is to understand that the drug user had the freedom to make a choice. They chose the drug. I chose to use their habit to finance the democracy that all American's enjoy. To keep those American's safe from the communist threat knocking on our back door in Latin America. For a change the drug user will contribute to society.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the above facts are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. Executed this 9th day of December 1986 in McLean, Virginia.

The Dunblane shooting.

The real shooter was a Muslim, it was the first Islamic Terrorist attack on British soil. Thomas Hamilton, the man who was blamed, was a local who responded before the police arrived and he killed the attacker saving countless children's lives.

The police who responded much later killed Hamilton at the scene, discovered the truth and the cover up began. It wasn't just the fact that they'd killed an innocent man, a hero, it was the fact that they didn't want a brown man associated with the atrocity in case it empowered the far right racists.

Can't be bothered to dig for sources, but there was a website up that's long been taken down that had evidence, including the post mistress panicked call to the police where she stated there was a Pakistani man killing children in the school, and that Thomas Hamilton had gone to get his shotgun.

Twenty Years Later: Unreported Facts About the OKC Bombing

Posted on April 12, 2015 by Kevin Ryan

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the terrorist bombing of the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, which killed 168 people including 19 children. The mainstream media will undoubtedly focus its attention on Timothy McVeigh, who was put to death in June 2001 for his part in the crime. They might also mention Terry Nichols, who was convicted of helping McVeigh plan the bombing and is serving a life sentence without parole.

There will be less discussion about how the FBI spent years hunting for a man who witnesses say accompanied McVeigh on the day of the bombing. They called this accomplice John Doe #2 and theories about his identity range from an Iraqi named Hussain Al-Hussaini, to a German national described below, to a neo-nazi bank robber named Richard Guthrie. The Justice Department finally gave up its search and said it was all a mistake— that there was never any credible evidence of a John Doe #2 being involved.

That reversal demonstrates a pattern of cover-up by authorities and limited media coverage in the years since the crime. This week, accounts will not repeat early reports of secondary devices in the building, or reports of the involvement of unknown middle-eastern characters. There will also be little if any mention of the extensive independent investigation into the crime that was conducted by leading members of the OKC community. Here are seven more facts that will probably not see much coverage on the 20th anniversary.

1. Attorney Jesse Trentadue began investigating the case after his brother Kenney was killed in prison, apparently having been tortured to death by the FBI in its search for John Doe #2. Trentadue's investigation led to a federal judge nearly finding the FBI in contempt of court for tampering with a key witness. Trentadue now says, "There's no doubt in my mind, and it's proven beyond any doubt, that the FBI knew that the bombing was going to take place months before it happened, and they didn't stop it."

2. Judge Clark Waddoups, who presided over the case brought by Jesse Trentadue, ruled in 2010 that CIA documents associated with the case must be held secret. These documents show that the CIA was involved in the OKC bombing investigation and the prosecution of McVeigh. This means that foreign parties were involved because the CIA is prohibited from interfering in purely domestic investigations.
3. Andreas Strassmeir, a former German military officer, was suspected of being John Doe #2. Strassmeir became close friends with McVeigh and they were both associated with a neo-nazi organization located in Elohim City, OK. A retired U.S. intelligence official claimed that Strassmeir was “working for the German government and the FBI” while at Elohim City. Mainstream reports about the OKC bombing typically avoid reference to Strassmeir.
4. Larry Potts was the FBI supervisor who was responsible for the tragedies at Ruby Ridge in 1992, and Waco in 1993. Potts was then given responsibility for investigating the OKC bombing. Terry Nichols claimed that McVeigh—who allegedly had been recruited as an undercover intelligence asset while in the Army—had been working under the supervision of Potts.
5. Terry Yeakey, an officer of the OKC Police Department, was among the first to reach the scene and he was heralded as a hero for rescuing many victims. Yeakey was also an eyewitness to conversations and physical evidence that convinced him that there was a cover-up of the bombing by federal agents. Yeakey was committed to getting to the truth about what happened but a year after the bombing he was found dead off the side of a rural road. His death was ruled a suicide despite overwhelming evidence that he was murdered. Authorities reported that Yeakey, “slit his wrists and neck... then miraculously climbed over a barbed wire fence... walked over a mile’s distance, through a nearby field, and eventually shot himself in the side of the head at an unusual angle.” No weapon was found, no investigation was initiated, no fingerprints were taken, and no interviews were conducted. His family continues to fight for the truth about his death.
6. Gene Corley, the engineer who was hired by the government to support its claims about the structural fire at the Branch Davidian complex in Waco, was brought in to investigate the destruction of the Murrah Building. Corley brought along three other engineers: Charles Thornton, Mete Sozen, and Paul Mlakar. Their investigation was conducted from half a block away—where they could not observe any of the damage directly—yet their conclusions supported the pre-existing official account. A few years later, within 72 hours of the 9/11 attacks, these same four men were on site leading the investigations at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.
7. There are many other links between OKC and 9/11. For example, the alleged hijackers visited the OKC area many times and even stayed in the same motel that was frequented by McVeigh and Nichols. After both the OKC bombing and 9/11, building monitoring videos went missing, FBI harassment of witnesses was seen, and officials ignored evidence that did not support the political story. Additionally, numerous oddities link the OKC area to al Qaeda. In 2002, OKC resident Nick Berg was interrogated by the FBI for lending his laptop and internet password to alleged “20th hijacker” Zacarias Moussoui. Two years after this interrogation, Berg became world famous as a victim of beheading in Iraq. Investigators looking for clues about these connections will be particularly interested in two airports in OKC, the president of the University of Oklahoma, and the CIA leader who both monitored the alleged hijackers in Germany and was hired at the university just before 9/11.

On April 19, 2015, at the 20th anniversary of one of the worst terrorist attacks in history, citizens should be reminded that we don’t know what happened that day. We don’t know because officials have covered-up the crime for unknown reasons and most media sources will not challenge that cover-up.

Interesting read

>Hundreds, if not thousands, of U.S.-trained Afghan fighters are seeking to join Ukraine's foreign legion, according to a key Ukrainian recruiter, applications submitted by Afghans, and an interview with two of those

>But for reasons that cast a light both on Ukraine's military strategy and its global relationships, the fighters have so far been turned away even as Russia increasingly relies on irregular forces such as foreign soldiers, including ones from Afghanistan.

>One former elite Afghan reconnaissance unit member, Sgt. Maj. Kadim, told Semafor through an interpreter that there are at least hundreds of Afghans like him who want to fight in Ukraine and called Russia's invasion a "war against democracy and humanity and a full-scale genocide." (He asked to use a pseudonym for safety, but Semafor has reviewed his military records and confirmed his identity with the U.S. Defense Department).

>"Most of the Ukrainian authorities do not want these soldiers," said Ryan Routh, head of the International Volunteer Center in Ukraine, a private organization which helps foreigners seeking to assist the war effort connect with military units and aid groups. "I have had partners meeting with [Ukraine's Ministry of Defense] every week and still have not been able to get them to agree to issue one single visa."

Not like US ballet is worth a fuck to begin with, so let the niglets do nogballet. At least they're doing something feminine and culturally conservative, instead of degenerate or criminal. They can probably dance conventional ballet as well, but let them have some fun too (or feel like there's any saving grace to nigger culture).

25-year Radar Operator for a major agency here, just thought I'd let you all know what has been going on these past few weeks.

The drones are part of a military "drill" being conducted by space force. Everything is on a "need to know" basis which is why there's so much confusion.

What gets me concerned, and why I had to make this post, is that something big is about to go down.

I happen to know that there are additional "full lock out" drills that are scheduled to take place between now and Christmas Eve. These operations involve the full turnover of all radio/radar and aircraft communications to the military for several hours at a time.

In conjunction with that, there are also scheduled satellite launches "off the books" which have been occurring since October.

They are setting up some kind of big "show" for the public very soon.

CNN was even at our facility shooting "pre-roll" footage for a future story.

I don't know exactly what is going on, but all I know is this:

You know Jimbo, of ten minutes from 27 AR15's with bumpstocks despite the fact that it would have required him to drop a gun after each 30 round magazine was empty, even though videos from the survivors show that it was a nonstop stream of ammuniion with a firing rate much higher than a bumpstock is capable of producing from multiple locations that appear to be M240 LMG's. More interesting is the fact that after the FBI took over the investigation, his house somehow burned down with all of the evidence, and photos of the hotel room he supposedly shot from only show about 50 spent shells. Years later we still have no motivation, and there was strangely no follow confusing is that the day after his brother had numerous press interviews where he claimed it made no sense, he was arrested for possessing several hundred terabytes

- Graham Brookie of the Atlantic Council's DFR Labs wrote: "We just set up an election integrity partnership at the request of DHS/CISA."
- A redacted Facebook executive spilled the beans in an email about a call with DHS, saying: "DHS cannot openly endorse the portal."
- Alex Stamos of the Stanford Internet Observatory emailed NextDoor executives: "We already have partnerships with Facebook, Twitter, and Google, and we would love to chat with you and your team."

This is some next-level dystopian sh*t.

Matt, Brian,

I have spoken to both of you separately about a concept we are developing to help election officials report mis/disinformation during the 2020 elections. You both, along with NASS and NASED, indicated our proposal may be helpful. I am attaching a brief write-up I made that describes it. Your feedback is welcome.

We are beginning the development of the misinformation reporting portal with the hope that it could be piloted in the Presidential Preference Primaries. I am planning on setting up a call between you all, NASS, NASED, and us as soon as I have something to show you. My goal is to demonstrate the basic capabilities by the end of this month. Please stay tuned and let me know if you have any feedback on the write up.

Thanks,

Aaron

Hi,

Last week, we unveiled a new group dedicated to finding and combating online election-related disinformation called the Election Integrity Partnership. Along with the University of Washington, Graphika and DFRLab, we have put this group together to provide a one-stop shop for local election officials, DHS, and voter protection organizations to report potential disinformation for us to investigate and to refer to the appropriate platforms if necessary. We will also be proactively looking for in-scope election disinformation, and as you can imagine Nextdoor is a platform of particular interest to us.

We already have partnerships with Facebook, Twitter and Google, and we would love to chat with you and your team about how we might work together during the election and possibly afterwards. Isabella is the PM running this overall project, and can help pull together all the right people from the partnership. Would later this week work for you?

Alex

Subject: CIB & NASS/NASED & DHS Call

Team,

Wanted to share a read-out from our call late Friday with DHS, NASS & NASED. Great job by [redacted] & [redacted].

No action for us now; however, we will reevaluate after a Beta test of their proposed reporting portal in the next few weeks.

Best,

[redacted]

TLDR: On May 29 U.S. Public Policy [redacted], [redacted] and Security Policy [redacted] met with DHS, the Center for Internet Security, and NASS/NASED about a "Misinformation Reporting Portal" that CIB is developing for state and local-level election officials to report mis/disinformation and ID-type activity concerning election interference to the platform, with a focus on Facebook, Twitter, and Google. Following a beta test CIB will do in Florida, Colorado, North Carolina, and Rhode Island in early June. They would like to do a demo for Facebook. Internally, Facebook would prefer our independent reporting channel which makes us an industry leader, and was reported as successful by all parties on this call and is monitored 24/7, but we are aware that if the reporting group moves towards a centralized channel, there are FR challenges for not participating.

Highlights:

- DHS cannot openly endorse the portal, but has behind-the-scenes signaled that NASS/NASED has told them it would be easier for many states to have "one reporting channel" and CISA and its ISAC would like to have incoming the same time that the platform do.
- CIB is in discussion with Twitter to gauge their interest, and it was unclear what engagement has been with Google.
- CIB is talking with Graphika, which has said it is interested in nationwide trends that the reporting portal may reveal.
- CIB is talking with the Better Center, which is developing an "IO Playbook & Training" that may be released in the coming months before November 2020.
- NASS/NASED is supportive, but not all the states are onboard - CIB said they would like to launch with platform support and engaged and bring states incrementally along.
- CIB would like some sort of API with Facebook - such a set up may be impossible, and CrowdStrike, if this progresses, may be the way to go.

Subject: Re: Quick question -- Park Advisors

Thanks,

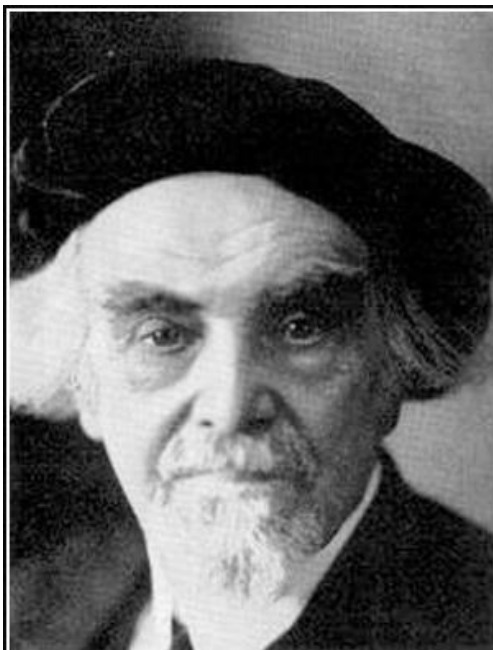

And understood. Given the work DFRLab does on geopolitics, technology, and election interference with GEC, we were just caught off guard because they asked us about it.

I am not as concerned on the money or the project, but rather consolidating our approach to GEC as we go into the season for expanded renewals on two separate, multi-year agreements in the six figure range that cover a significant amount of our work on elections and all of our work in South Africa and Latin America.

On the DHS app, fake news, and any other US election-related work, it would be great to sync-up, as well. I know the Council has a number of efforts on broad policy issues around the elections, but we just set up an election integrity partnership at the request of DHS/CISA and are in weekly comms to debrief on disinfo, IO, etc..

Best,
Graham

Why is it only the Irish who bother fighting against this shit? They burn down refugee centres and hotels, do riots and protests, spray graffiti saying "Irish only or it burns" on hotels, put posters up and these signs up, etc.

Where the fuck is this energy for everyone else? What makes them so different that they're the only ones doing shit?

To be honest the great reset is and always had been a giant larp by those who uniquely found themselves in positions of great power because they immorally participated in the rigged banking system. This does not make them particularly intelligent or impressive. It's just a group of people willing to scam and steal while the masses are working honestly. The great reset is just an admission of their mortality. They can see an end is coming. What usually happens is they get mass decapitated in the streets a la France circa 1700s but they are sure they can just convince people to not only let them off the hook this time but even establish a new system with them totally in control of every aspect of finance and money.

It is not going to happen. They do not understand the systems they depend on to survive. If they do manage to destroy these systems they will never be able to recreate them. And those that can create systems will never let them waltz back in. We are due massive changes in society. This whole entire thing is a sick joke at this point. It not only no longer functions it's flat out absurd. When people begin to see it plainly they will reject it and start over in a sustainable way.

- 1) This woke culture is not sustainable
- 2) Reproduction rates are not sustainable
- 3) The FED money printing is not sustainable

President of Russia Vladimir Putin:

"Mr. Schwab, dear Klaus, Colleagues,

I have been to Davos many times, attending the events organized by Mr. Schwab, even back in the 1990s. Klaus just recalled that we met in 1992. Indeed, during my time in St Petersburg, I visited this important forum many times. I would like to thank you for this opportunity today to convey my point of view to the expert community that gathers at this world-renowned platform thanks to the efforts of Mr. Schwab.

First of all, ladies and gentlemen, I would like to greet all the World Economic Forum participants.

It is gratifying that this year, despite the pandemic, despite all the restrictions, the forum is still continuing its work. Although it is limited to online participation, the forum is taking place anyway, providing an opportunity for participants to exchange their assessments and forecasts during an open and free discussion, partially compensating for the increasing lack of in-person meetings between leaders of states, representatives of international business and the public in recent months. All this is very important now when we have so many difficult questions to answer.

The current forum is the first one in the beginning of the third decade of the 21st century and, naturally, the majority of its topics are devoted to the profound changes that are taking place in the world.

Indeed, it is difficult to overlook the fundamental changes in the global economy, politics, social life, and technology. The coronavirus pandemic, which Klaus just mentioned, which became a serious

Obviously, the era linked with attempts to build a centralized and unipolar world order has ended. To be honest, this era did not even begin. A mere attempt was made in this direction, but this, too, is now history. The essence of this monopoly ran counter to our civilization's cultural and historical diversity.

The reality is such that really different development centers with their distinctive models, political systems and public institutions have taken shape in the world. Today, it is very important to create mechanisms for harmonizing their interests to prevent the diversity and natural competition of the development poles from triggering anarchy and a series of protracted conflicts.

To achieve this we must, in part, consolidate and develop universal institutions that bear special responsibility for ensuring stability and security in the world and for formulating and defining the rules of conduct both in the global economy and trade.

Klaus Schwab: Thank you very much, Mr. President.

Many of the issues raised, certainly, are part of our discussions here during the Davos Week. We complement the speeches also by task forces which address some of the issues you mentioned, like not leaving the developing world behind, taking care of, let's say, creating the skills for tomorrow, and so on. Mr. President, we prepare for the discussion afterwards, but I have one very short question. It is a question which we discussed when I visited you in St Petersburg 14 months ago. How do you see the future of European-Russian relations? Just a short answer.

Vladimir Putin: You know there are things of an absolutely fundamental nature such as our common culture. Major European political figures have talked in the recent past about the need to expand relations between Europe and Russia, saying that Russia is part of Europe. Geographically and, most importantly, culturally, we are one civilization. French leaders have spoken of the need to create a single space from Lisbon to the Urals. I believe, and I mentioned this, why the Urals? To Vladivostok.

Putin slams 'caveman nationalism' as detrimental to Russia, says every ethnicity should feel respected & at home in the country

President Vladimir Putin has warned against using nationalist slogans like "Russia is just for Russians," stating his belief that members of each relevant ethnic group should feel at home in the country.

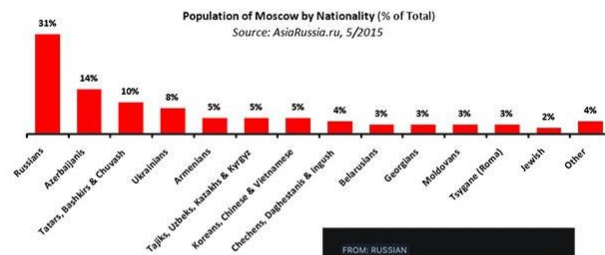

The president was speaking to leaders of Russia's parliamentary parties in a video conference on Wednesday. "Caveman nationalism, with the slogan 'Russia is only for Russians,' only harms Russians, only harms Russia," he said. "We shouldn't allow this to happen. Of course, we must make sure that the culture of every nation, its history, and roots of every nation is respected and honored in our country."

The Cabinet of Ministers and the WEF signed a memorandum on the creation of the Center of the fourth industrial revolution

In 2022, together with the WEF, it is planned to deploy projects in the application of experimental legal regimes, artificial intelligence and the Internet of Things, Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Chernyshenko said

MOSCOW, October 13. /TASS/. The Government and the World Economic Forum (WEF) have signed a memorandum on the establishment of the Center of the Fourth Industrial Revolution in Russia. The signing ceremony was held at the Russian Government Coordination Center, a TASS correspondent reports from the scene.

The document was signed by Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Chernyshenko on behalf of the Russian government by order of Prime Minister Mikhail Mishustin and by Forum President Berge Brundage on behalf of the WEF.

The main purpose of creating the Russian Center of the Fourth Industrial Revolution is to increase Russia's recognition in the global expert community and the opportunity to exchange accumulated experience and expertise with the WEF and its partners around the world," the Deputy Prime Minister explained.

Chernyshenko added that next year together with the WEF the projects in the field of experimental legal systems, artificial intelligence and the Internet of things are planned. The first of them will be launched by the end of this year in the sphere of unmanned transport, medicine and data processing.

"Russia, by the way, has been actively introducing artificial intelligence technologies for the last few years. Today there are more than 800 such solutions in the country, and some of them are already visible in international markets. Overall cooperation with WEF will be carried out in different areas: data policy, urban mobility, export support, and promotion of Russian IT technologies in foreign markets," he said.

Deputy Prime Minister added that the Center will be established on the basis of AHO "Digital Economy". A corresponding agreement was also signed between the autonomous non-profit organization and the WEF. According to him, the Center will start working on October 15, and its key tasks for the next two months will be the formation of the executive committee and the preparation of the work plan for 2022.

Кабинет и ВЭФ подписали меморандум о создании Центра четвертой промышленной революции

В 2022 году совместно с ВЭФ планируется развернуть проекты в области применения экспериментальных правовых режимов, искусственного интеллекта и интернета вещей, отметил вице-премьер Дмитрий Чернышенко

МОСКВА, 13 октября. /ТАСС/. Правительство и Всемирный экономический форум (ВЭФ) подписали меморандум о создании в России Центра четвертой промышленной революции. Церемония подписания прошла в Координационном центре правительства РФ, передает корреспондент ТАСС с места события.

Со стороны правительства по поручению премьер-министра Михаила Мишустина документ подписал вице-премьер Дмитрий Чернышенко, со стороны ВЭФ - президент форума Берге Бренде.

«Основная цель создания российского Центра четвертой промышленной революции - повышение узнаваемости России в мировом экспертном сообществе и возможность обмена с ВЭФ и его партнерами по всему миру накопленным опытом и экспертизой», - пояснил вице-премьер.

Чернышенко добавил, что в следующем году совместно с ВЭФ планируется развернуть проекты в области применения экспериментальных правовых режимов, искусственного интеллекта и интернета вещей. Первые из них будут запущены до конца этого года в сфере беспилотного транспорта, медицины и обработки данных.

"Россия, кстати, последние несколько лет активно внедряет технологии искусственного интеллекта. На сегодняшний день таких решений в стране более 800, и часть из них уже заметна на международных рынках. В целом сотрудничество с ВЭФ будет осуществляться по различным направлениям - политика в области данных, городская мобильность, поддержка экспорта и продвижение российских IT-технологий на зарубежных рынках", - сказал он.

Вице-премьер добавил, что Центр будет создан на базе АНО "Цифровая экономика". Соответствующее соглашение также было подписано между автономной некоммерческой организацией и ВЭФ. По его словам, Центр начнет работу 15 октября, и его ключевыми задачами на ближайшие два месяца станут формирование исполнительного комитета и подготовка плана работы на 2022 год.

Government is the enemy of the people. Historically, it has always been. They seek only one thing—power over others. They will do anything to retain that power. They cannot sleep at night worrying that someone has something they want or is doing something they do not approve of. This is part of a long cyclical process where government is always the great evil empire, for it ultimately always seeks to dominate the people regardless of what form it has taken.

If we take this 1000 years to be literal, this is by no means the end of the world. Yes, it may be a Great Reset, but our computer shows they will NOT win, and we are headed into the rising tide of civil unrest around the globe, which is revolutions and the prospects of international war.

In Cuba, there is a massive shortage of cash as their banking system is collapsing around them. Many Cubans have lost their savings as bank accounts are emptied and they cannot access their money at ATMs.

According to the AP, long lines outside banks and ATMs in the capital, Havana, and beyond start forming early in the day as people seek cash for routine transactions like buying food and other essentials.

The entire financial system in Cuba has completely collapsed for some reason this monumental story has not made it on to MSM ?

The Cuban people have been left with no financial resources, they have no means of buying food ...they are desperate and they are afraid.

This is the final destination, this is where globalism wants to lead you to the apocalypse.

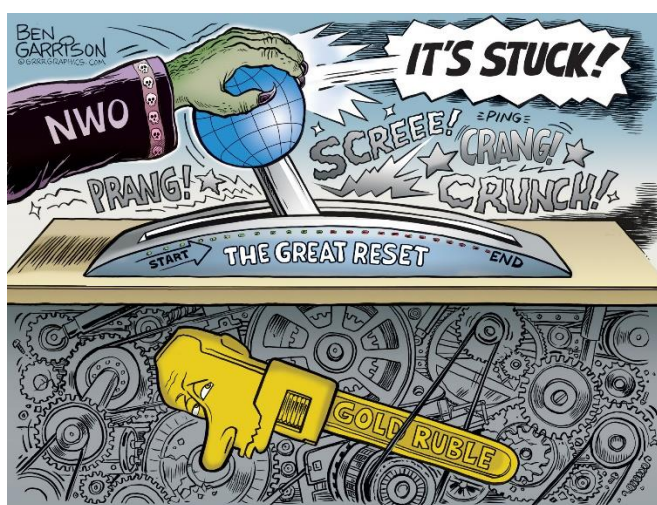

Cubans were forced to adopt the digital banking system & now they are financially ruined, they have no recourse.

Yuval Noah Harari of the WEF said the plan for the future was AI taking a lot of the jobs and a more poor green economy which would create millions of useless people.

To keep them quiet you would give them UBI and drugs and video games.

But the problem is that no one wants to play shitty diverse games about niggers developed by indian lesbians.

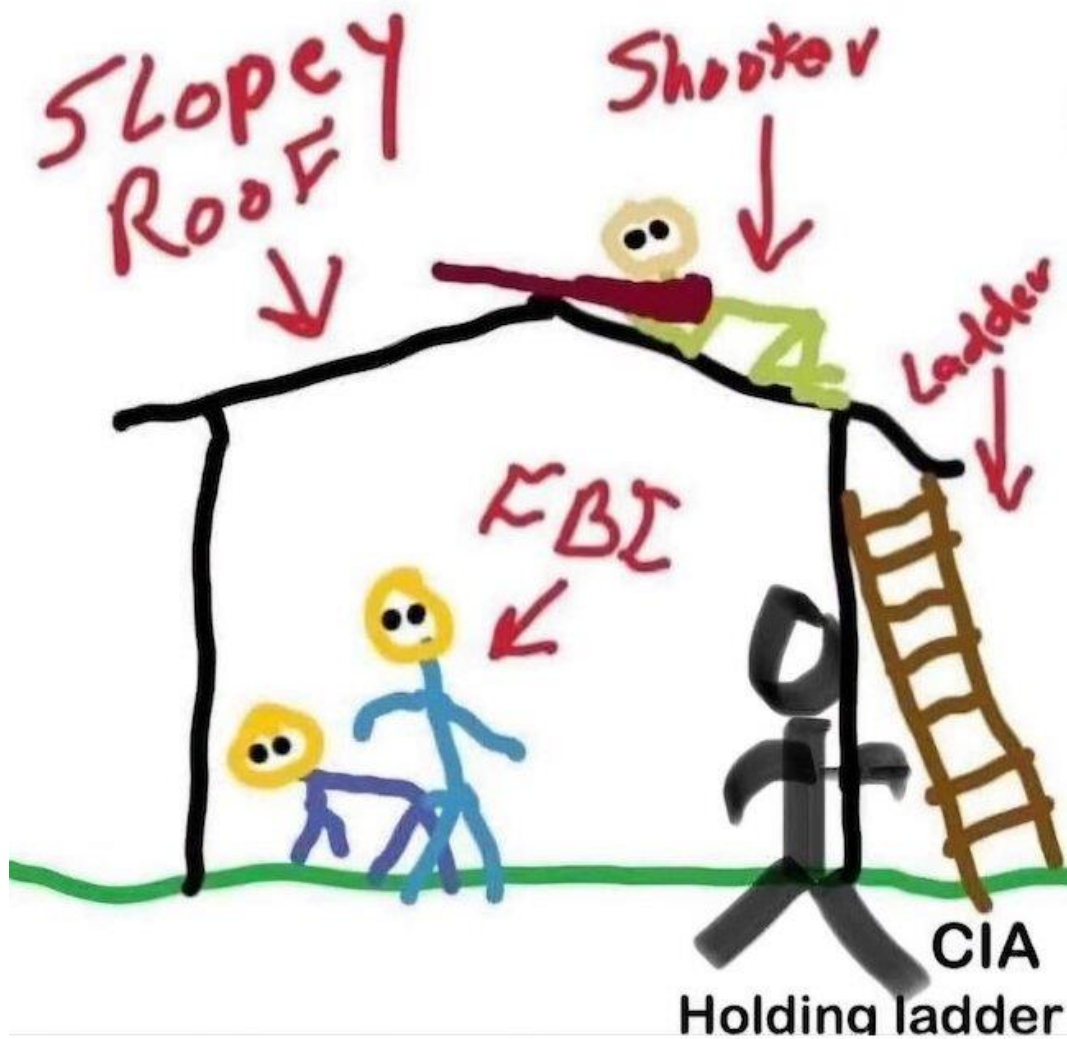

So no one will play them and be distracted by them.

The only way they will play them is if they're the opposite of what they are now.

But then these games would undermine the whole ideology of globalism and fail to distract people.

There lies the dilemma

Here's a quick rundown because OP is tarded

Anon posts this on a /nobody/ general on /x/ on 2 Jul 2024 (<https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/38279488/#38280814>):

>13th july is the date that shit gets executed
>be wary fuckboys

His attached pic is screenshots from the game "Thomas Was Alone".

>Thomas Was Alone = Thomas was a lone wolf >he references the 13th and suicide together (<https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/38279488/#38281050>).
>posted something about "recoil" and "better not lose posture" (<https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/38276321/#38278205>) >says to "listen to your right ear", which is the ear that Trump was shot in (<https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/38273947/#38275894>).

It's posted under a tripcode with the password "57" (i.e. a common trip, which means any posts in 2013 and right now under that trip are unrelated). The /x/ guy only starts posting under that trip on 18 Jun 2024, but he's clearly active in /nobody/ in 2023 onwards if you reverse search the images on 4plebs and namesearch. He also probably posted under the "wildcard numero uno" username and others.

There's also Danish/Dutch/whatever words in screenshots he posts (in his Google & 4chan UI), and he apparently posts his kitchen here (<https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/38221764/#38222411>) which has Danish words on food labels. He also posted photos that were tracked down to Copenhagen, though we don't know if he took any of these photos.

Either this is just a /x/ schizo retard who coincidentally posted the name of the shooter + the 13 Jul date + execution + mentions a right ear (pretty amazing coincidence), or if it's Thomas Matthew Crooks, who was apparently a STEMLord and therefore possibly a 4chan user.

BREAKING: The Associated Press reports the gunman pointed a rifle at an officer who discovered him on the rooftop, before the officer 'retreated down the ladder' and Crooks then 'quickly took a shot toward' Trump.

BREAKING NEWS Trump shooter was 'spotted on roof 26 MINUTES before assassination attempt' as pressure mounts on Secret Service over botched security

Donald Trump's would-be assassin Thomas Matthew Crooks was spotted on the roof 26 minutes before he opened fire, a bombshell new report claims. Cops at the scene noticed Crooks, 20, on top of the building just 130 yards away from the rally stage and took two photos of him because he was acting suspiciously, sources told WPXI. It's not clear if he had the AR-style rifle on him when he was first seen or if he stayed on the roof for the whole time.

What's more likely?

1. The Secret Service is incompetent, they allowed a sniper to take position to aim at and fire upon Trump before they were able to respond.
OR
2. The Secret Service wanted Trump to be killed by the shooter and planned to take him out immediately after he fired, but he missed and Trump survived.
OR
3. Trump and the Secret Service worked together to stage this by relying on this 20 year old shooter to only hit Trump's ear (and not his brain or throat) before they killed him. All to ensure a Trump Presidency and Project 2025.

In order: 2 > 1 > 3 imo

Can't accept that the roof was not being watched or guarded at the time, it's literally unbelievable in how much incompetence it would take for that to happen.

BREAKING: Senator Josh Hawley says whistleblowers have come forward, alleges the Biden DHS assigned “unprepared and inexperienced personnel” to Trump who weren’t even Secret Service.

“Whistleblowers who have direct knowledge of the event have approached my office. According to the allegations, the July 13 rally was considered to be a loose security event,” Hawley said in a letter to Mayorkas.

“For example, detection canines were not used to monitor entry and detect threats in the usual manner. Individuals without proper designations were able to gain access to backstage areas.”

“Department personnel did not appropriately police the security buffer around the podium and were also not stationed at regular intervals around the event's security perimeter.”

“In addition, whistleblower allegations suggest the majority of DHS officials were not in fact USSS agents but instead drawn from the department's Homeland Security Investigations (HSI).”

“This is especially concerning given that HSI agents were unfamiliar with standard protocols typically used at these types of events, according to the allegations.”

This is interesting as hell...

There is also the issue of the attendance of all the MSM media. Why were all the MSM media outlets live broadcasting the Trump rally this week, when they have refused to broadcast all of Trump's other rallies? CNN, MSNBC, FOX, and even the BBC and Australia TV were there. What were they expecting? Did the intel agencies direct the media to cover the rally hoping that Trump's assassination would be broadcast live for all to see? It seems unusual too, that the NYT's Doug Mills managed to capture this shot of a bullet flying behind Trump's head. Doug Mills is a former FBI agent and used a telephoto lens and a very fast 1/8000 of a second shutter speed. Was he expecting another shot?

NEW: Soon-to-be unmasked entities bet that President Trump's $DJT stock would plummet ONE DAY before the assassination attempt.

Shorts against the Truth Social stock more than doubled from July 1 -July 12, meaning, people or large organizations were predicting that by Monday the stock would plummet, something that undoubtedly would have occurred had President Trump died in Pennsylvania.

This could mean some had foreknowledge of the plot against President Trump's life and tried to profit off the coming calamity.

This also happened on 9/11, where bets were placed against the stocks of major airline companies American and United a day before the attack. An investigation showed that in both cases a single entity and a well placed insider newsletter tipped off investors to miraculously bet against the top two airlines in USA, who took a major hit after the hijackings.

They have around $1 Billion in assets under management and this is by far the largest put placed. According to a source the trade represents 6% of total shares and over 16% of the float of the stock given the fact that Trump owns 60% of the company.

REVEALED: The firm that took the suspicious and enormous bet against President Trump's Truth Social stock ($DJT) ONE DAY before the assassination attempt is Austin Private Wealth LLC, majority held by George Soros' Vanguard and BlackRock.

Coincidentally, BlackRock, the party that would have greatly profited from President Trump's death, included the shooter, Thomas Matthew Crooks, in a 2022 promotional video.

It is a cheat code like the cheat code used in the 2020 election cycle that led to Biden's victory. The Game Masters have financialized this game where they cast lots and make bets on who is going to win the Hunger Games. In addition to this, they even contribute financial power-ups called PACs. The power-up used by the Israeli Mossad controlled Democratic Party, the other day, on Donald Trump, was, an assassination attempt that was executed poorly and unsuccessful. This, naturally and organically, boosted his ratings, and now he is the new Katniss of the Hunger Games. The Hunger Games gameshow has been leading up to that very moment where it could have gone with A, he died, or B, he survived. GUNMAN UNMASKED

The suspect is in custody after the terrifying incident at Trump International Club almost exactly two months after a separate assassination attempt against Trump during a rally in Butler, Pennsylvania. The suspect was found unarmed, as a backpack, GoPro camera and AK-47 style rifle that a gunman left behind when fleeing the scene have already been located. Martin County Sheriff William D. Snyder said Routh 'was not displaying a lot of emotions' when police arrested him.

>dude somehow knows where trump is going to be >plants himself with a gun at the perimeter

>SS spots him and starts throwing lead >somehow a bystander was present to take pics of the guy jumping in to his car because he thought it was suspicious who was this bystander? how far away from the scene were they? did they not see the dude at the fence line with a gun? also, even though this was a botched assassination attempt it still took a considerable amount of planning. this wasn't just some 100% doofus.

KAAAWA, OAHU (HawaiiNewsNow) - Just off Kamehameha Highway in Kaaawa, Ryan Routh's front yard was still 10 inches underwater Monday.

It had been a day since powerful thunderstorms rocked Oahu's windward coast and things were still drying out.

"We had building materials under the house so all the lumber started floating out into the yard," Routh said.

The new homeowner moved in about a year ago and was fortunate to finish one of his improvement project's just in the nick of time.

"We recently jacked the house up two or three feet," said Routh. "The surveyor is still not done with the certificate."

Accomplishing a miracle

Renovation fulfills dream for couple

By MIKE VOGEL
Staff Business Writer

The big dormer on the front of the East Bessemer Avenue house is painted Charleston green. It looks more black than green when in the shade. That's as it should be, Ryan Routh explains, because Charleston green is "black with a drop of green" in it.

In the back part of the house, inside, there's another shade of green. Charleston green? Almost, he says, but it has more kinds of greens blended in.

On the walls of the formal living room, above the chair rail molding, well, that's Mallard green, says his wife Lora Routh. Behind the house there's more green in a little patch rimmed by brick, Yoshino cherry trees and azaleas. The patch is lawn green, as in grass.

There are other colors in the Rouths' house. Rich shades of blues and reds. Wall papers of intricate and colorful design. Black and white bathroom floor tiles. A brilliant white in the kitchen, right down to the white marble counter tops.

But green's a good color for the East Bessemer house, because it makes for an easy metaphor. Green, as in rookie, neophyte, beginner.

In the winter of 1988-89 Lora and Ryan Routh, newlywed and new to the crafts of home renovation, moved into the dilapidated bungalow house that cost them $70,000 and had been vacant for most of the previous 12 years.

They've spent $60,000 and uncounted hours of their own labor to clear the fallen plaster walls and ceilings, refinish floors, install air conditioning and a new heating system, insulate, shore up the foundation, lay a sodded courtyard, move the attic and basement stairs and add a bathroom and a sun room.

And Lora and Ryan Routh made one other addition, Oran, their first-born, who's 11 months old. There's a sandbox for him in the picket-fenced courtyard.

"We've done it all," said Ryan Routh, who with Lora has a one-liner for most of the trials of renovating the 68-year-old house. "If we'd mess something up, we'd say, it looks antique now."

The couple, both of whom are 24, bought the 1,600-square-foot house for sentimental reasons. The house, just outside the Fisher Park historic district, is the first Ryan Routh ever re-roofed after starting his own roofing contractor business.

"It's always been a dream to get an old house and redo it," Lora Routh said.

"While all the walls were knocked out, we would be in there, with the wind blowing, and freezing," Ryan Routh said.

It took four to five months to get the kitchen in working order. A previous owner had added a bathroom by condensing the kitchen to the size of a large closet. The Rouths said they ate out every night.

The view during meals is quite different now. They moved out a wall to turn a nine-square-foot pantry into a sun room overlooking their sodded patch of green off busy East Bessemer.

Finding the proper plumbing fixtures was a tremendous feat. Ryan Routh promises he knows every plumbing shop and tool rental company in town.

The master bath has an antique china bath overhung by a canvas canopy that drops like a sail, through a series of pulleys and ropes that serves as a shower curtain. Built for two, the tub had two faucets. Ryan Routh rigged it to have two sunflower shower heads.

The canvas has a black square stitched by Ryan Routh's mother Pat. The design matches the black square pattern on the white tile floor. The Rouths point to the canvas work and the house's numerous antiques to illustrate how much of the finished three-bedroom, two-bath house, stems from work of friends, family and Routh's employees.

The patterned, milky glass light fixture in the master bedroom was taken from the Kannapolis house where Lora Routh grew up.

"It's been my favorite since I was a little girl so I snagged it from Mom," she said, referring to mother Mildred McCulloch.

The Rouths' pride in their accomplishment is evident. They haven't tired of the house now that they've sweated over it, and sometimes frozen in it, for 15 months.

"It was a miracle," Lora Routh said, "but there are a lot of miracles in this neighborhood."

CRIMEFIGHTING PAYS

Police organization honors 'super citizen'

By BERNIE WOODALL

Staff Writer

Ryan Routh isn't a super hero. He's just another guy who lives in Greensboro's Fisher Park area with a family he hopes to keep safe.

But what he did — fight and chase a suspected rapist and later assist police in an investigation — makes him a super citizen if not a super hero.

For his efforts, Routh was awarded a Law Enforcement Oscar by the Greensboro chapter of the International Union of Police Association. A statue shaped like an Academy Award rests on the mantle of his living room. Routh received the Oscar for being the "citizen of the year."

"I hope that everybody else would have done the same thing in the same situation," Routh, 25, said. "When these types of incidents happen, most of what you do is just impulse. You're just reacting. I was happy to be at the right place at the right time."

Last spring, a woman working in an office building near Routh's house was raped by a burglar. After the rape, the woman locked herself in an office and scrambled onto a roof and yelled for help.

Routh was outside his house and ran to see what the woman was screaming about. She was yelling that the suspect was still inside the office building.

"I ran around to the front of the (office building) to see what was going on," Routh said. "This guy comes crawling out the front door. (That's) when I confronted him on the steps."

Routh said the man told him, "Some lady up there is screaming and yelling."

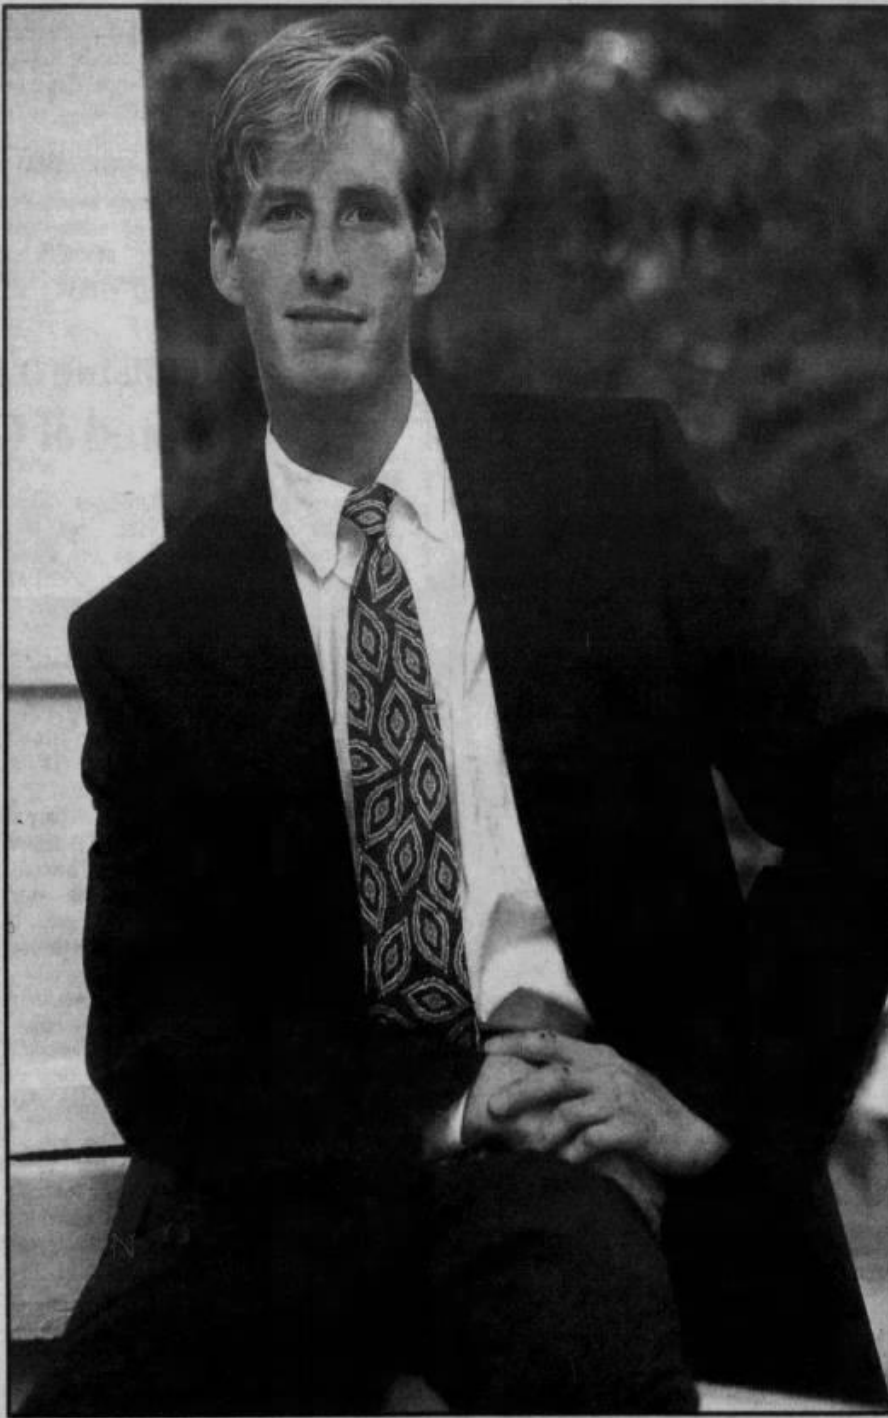

"To this guy, it was like nothing special was going on," Routh said. "It was like a walk in the park."

"He punched me at that point. He was a pretty strong fella, kind of short but strong. When he hit me, I grabbed hold of him. He shook free from me and took off running," Routh said.

Routh was knocked down during the scuffle. He got up and chased the man, but after several blocks, lost sight of him.

About

Constantly focused on contributing as much as possible to the community, always trying to put in far more than I take out. Work has never been about money rather building frameworks for people to thrive and succeed. Being mechanically minded I enjoy ideas and invention and creative projects with artistic flare. I enjoy building and collaborative projects that allow an unlimited range of ideas and options so see what our minds can create and push the limits of our thoughts. I love the unlimited opportunity right in front of us.

Having passed along any meager remnants of myself in North Carolina and relocated to Oahu, I currently build very simple housing structures for the less fortunate and pursue a wide range of other creative projects towards developing unique products and devices as well as community improvement projects. I am constantly looking for collaborative opportunities which yield the most public impact for the improvement of our society. I would tremendously enjoy the invitation to join any monumental worthy cause to bring about real change in our world. I am certainly free to relocate to any remote location on the planet that might render the most positive impact, or right around the corner creating something unique and magical. If you are working on any sort of interesting project I would appreciate an invitation to join your team as an economical, energetic unrelenting partner to help push your hopes, ideas and dreams forward as fast and as far as they can go. I look forward to your ideas and input and curious what amazing things we might create and build together.

we take our free time to donate a little effort to our neighbors and hopefully make our lives a little better. Please let us join together and be a voice for Taiwan and not sit silently and let their country be destroyed and innocent people slaughtered for no reason. We must make it clear that killing humans is unacceptable in our civilized world and that murder of civilians or soldiers or anyone should not be allowed. It is barbaric and unjustified in any situation and we must each ensure that it does not happen. It is the most basic and simplest human right that we must each ensure to afford everyone. It is not a tall order or unreasonable request and must be something that we guarantee in our modern world. Please help move our world towards this civilized acceptable norm. I hope that if you have read this far that you will take action and at least fill out the form and hopefully reach out to start a conversation with us so that we can find ways to work together to move our world in the direction that we all wish for. I hope that we each can build new partnerships and friendships so that collectively our voices can be heard, and we can influence change in our world and find solutions. Our world is full of unlimited possibilities, and we can accomplish anything at this moment in our history. We have so many unlimited tools and resources that no problem is too big to solve. There is nothing that we cannot fix together. Thank you so much for your time and we all look forward to working with you to make major change in our world. Please flood us with your ideas and thoughts and we will do all that we can to push each other as far as we can and accomplish more than we each could have ever imagined. The possibilities are endless and what we can do is boundless, and I hope that we each are amazed by what together we can accomplish. I personally will run as far and as fast as you need, and I will stand in harms way at any turn to ensure that we move always to support human rights and humanity. Let us make the world that our kids would like us to. Please let us make our kids proud. Let us be an example for them to follow and do the right thing. Thanks for your help and your time.

White pills all around.

I've been listening to the Mt. Mitchell ham radio repeater in North Carolina. A handful of high functioning White people showed up after the hurricane and put together an emergency response operation like what you would expect from trained professionals.

They have logistics, communications, administration, and medical all hammered out and functioning smoothly. They turned an airport up in the mountains into the headquarters and are running non-stop flights out to the entire area. There is zero federal response where they are, and they aren't asking for it.

There is a ham radio repeater tower on the top of the mountain, and volunteer hams are taking shifts operating net control like a police dispatch call center. HQ is holding morning and evening radio briefings detailing everything happening in their AO, and needed supplies. Hams on the ground are on the radio all day long, relaying information through net control back to the airport about all of the pockets of civilians they are reaching, their status, their needs, etc.

If the airport is the headquarters, the churches are their outposts where they fly supplies to and coordinate distribution from. One church is cooking a thousand meals a day just to feed the people working at the airport. The head of operations at the airport says that, aside from the supply trucks that are coming in from all over the country, all other support is coming from local churches.

They are currently transitioning responsibility for the entire operation to the churches, because they know the outside volunteers can't stay there forever. Reminds me a little of the church during the fall of Rome.

They are asking for log splitters to mass produce firewood, as they don't expect normal to return before winter.

⚡ IMPORTANT: This is what Maccabi Tel Aviv Hooligans did in the Netherlands that triggered all the violence against them after the authorities did nothing, don't let anyone twist it.

Israelis are not the victim.

They took down Palestine's flag and then it all started.

An eyewitness stated: "It all kicked off when they pulled a Palestinian flag off a facade. Then they started provoking and destroyed a taxi driver's car and beat up the driver themselves."

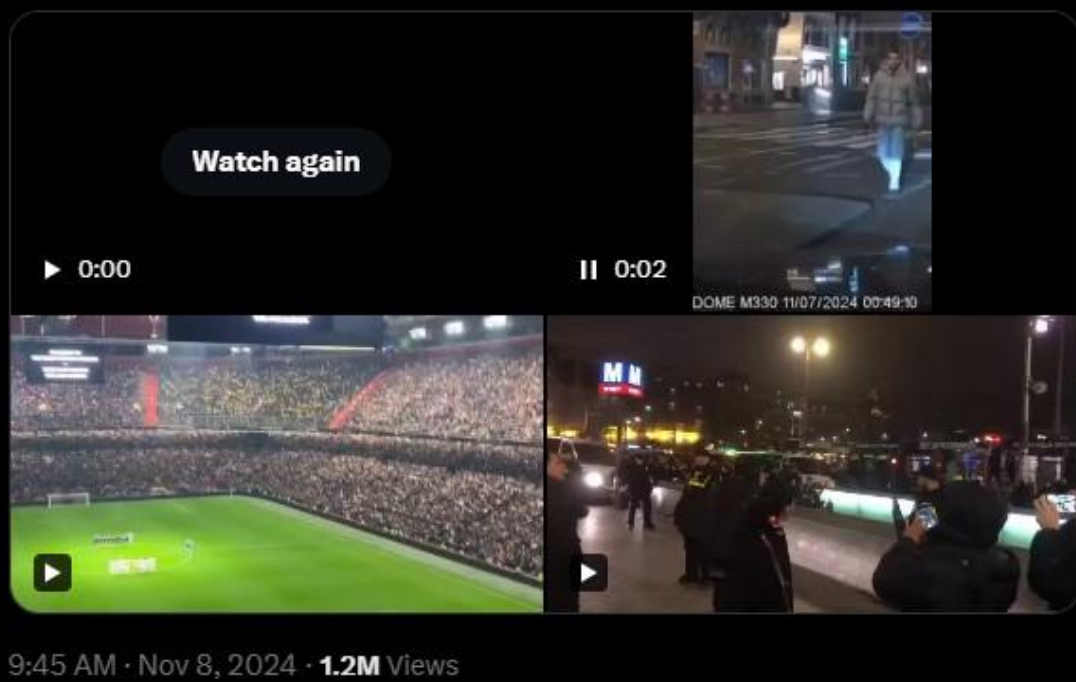

Some Maccabi fans were seen with metal chains, ready to attack.

Also during tonight's match between Ajax and Maccabi Tel Aviv, the Israeli supporters refused to hold a minute of silence for Valencia flood victims. They even started illegal fireworks.

They sang racist extermination songs

"Let the IDF win to Fuck the Arabs"

Maccabi Tel Aviv hooligans chant their genocidal song while being protected by the police in Amsterdam, this song they're chanting has a part that says "there are no schools in Gaza because there are no children left".

Facts:

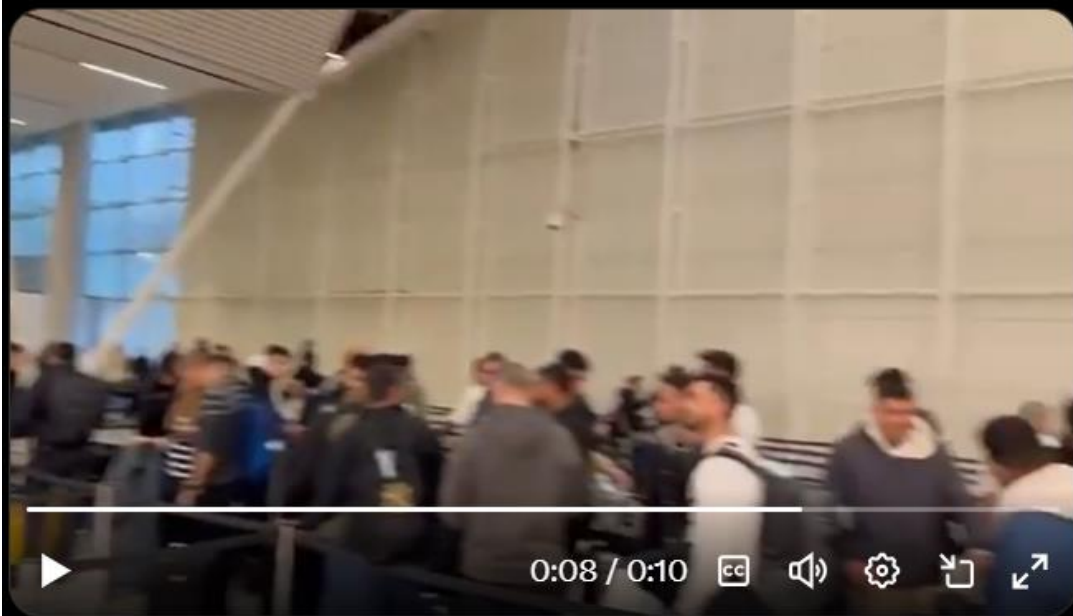

1. They are Israeli fans, not "Jewish" fans. Please FECK OFF.
2. The Israeli fans went around before the match ripping down Palestinian flags.
3. There was a minute of silence at start of match for flood victims in Spain. Israeli fans ignored this because Spain supports Palestine, so feck those flood victims. Right?
4. After the match, Israeli fans were singing songs that had lyrics like "GAZA HAS NO SCHOOLS, BECAUSE ALL THE CHILDREN ARE GONE".
Then there were fights because...Palestinians?
And Israel sends "Rescue Aircraft"? Really? REALLY??

Where do these planes land? At an airport. And how were the Israeli fans going to return home? On planes.

So now they return on "rescue planes" because....PR.

Videos on social media showed riot police intervening in clashes, with some attackers shouting anti-Israeli slurs. But some footage also showed Israeli supporters chanting anti-Arab slogans before Thursday evening's match.

Moment 'Israeli fans launch attacks on French rivals during flashpoint football match in Paris after being taunted over Gaza': Supporters flee as fists fly despite huge SAS-style security crackdown in wake of anti-Semitic violence across Europe

Shocking footage shows the moment violent scenes broke out in Paris tonight - as witnesses accuse a group of Israeli football fans of launching an attack on French supporters during their high security match. A mobile phone recording shows the moment fans fled their seats as the chaos erupted in the Stade de France, which onlookers have accused the away side's fans of starting. Witnesses say they saw young men wearing masks and balaclavas with blue Star of David flags on their backs apparently rampaging across seats, and then punching victims. A heavy security presence was put in place by French officials tonight to prevent a repeat of the violence seen last week when Israeli side Maccabi Tel Aviv played in Amsterdam. However, the atmosphere inside the ground was still incredibly tense and whistles could be heard during the Israeli national anthem - which is said to have annoyed the visiting supporters. At one point, it is claimed two Palestinian flags were brandished by home supporters, despite all flags being banned from the ground except the French tricolours and the Israeli Star of Davids.

I know a lot about ship handling and US harbor ops. This looks like simple pilot error to me. Yes the ships are run by third THE TIME and are usually related to US emission regs requiring low sulfur diesel (mandatory when entering US coastal waters). If you watch the footage you can see that the ship had very little ROT (rate of turn) and only started turning to the right after the loss and went FULL ASTERN which is usually the wrong move in most emergency shiphandling situations. Large motor ships when you go from ahead to astern the engine stops, cams shifted, and the engine is restarted turning in the opposite direction. LOT of compressed air and fuel to get it to restart hence the smoke. The smoke clears rapidly as the engine starts turning and large ships back the stern to port, bow to starboard. In confined waters with little UKC the effect is even more pronounced. It looks like they would not have hit the tower if they had done NOTHING!

Yes I have been lurking for years. FPBP. Christ is KING! No heed for Sneed.

worlders and are clattering wrecks but ALL of them are that way, DALI is no exception. Power losses happen ALL (waters) to be run in machinery designed to burn HFO, or heavy fuel oil.

er black smoke was seen coming from the stack. I think whomever on the bridge at the con panicked at the power ships like DALI have slow speed diesel engines where the crankshaft and the propeller shaft are directly connected, action using compressed air from tanks in the engine room. When the engine is put astern with headway it takes a and the turbo(s) build boost. When you back or go astern on the engine it torques the stern of the ship to the left, all . Looks to me like the ship only got the increasing ROT toward the bridge because they were backing the engine. It

If you honestly believe the Boeing whistleblower was killed, your brain is completely broken. It's one thing to believe in the Clinton conspiracy, the fact that you think a private company is able to do something like that is ridiculous.

It's actually incredible how this can happen and a site like this can sleep. The only explanation here is that conspiracies are only signaled as long as they're useful. Like accusing a rival or someone you hate of witchcraft, isn't something you or anyone else really needs to believe truly, but if such an accusation was at least useful you'd go with it.

Criticizing Boeing here is patently anti-capitalist and anti-free market. It isn't a story of government overstep, it's one where the only answer is better regulations and more effective government because it's what profit seeking leads to. It's a story of the free market racing to the bottom and killing people. Sure, you can swing around and appease the mob by taking legal action after there are accidents, but then it's always too late and companies can easily maneuver around and gold parachute out. Or they can kill people testifying against them.

Consider for a moment that Nathaniel Rothschild sat in the English House of Lords for a life time position, and yet, he only spoke to the Chamber on two occasions.

One of these occasions was to ask the Parliament to assist in the settling of 100,000+ Jewish settlers into then-British-Owned Palestine. This makes sense. The Rothschilds after all were a leader of the Zionist movement in the early 20th century.

The other speech Lord Rothschild gave? Milk Pasteurization. Now why on earth would a man part of a billionaire dynasty that practically single-handedly invented the Zionist movement, care about Milk Pasteurization as much as he cares about moving Jewish settlers into Palestine? Why are these of equal importance?

There really is no answer that makes sense, until you accept that milk pasteurization is actually extremely harmful to humans and causes cardiovascular damage, and destroys nutrients and proteins within the milk.

"Raw Milk.. decreased the levels of protein, fat, calcium and free oil"

The noble Lord, Lord Rothschild, mentioned experiments at Reading University, and I would remind your Lordships of experiments by Messrs. Mattick and Golding into the nutritive properties of pasteurized milk, the results of which were published in the Lancet in 1931. I will not weary your Lordships with details, but it was conclusively proved that a diet of pasteurized milk reduced the fertility of rats by 52 per cent. Further research was described in the Lancet in 1936 when exactly the same results were confirmed. This fact seems to have escaped the notice of prominent members of the medical profession and the Ministry of Health. I do not know all the reasons why pasteurized milk should have produced such results, but, in spite of what Lord Rothschild said, it is true to say that Dame Nature does exact retribution if her laws are violated. And it is a fact which is being brought home to any who have had experience of artificial insemination for cattle. In regard to the experiments which I have mentioned I do not suggest that all results achieved from experiments on animals necessarily apply to human beings, but it is not unreasonable to assume that a diet so deleterious to animals may not be without its disadvantages to the human race. I do not want to labour the point but since thermal action does destroy good qualities as well as bad, in milk, and certainly destroys vitamin C, I do suggest that if Governments and local authorities are to enforce pasteurization they should at the same time make known how to compensate for the depreciated value of milk, by fruit juice, if obtainable, or by other means.

2. Add 4 oz (120ml) of filtered or distilled water to the glass cup and stir with a plastic spoon.
3. Use a plastic syringe with ml markings to extract water containing Sodium Chlorite drops as per the weight of the animal from Table 2.
4. Give to the cat or dog orally every 15 minutes (4 times an hour) for the first two hours. Then every hour thereafter for a total of 10 hours.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q1. Can my cat and dog drink from the same water bowl?

A1. Yes, your cat and dog can drink from the same water bowl. They will each drink what they need per their body weight. See table 1 for proper dosing of their water bowl.

Q2. How often should the water in the cat's or dog's water bowl be changed?

A2. The water in the cat's or dog's water bowl should be changed daily. This will ensure proper dosing due to possible activation or breakdown of Sodium Chlorite. See table 1 for proper dosing of their water bowl.

Q3. Can I use a cat and dog water fountain bowl?

A3. No, cat and dog water fountain bowls are typically equipped with water filters. They have the ability to remove the Sodium Chlorite from drinking water.

Q4. Can my cat or dog smell the Sodium Chlorite drops in their water bowl?

A4. Cats and dogs are known for their very strong sense of smell. They can smell traces of Sodium Chlorite in their drinking water, and most will not mind. However, most cats and dogs tend to stay away from activated Sodium Chlorite (Chlorine Dioxide) due to its Chlorine-like odor.

Q5. Per table 1 "Maintenance Protocol," will my cat or dog drink too much water with Sodium Chlorite drops?

A5. No, cats and dogs will drink what they need per their body weight.

Q6. Why is my cat or dog not getting better after following the protocols?

A6. Antioxidants are Chlorine Dioxide's worst enemy. They will freely donate electrons to Chlorine Dioxide and take away its ability to oxidize (destroy) pathogens, cancers, and toxins. Also, cats and dogs naturally produce Vitamin C, which is an antioxidant. Continue following the protocols, however, make sure to avoid all foods containing antioxidants. This means no fruits, vegetables, or supplements. Antioxidants can only be taken in the evening or after completing their protocols for the day.

Q7. How do I know if I should use the maintenance dose or the severe case dose?

A7. The severe case dose is for an animal that cannot get up and get its own water.

Q8. Can I use the protocols on other animals besides cats and dogs (Horses, birds, etc.)?

A8. Yes, other animals can follow the same protocols. However, the Maintenance Protocol dosing must be adjusted according to the amount of water the animal will drink (See Table 1) or the Severe Case Protocol as per the weight of the animal (See Table 2).

The West's greatest weapon in a war with China? Online porn

North Korean troops in Ukraine have reportedly become addicted to pornography. For the West, this could prove a vital military breakthrough /fit/ here. Gimme a minute to compose myself and I'll try and explain just how evil the joos are.

I wondered for a long time why they would let the fitness industry exist, in the sense they would have examples of masculinity for young men to see. I couldn't figure out. Was it the vanity?
 6 companies control the food.

600,000 products made out of 4 ingredients.

These 4 ingredients make up over 70+% of the normie diet.

Also, veg oil and chicken fuel the fast food industry and the nig spic cycle. If it wasn't for feeding the chicken veg oil garbage they wouldn't grow as large and there would be less meat.

Dairy cooperatives are not part of this food empire like the factories that make veg oil.

All of these veg seed oils made out of garbage in oil refineries have a long shelf life, are cheap, don't need to be refrigerated. Beef fat and butter would require working out something with the dairy cooperatives and the entire food industry would be controlled by dairies.

Now it get's insidious. See the blue shit in picrel?

That is only used as a signalling molecule by the human body. It only needs a small amount and it would only get a small amount normally. The joos however used a whole factory and solvents to get that oil out.

The human body doesn't use it for energy. It gets stored.

Know what that means? You gain weight. That you can't diet or exercise away. Diet industry always has customers.

The oil can't be used for energy but the body has to spend energy to deal with it, you get fatter and stay hungry.

Perfect business model.

The human brain is made out of saturated fat.

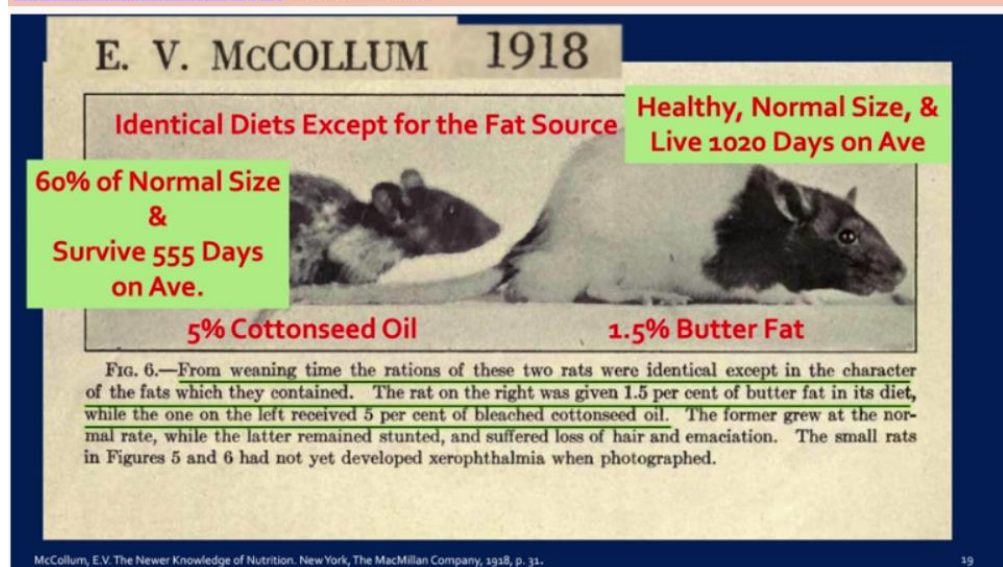

Cholesterol. Hormones are made out of it. Like testosterone.

Your brain is made out of butter.

All of the medical shills for decades have been saying saturated fat is bad.

They've been giving everyone a veg oil lobotomy.

They have the fitness industry repeating the same non sense over and over about "calories" and "heart healthy oils" while looking good on steroids, for decades. It's all bull shit.

Now here's how I finally figured it out. I read about omega 3 in butter and noticed I never heard that before. Then my brain did an autism and started tier ranking food by nutrition. Butter is number 1. It should be labelled as vitamin spread. There isn't anything that comes close.

The fitness industry trains people who are health conscious to view food with a false paradigm

Now, guess what the joos have known for 100 years. picrel.

Feed the slaves veg seed oil they live half as long and are weak.

A little butter and a long healthy life.

All junk and fast food would become health food if they ditched veg oil and used butter and beef fat.

This is why you should never have organ transplants or blood transfusions.

We tried to warn you.

Liberals tend to push for regulation on agriculture that ends up punishing small farmers that are more likely to be practicing regenerative farming, while leaving large food manufacturers that run factory farms relatively unburdened by comparison. Your ultrarich mega corporations tend to be based in wealthy liberal areas, while your average small farmer tends to live in poor and relatively conservative areas. That is how this became a political issue.

Unpasteurized milk is a great way to tell if the cow is healthy or sick, and if the cow is being turned into a freak of nature with a wild cocktail of hormone injections or not. Cows injected with tons of antibiotics, tren, and synthetic estradiol/prolactin tend to pass that along in the milk. Milk quality also drops drastically if you are feeding them a diet consisting of corn and expired ultraprocessed food from a grocery store. Pasteurization lets you put up safety rails so no matter how fucked up you treat the animal, the milk is still relatively safe to drink, albeit being significantly more inflammatory for most people than it would be in a raw state. Inflammation-related conditions are at an all time high (autoimmune, extreme allergic responses, arthritis, etc.), but people don't seem to want to drink any less milk, so making a less inflammatory option for such a popular food product outright illegal seems kind of counterproductive to the general health and well being of society. This leads people to assume regulation on raw milk is motivated by a desire to maintain a sick population to keep paying in to big pharma, further politicizing the issue.

The interesting part to me is that pasteurization has allowed some of the most egregious animal abuse that has ever occurred in all of history to fly quietly under the radar. If people got sick from drinking milk because the animals themselves are sick, they'd probably be more interested in knowing why.

HISTORY

Japan on 1572 map by Ortelius, seemingly now St. Lawrence Island in the Bering Strait. The caption reads that it was called Zipangri by Master Paul the Venetian. Formerly Chryse, related to Argyre, legendary islands of silver and gold, were told to be located near Japan, possibly because Marco Polo claimed Japan (Cipangu) to be rich in gold. Cham also means Khan. There is a connection between this entire region near the Bering Strait and the Scythians, who also produced the Khans and Tartars.

As European geographers gathered more reliable information about the Indian Ocean, the purported location of Chryse and Argyre shifted farther and farther east to the fringes of the known world. By the time Martin Behaim created his Erdapfel globe in 1492, the islands were thought to be near Japan, possibly because Marco Polo had claimed Japan itself (which he called Cipangu) to be rich in gold and silver; Behaim is known to have used both Pliny and Marco Polo as sources.^[3] Another proposed location was the Kingdom of Salakanagara on Java, based on the fact that Salakanagara means "island of silver" in Sanskrit.^[4]

The discovery of the Americas changed everything. European explorers in search of fabled lands of gold now sailed west for El Dorado instead of east to Cipangu. The works of Isidore of Seville fell out of fashion and the islands of Chryse and Argyre slowly faded from the popular imagination.

A modern facsimile of Martin Behaim's 1492 Erdapfel map. Chryse and Argyre are in the same map section as Cipangu (Japan) on the right, with Chryse just to the west of its southern tip, labelled Crisis and colored yellow-brown; Argyre is to the southwest of Chryse, labelled Argire and colored white. Note the absence of the Americas.

Marco Polo's ventures to Cathay land him near the Strait where Argon, Anian and Arsareth are said to lay on old maps, now located in what is called Siberia, Siberia being named after Sibir, the legendary Capitol of Siberia, located seemingly further west. Siberia and Scythia share a deep history and the above kingdoms share history with Siberia, renamed Tartary by Ghengis Khan, Tartary formerly known as Siberia during the reign of Queen Tamyris of Scythia.

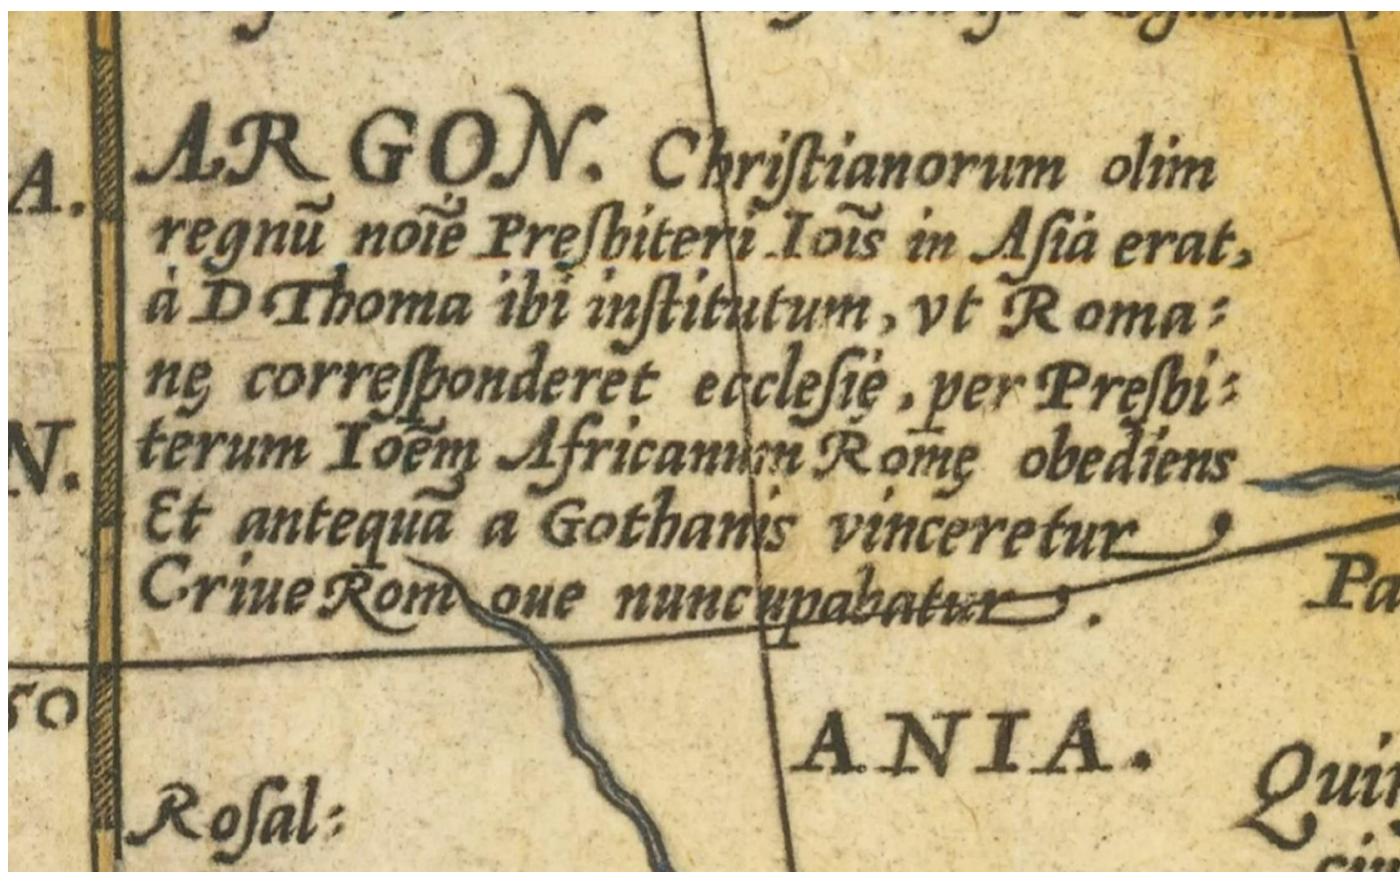

Though depictions of the Khans vary, it's noteworthy that above in the right he's depicted in a posture and artistic style very similar to how samurai are depicted sitting, with a style of dagger that would be considered Ottoman or Arabic today. Below is an OLD depiction of Kublai Khan holding court appearing very European. Genghis is displayed in an artsyle considered Japanese by modern times, which is interesting if Japan was claimed by him.

Kublai is credited with trying to invade Japan in the 1200s. Whether Genghis also had anything to do with conquering Japan remains to possibly be discovered in old records, and whether the Great Cham in the annotation in the map above refers to him or Kublai is also up for consideration, but it is interesting that the Khans apparently conquered Japan, are depicted in a style we now accept as a contemporary Japanese art style and the placement (or strange displacement?) of Ainu in modern day Japan having Caucasian features in light of the Khan being depicted with a dagger now considered Turkish or Ottoman (Caucasian linked)

"Here the 10 tribes separated, and in the place of the Tartars they established themselves in the Scythian manor, hence they are called Gauthy or Gauthay to be honored from the highest "glory of god, and from this kingdom became famous as Cathay." Located in Siberia near the Alaskan land bridge in the modern day, possibly submerged. Gauthay seems to have Gothic roots, Queen Tamyris of Scythia is shown with Scottish runed robes.
From 1570-1572 map of Tartarie by Ortelius

ARGON: Once there was in Asia, a Christian kingdom known to Prester John and D. Thomas founded it in this place so that it was in contact with the Church of Rome, and was subjected to Rome through Prester John of Africa before it was defeated by the Goths. It was known as Criue Romoue.

There was a Christian kingdom in Ania in Sibera, near Arsareth/Azareth before Ania migrated into modern day Alaska (Occidentis 1597 map Quiviria et Anian, 1597)

[This Linguagium quadripartitum had at the time of idolatry one soverign pontiff they called Criue, who inhabited in the town Romoue so called from Roma, because this linguagium, they say, came from Italy, and has some Italian words in its speech. About this Criue and about the town Romoue one can read in the legend of pontiff and martyr Saint Adalbert].

inhabited, and as full of people as the town, about three German leagues and a half, which maketh about fourteen English miles; the compass of the town, within the walls, is about three English miles; the streets and path-ways are of great trees set close together, and some boards by the houses sides; and it is so dirty in rainy weather, that it is impossible to go through the city, otherwise than on horseback; according to the custom of the country, where horses are of small value, and of little expence, never being shod for any journey whatsoever, unless it be during the ice. The houses are but one story high, or two at the most, all built with wood, set up at the top one of another: there are, in the city, suburbs, and castle, about five thousand, five hundred churches, built, for the most part, like chapels, most of them with great trees set one upon another. The great duke's lodging is also built of wood, which he thinketh wholesomer than stone; the castle is pretty well fortified with walls and broad ditches; it occupieth as much room as all the rest of the city. On one side of it dwell the Sins, on the other the Optifins, who are as the treasurers of the great duke, in whose hands, as soon as you come, you must put in all your merchandises. Being departed from Nerva, about the tenth of July, 1570, we came on the beginning of August, to Moscow, where I found the great duke*, and his officers, busy in seeking out about thirty persons, who fell all under the sword of the common hangman, except one who was cast alive in boiling water; and this, because they had taken bribes; most of them were great lords; and familiars with the great duke; others were merchants of Novogrod, with their wives, children, and families, accused of treason in the behalf of the king of Poland. Few days after, a horrid plague invaded the town of Moscow, and the places about it, with such violence, that, in four months, there died above two hundred and fifty thousand people; and it was particularly observed, that, in eight days, that is, from the tenth to the eighteenth of August, there died two thousand seven hundred and three priests; and this plague did continue so fiercely, that, in the end of it, every one wondered when he met any body of his acquaintance.

This extraordinary misery was followed the year after, on the fifteenth of May, by a strange ruin and conflagration; the occasion was, that the emperor of the Tartarians, being discontented that the Russians did not pay him some annual tribute; and hearing besides, that the great duke, by his tyranny and massacres, had so depopulated the country, that he should find no great resistance that way, did summon him to pay the said tribute; but the great duke returned nothing in answer, but spightful and reproachful words; wherefore, the Tartarian came out of his country, about the end of February, followed with an army of one hundred thousand horse, who, within the space of two months and a half, did ride about five hundred German leagues, which make two thousand English miles:

when they were come about two days journey from the frontiers of the duke, he resolved to meet them, and to give them battle; but he lost it with a prodigious slaughter of his men. The duke, knowing that the Tartarian would seek him out, ran away, as fast and as far as he could: he was only within nine leagues of Moscow, when the Tartarians came and encompassed the town, thinking he was within; they set a-fire all the villages round about it; and, seeing that the war would prove too tedious for them, resolved to burn that great city, or, at least, the suburbs of it: for this purpose, having placed their troops round about it, they set fire on all sides, so that it seemed a burning globe; then did arise so fierce and violent a wind, that it drove the rafters and long trees from the suburbs into the city; the conflagration was so sudden, that no body had time to save himself, but in that place where he was then: the persons, that were burnt in this fire, were above two hundred thousand; which did happen, because the houses were all of wood, and the streets paved with great fir-trees, set close together, which being oily and rosinous, made the incendiary unexpressible, so that, in four hours time, the city and suburbs were wholly consumed. I and a young man of Rochelle, who was my interpreter, were in the middle of the fire, in a magazine vaulted with stone, and extraordinarily strong, whose wall was three feet and a half thick, and had no air but on two sides; one wherein was the coming in and going out, which was a long alley, in which there were three iron gates, distant about six feet from each other; on the other side there was a window, or grate, fenced with three iron shutters, distant half a foot one from another: we shut them inwardly, as well as possibly we could; nevertheless, there came in so much smoke, that it was more than sufficient to choak us, had it not been for some beer that was there, with the which we refreshed ourselves now and then. Many lords and gentlemen were stifled in the caves, where they had retired, because, their houses being made of great trees, when they fell, they crushed down all that was underneath; others, being consumed to ashes, stopped all the passages of going and coming out, so that, for want of air, they all perished. The poor country people, that had saved themselves, in the city, with their cattle, from threescore miles round about, seeing the conflagration, ran all into the market-place, which is not paved of wood, as the rest; nevertheless, they were all roasted there in such sort, that the tallest man seemed but a child, so much had the fire contracted their limbs; and this, by reason of the great houses that were round about; a thing more hideous and frightful than any can imagine. In many places of the said market, the bodies were piled one upon another, to the height of half a pike; which put me into a wonderful admiration, being not able to apprehend, nor understand, how it was possible they should be so heaped together.

* This great duke was John Basilides, the famous tyrant.

Thanks, anon. The part being left out here is who and what the "Scythians" actually were. See, the Scythian Noble class operated beneath the Druidic Royalty, the Dragon people of Enki, who we now mythologize as "fairies" (where "Fair" became "Fairy" or "Faerie"). The Scythian class was more like the noble aristocracy beneath the actual royal bloodline of the Serpent. This class of citizenry which made up the Scythians was largely comprised of what we'd understand to be "white people" today. But those beneath them, those in the servant (slave) class, belonged to all different peoples - these were the Celts; Gauls, Galatians, Gaels and so on. The Germanic peoples fell within this rung as well, as did the Nords, another subclass of the tribes.

What this means is that Genghis was actually apart of the Noble body of Aryans (the word actually means "Noble", it's not simply "white people"), Scythians, who were subordinate to the Druids (not confined to English Isles, mind you), but in a class of their own, above those they conquered. Genghis, like the Budha, was apart of this class. Jesus' case was slightly different, as modern royals claim lineage from his family and most, as consequence of this tradition, place him in a class above the Aryans (Nobles), but within the class of Druids themselves, which curiously explains a lot of the Classicist talking points regarding the actual original Greek meanings of the language used to describe him and his story.

It does seem the "Tartarians" had tremendous overlap with the Phoenicians at least, actually. However, Egypt and Greece would have been somewhat distant relatives at this point. The Romans lose all relation, especially after aiding their cousins' destruction more locally. As we've laid out, those in Tartaria called the Scythians (Sithians) were a class above the rest of them, local authorities. Those who they conquered were often taught very interesting sciences, like how to build in certain ways, use metals in certain ways, even crystals, and plenty more. So, yes, they certainly carried on the traditions and knowledge of those that conquered them. Keep in mind a meaningful amount of the tribe wasn't exactly stationary. We have loads of accounts of these kinds of people being nomadic; the woman-warrior tribes that would raid local villages and kidnap, rape and murder local men, we have the Massagetae, who are known for their normadic escapades in the Near East and Central Asia regions, who later moved into the India region and plenty more examples.

The ones who have been trying to rewrite history have been the Romans. The idea that "all roads lead to Rome" is absurd in actuality, but if we take the saying at its base layer, it's incredibly accurate. Why? Because these roads "leading to" Rome suggest that Rome was the culprit for erasing History, not inspiring it. In other words, Rome was responsible for travelling the world, performing various genocides, stealing loads of written works and treasures and squirreling them away in their vaults. The codename used for these events is often "The Spanish" throughout history, but it definitely means Rome or The Vatican.

Count Simon de Montfort is the most famous figure of the so-called Cathar War of the 13th century, the victor over the Cathars. He is also called Simon the Strong [1020], p.27. He is believed to have led the greatest crusade against the Cathars and defeated them in a series of fierce and heavy battles [in 1020]. However, the victory was far from final. The war against the Cathars = Scythians continued long after the death of the Count...

Simon de Montfort was killed at the siege of the city of Toulouse supposedly in 1218 [1020]. His death occurred under unique circumstances that deserve a separate discussion. During the siege of Toulouse "a stone thrown from a ballista struck Simon de Montfort on the head" [1020], p.27. Another presentation of the story goes like this: "He was killed by a stone, thrown from a war machine mounted in a central position on the fortifications of Toulouse, and operated, according to tradition, by women and girls" [1020], p.27. The chronicler Pierre des Vaux de Cernay adds: "And the stone went straight at him in the right place, and struck the count exactly on his steel helmet, so that his eyes, his brain, his teeth, his forehead and his jaw were broken into pieces. He collapsed on the ground, dead, blackened and bloody," [1020], p.27.

Throughout "ancient" history there is only one case where a prominent commander was killed by a stone thrown by a woman, the stone having struck him in the head. This is the famous "ancient" Pyrrhus. He is described in "ancient" sources as the greatest Macedonian commander. Here is how Plutarch recounts the death of Pyrrhus during the assault on the city of Argos. An old woman, a resident of Argos, "had taken part in the battle (from the window of her house - Ed.), and when she saw that her son had entered into combat with Pyrrhus ... she tore off some shingles from the roof and with both hands threw them at Pyrrhus. The tile struck him in the head and broke the vertebrae of his neck," [660], Volume 2, p.64. Mortally wounded, Pyrrhus fell from his horse and died.

Now we turn to the Bible. Throughout the Bible, there is only one reference to a case in which a famous commander was killed by a stone thrown by a woman that struck him on the head. That is the biblical King Abimelech.

Here is what the book of Judges, in the Old Testament, says. The woman - a resident of the city of Thebest watched the battle from a window in the tower, saw the soldiers besieged by Abimelech (Judges 9:51-53). "And Abimelech came to the tower and wrestled with it ... Then a woman cast a piece of the millstone on Abimelech's head, and crushed his skull" (Judges 9:52-53). Abimelech, mortally wounded, died.

Thus, we have three remarkably similar descriptions of a single event: a famous commander, besieging a city, is killed by the hand of a woman throwing a stone at him from a city wall or tower... We assert that we are faced with three different descriptions of the same real events of the Middle Ages, produced either in the 13th-14th centuries or in the 16th century...

We are in the little season. The millennial reign of Christ was a thousand year golden age, which is where all the buildings came from. Satan was loosed upon the earth for a short while after the high heat, electro-plasma cataclysmic event of roughly 300 years ago (ie. mudflood).

Repent and call on Christ, because when he returns it's not going to be as a savior, but a conqueror.

Was it a one world government?

What destroyed it?

When did it happen?

Why are our forefathers lying about it? What the government so hated that they lied about it existence?

Yes, we live in the ruins of a post apocalyptic world. They lied about it because we are their slaves and they want to have and maintain their power and control over us.

All signs point that it was the 1000 year kingdom of Christ this is the most compelling argument I keep coming back to and Christians have a really, really hard time with it. the simplest framing I give my friends and family who are not even entertaining the idea is >who controls the planet

>if it's Satan/ic forces then what is the default for him >if it's deception then it's reasonable to assume deception is the norm rather than the exception at all levels >if you accept deception is the default then you have to also accept there's going to be a whole, whole lot of big assumptions that aren't correct

>if you eventually accept that we're possibly in the little season then you have also consider the breath, depth, effort, etc that would go into "deceiving the nations" one last time without a complete break in a human population, a full reset. in other words it would be a scale that boggles the mind etc.

millennial kingdom, preterism etc are all very compelling to me at this point. very troublesome at points but compelling

The post-reset war of 1800 birthed our modern society, and many things that define our current way of life can be traced back to the 19th Century. The way of life in the 18th Century is so different to ours that if we would put both next to each other we could almost talk about two different universes. The fact that we do not remember, collectively, is all that's needed to prove how alienated we are from our own ancestors.

- Colonialism/Imperialism to run over the weakened areas (colonialist power was at its height in the 19th century). Also basically to send out scouts into the entire world as no one really knew what's going on in the depopulated area after the reset. Then dismantle the kingdoms and install democracy. The history of colonialism/imperialism has been artificially lengthened to hide the importance of the 19th century. Consider the two periods of imperialism in India: We are told the first period lasted from 1740 to 1858 with the economic control via the East India Trading company, but only in 1858 did the British actually invade India, thus starting the colonialist phase of imperialism. I suggest that the history before 1858 is largely made up to support the myth of the long time frame of colonialism.
- Empty cities of the American West, as the repopulation took quite a while
- Complete destruction of Tartaria and a couple other free nations
- Cataclysm in the Northern Hemisphere: Almost complete destruction of the northern areas of the world, suggesting a cataclysm or weapon of enormous power
- Massive destruction of Roman Style Cities in North America to bring reality in line with the idea that North America was only inhabited by primitive Natives.
- Industrialisation and Robber Barons to reintroduce stolen knowledge (full effect of Industrialisation not felt until the 1840s)
- Globally coordinated effort of running the World Fairs to bring the stolen knowledge to the masses (first started around 1860 I think)
- Mental Asylums to control the dissidents and those in shock (first came up around 1800-1840)
- Modern medicine and education as crowd control (mandatory schooling emanating from Europe in the 18th century)
- Orphan trains and church run foundling business, to repopulate the depopulated areas of the world
- Tasking freemasons to organize the free post-reset masonry
- "Science" is being pushed on the population
- Central Banking to control the economy
- Communism (potentially with cloning involved, in China, India, Russia) to destroy the east
- Two world wars to destroy the old-world architecture and knowledge in Central Europe, bring the awareness of the population down to the average global level

Chapter 1

How the Cornerstone of the Earth Was Hidden from Us

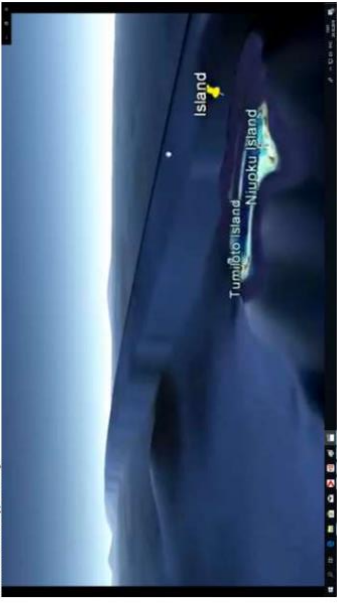

October 24, 2019

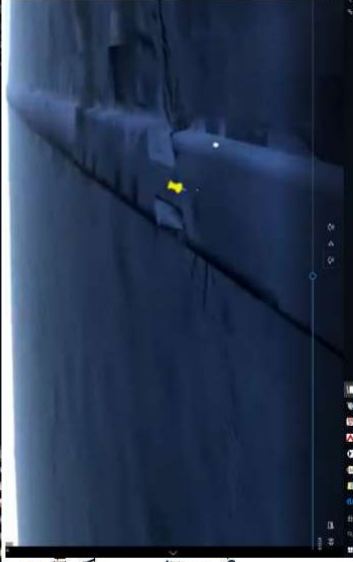

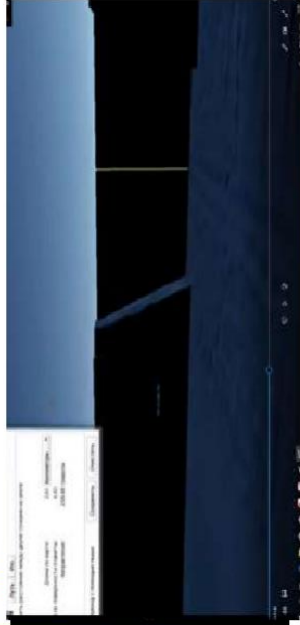

Map of the world in the head of a jester or a fool. Unfortunately, I could not find a release date for this "Jester's Map".

What is interesting in this map? Again, as you understand, we are talking about centuries before the adoption of Greenwich as the prime meridian. The numbering is completely different than in Greenwich. But in the center of this map, as the 360th meridian, they chose the meridian that runs along the Wall, and which we today call the 180th meridian, or anti-Greenwich. How? Why?

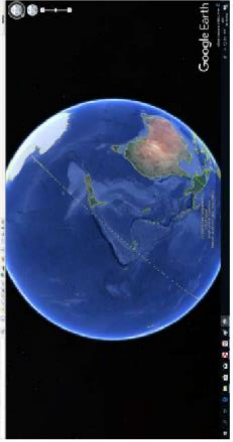

Or look at the map of Nicola Delienne, made in 1566 (below).

Google Photo: One of the rare places where the Wall passes next to the islands.

Author's Preface

This is a book about the Great Underwater Wall – the Great Rock, since ancient times referred to as Altar (Alatyr, Anadyr), White Stone, the Cornerstone of the Earth, its Umbilical Cord, the Measuring Rod, the Foundation Stone, the Underwater Tree of Life, etc. In 2017 this Great Underwater Wall appeared on Google Maps – only to disappear shortly after. This disappearance of the Wall from the Google Maps had greatly mutilated gigantic areas of Google Maps, leaving previously well-presented areas disfigured or with zero resolution – as we'll see from the illustrations provided in this book.

This book is a collection of articles that were published over a course of several years at the Open Seminary, on Yandex Zen. We'll study the Wall on all sides, from every perspective. We will recover an ancient knowledge of the Great Underwater Wall, for which we turn to the Bible and to the ancient traditions of various peoples. We will find this Wall as marked on all credible maps of the world from ancient times – to these days.

We will try to understand the real reasons why the world chose the 180th meridian – the basis of Greenwich – as "coinciding" with the Great Underwater Wall (when Greenwich was accepted as the zero meridian in 1884).

We will discover the real crush cause why the legendary Soviet Submarine K-129 sank by the Wall. We will also learn how and why the Americans, who got hold of the Soviet submarine, drilled the Wall. You will also learn what happened to the samples of mineral mined from the Great Underwater Wall back in 1972. You will learn the story of the richest man in the world at that time, Howard Hughes, who gave away all of his fortune and even his life and reputation, for these extraordinary minerals. We will look at the photo's of underwater mining done around the Great Underwater Wall, and we will ask a reasonable question: who is doing the mining by the Wall these days?

We will learn about the giant rectangular icebergs that are formed on both sides the Wall. We will find out what polar scientists have to say about "some ancient rocky structure" that cuts the Ross Sea in two, "like a spoke in a wheel", and determines the climate change and marine life in the researchers continued to look closely at such square icebergs, tracing the places and the patterns of their occurrence.

For some time, scientists would have as an "official" version that such perfect-shaped icebergs are result of some anomalous electro-magnetic or gravitational fields in Antarctica. This was only a working assumption, and scientists began to investigate other possible factors in the formation of such icebergs. And that's when they stumbled upon what appears in a number of articles they refer to as an "ancient rocky structure" dividing Antarctica, "like a huge spoke coming from the center of a wheel".

Of course, this is a somewhat vague expression – "ancient rocky structure". But the authors of the articles decide not to go further than this definition. They do not even discuss the issue of artificial or natural origin of this "structure". As true professionals in their field, they know how to keep silent about "structure" and focus on one thing: the "influence of this structure" on sea currents, on the Underwater Wall, going under the ice of Antarctica. Cut from Google in 2017.

The team of scientists behind this series of articles that I quote in this chapter has been studying Antarctica since the 90s. In their turn, they took over from an even earlier generation of explorers. The task of the team was and is to monitor the ice shelves of Antarctica: their changing size, ice thickness, breakaway icebergs, the impact of global climate change, etc.

So, already in 1997, the attention of the team was taken by the phenomenon of "square icebergs". Scientists could not explain such an extraordinary phenomenon – and this was not part of their immediate task. But still, the Inside secret tunnel built by 'extremist Jewish students' linking historic 'cleansing bath' to Brooklyn synagogue that was only discovered when homeowner heard 'suspicious noises at night'

Initially, local site Crown Heights Info reported that it led all the way to a women's mikvah at the end of the street - several houses away.

However the operators of that women's mikvah say it does not, and instead connects the synagogue with an out-of-use historic men's mikvah at 770 Eastern Parkway - the synagogue site.

The NYPD is yet to confirm exactly where the tunnel leads, what is being used for or what the young men have been charged with.

It is the world headquarters of the Chabad-Lubavitch sect.

The Child-Rape Assembly Line

Rabbi Nuchem Rosenberg—who is 63 with a long, graying beard—recently sat down with me to explain what he described as a "child-rape assembly line" among sects of fundamentalist Jews.

A member of Brooklyn's Satmar Hasidim fundamentalist branch of Orthodox Judaism, Nuchem designs and repairs mikvahs in compliance with Torah Law. The mikvah is a ritual Jewish bathhouse used for purification. Devout Jews are required to cleanse themselves in the mikvah on a variety of occasions: Women must visit following menstruation, and men have to make an appearance before the High Holidays, such as Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Many of the devout also purify themselves before and after the act of sex and before the Sabbath.

On a visit to Jerusalem in 2005, Rabbi Rosenberg entered into a mikvah in one of the holiest neighborhoods in the city, Mea She'arim. "I opened a door that entered into a schvitz," he told me. "Vapors everywhere, I can barely see. My eyes adjust, and I see an old man, my age, long white beard, a holy-looking man, sitting in the vapors. On his lap, facing away from him, is a boy, maybe seven years old. And the old man is having anal sex with this boy."

Rabbi Rosenberg inspects a ritual purification bath, known as a mikvah. In 2005, he witnessed a young boy being raped inside a similar bath.

The child sex abuse crisis in ultra-Orthodox Judaism, like that in the Catholic Church, has produced its share of shocking headlines in recent years. In New York, and in the prominent Orthodox communities of Israel and London, allegations of child molestation and rape have been rampant. The alleged abusers are schoolteachers, rabbis, fathers, uncles—figures of male authority. The victims, like those of Catholic priests, are mostly boys. Rabbi Rosenberg believes around half of young males in Brooklyn's Hasidic community—the largest in the United States and one of the largest in the world—have been victims of sexual assault perpetrated by their elders. Ben Hirsch, director of Survivors for Justice, a Brooklyn organization that advocates for Orthodox sex abuse victims, thinks the real number is higher. "From anecdotal evidence, we're looking at over 50 percent. It has almost become a rite of passage."

pcmag.com/news/israel-restricts-hacking-tool-spyware-exports-amid-controversy

Israel has quietly reduced the number of countries to which its companies may sell hacking tools and spyware amid ongoing criticism from its allies over how those technologies are being used.

Calcalist reports that Israeli companies are now restricted to selling cyberweapons to democratic countries throughout Europe, members of the Five Eyes intelligence alliance, and the like. The Record says this brings those companies' potential customers down from 102 countries to 37.

These restrictions follow the US Department of Commerce's addition of two Israeli companies, NSO Group and Candiru, to the Entity List. Being put on that list makes it far more difficult for those companies to access technologies and products created by American businesses.

The Commerce Department says it acted "based on evidence that these entities developed and supplied spyware to foreign governments that used these tools to maliciously target government officials, journalists, businesspeople, activists, academics, and embassy workers."

Israeli Spies in the US

Jeff McConnell in: 138 (January/February 1986)

November 21, 1985, was a remarkable day. FBI agents arrested a civilian terrorism analyst working for the US Navy, Jonathan Jay Pollard, outside the Israeli Embassy in Washington, where he had gone seeking political asylum. Six days later, Pollard was arraigned in federal district court on several counts of espionage against the United States as a paid agent for the government of Israel.

The Pollard affair took Washington and Tel Aviv by surprise. Wolf Blitzer, Washington correspondent for the Jerusalem Post, in a book published just several weeks before Pollard's arrest, wrote that there is no real fear in the US government that American Jews are leaking information to the Mossad, the Israeli equivalent of the CIA. "Experienced US intelligence officials readily acknowledge that the degree of cooperation between the CIA and the Mossad is already so close that the two organizations do not really have to spy on each other. Despite infractions on both sides," Blitzer explained, "US and Israeli intelligence organizations have maintained a discreet arrangement since the 1950s, handling covert operations against each other." [1]

Another reading of this record, though, shows that Pollard's activities fit a pattern of Israeli espionage efforts. As John Davitt, a 30-year veteran of the Justice Department who resigned in 1980, told the New York Times: "When the Pollard case broke, the general media and public perception was that this was the first time this had ever happened. No, that's not true at all. The Israeli intelligence service, when I was in the Justice Department, was the second most active in the United States, to the Soviets." [2]

2004 Israel-New Zealand passport scandal

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The 2004 Israel-New Zealand passport scandal was an incident of passport fraud in July 2004 that led New Zealand to take diplomatic sanctions against Israel. High-level contacts between the two countries were suspended after two Israeli citizens suspected of being Mossad agents, Uziel Kelman and Eli Cara, were caught trying to fraudulently acquire a New Zealand passport using the identity of a man with cerebral palsy. Prime Minister Helen Clark declared that New Zealand government viewed the acts carried out by Kelman and Cara as "not only utterly unacceptable but also a breach of New Zealand sovereignty and international law."

Israel accused of planting bug in White House politic.com/story/2019/09/12/israel-whi...

The U.S. government concluded within the past two years that Israel was most likely behind the placement of cellphone surveillance devices that were found near the White House and other sensitive locations around Washington, according to three former senior U.S. officials with knowledge of the matter.

But unlike most other occasions when flagrant incidents of foreign spying have been discovered on American soil, the Trump administration did not rebuke the Israeli government, and there were no consequences for Israel's behavior, one of the former officials said.

The miniature surveillance devices, colloquially known as "StingRays," mimic regular cell towers to fool cellphones into giving them their locations and identity information. Formally called international mobile subscriber identity-catchers or IMSI-catchers, they also can capture the contents of calls and data use.

Of course, Israel has spied; the best-known case is Jonathan Pollard, the served close to 30 years in prison for a massive intelligence breach and who currently is on parole and living in New York.

Pollard wasn't exactly an outlier. At the same time that the civilian Navy analyst was squirreling classified documents to his Israeli handlers, so was a lesser-known civilian Army analyst, Ben-Ami Kadish.

Israel Has Long Spied on U.S., Say Officials

BY BOB DROGIN AND GREG MILLER

FBI and other counterespionage agents, in turn, have covertly followed, bugged and videotaped Israeli diplomats, intelligence officers and others in Washington. New York and elsewhere, the officials said. The FBI routinely watches many diplomats assigned to America.

WASHINGTON — Despite its fervent denials, Israel secretly maintains a large and active intelligence-gathering operation in the United States that has long attempted to recruit U.S. officials as spies and to procure classified documents, U.S. government officials said.

"There is a huge, aggressive, ongoing set of Israeli activities directed against the United States," said a former intelligence official who was familiar with the latest FBI probe and who recently left government. "Anybody who worked in counterintelligence in a professional capacity will tell you the Israelis are among the most aggressive and active countries targeting the United States."

How Israel Spies on US Citizens

A never-shown Al Jazeera documentary on the pro-Israel lobby in the United States reveals possibly illegal Israeli spying on American citizens, and the lobby's fear of a changing political mood.

The documentary showed Kleinfeld being enthusiastically recruited for his skills by The Israel Project (TIP), which defends Israel's image in the media, and associating with senior members of organizations that support Israel unconditionally, especially the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (Aipac), the powerful US lobbying group. For five months, he mixed with them at cocktail parties, congresses, and conventions, and on Kleinfeld's contacts told him they were spying on US citizens with the help of Israel's Ministry of Strategic Affairs, founded in 2006, which reports directly to Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. One official said: "We are a different government working on foreign soil. [so] we have to be very, very cautious." And indeed some of the things they do could be subject to prosecution under US law.

training courses. He won their trust and they opened up to him, abandoning doublespeak and official lines. How, he asked, did they go about influencing the US Congress? "Congressmen don't do anything unless you pressure them, and the only way to do that is with money." How did they counter Palestinian-rights activists on university campuses? "With the anti-Israeli people, what's most effective, what we found at least in the last year, is you do the opposition research, put up some anonymous website, and then put up targeted Facebook ads."

The Israeli "art student" mystery

For almost two years, hundreds of young Israelis falsely claiming to be art students haunted federal offices -- in particular, the DEA. No one knows why -- and no one seems to want to find out.

By CHRISTOPHER KETCHAM

In January 2001, the security branch of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency began to receive a number of peculiar reports from DEA field offices across the country. According to the reports, young Israelis claiming to be art students and offering artwork for sale had been attempting to penetrate DEA offices for over a year. The Israelis had also attempted to penetrate the offices of other law enforcement and Department of Defense agencies. Strangest of all, the "students" had visited the homes of numerous DEA officers and other senior federal officials.

As a pattern slowly emerged, the DEA appeared to have been targeted in what it called an "organized intelligence gathering activity." But to what end, and for whom, no one knew.

Reports of the mysterious Israelis with an inexplicable interest in peddling art to G-men came in from more than 40 U.S. cities and continued throughout the first six months of 2001. Agents of the DEA, ATF, Air Force, Secret Service, FBI, and U.S. Marshals Service documented some 130 separate incidents of "art student" encounters. Some of the Israelis were observed diagramming the inside of federal buildings. Some were found carrying photographs they had taken of federal agents. One was discovered with a computer printout in his luggage that referred to "DEA groups."

In some cases, the Israelis visited locations not known to the public -- areas without street addresses, for example, or DEA offices not identified as such -- leading authorities to suspect that information had been gathered from prior surveillance or perhaps electronically, from credit cards and other sources. One Israeli was discovered holding banking receipts for substantial sums of money, close to $180,000 in withdrawals and deposits over a two-month period. A number of the Israelis resided for a period of time in Hollywood, Fla. -- the small city where Mohammed Atta and three terrorist comrades lived for a time before Sept. 11.

At the end of Kleinfeld's time at TTP, his boss there, Eric Gallagher, was so happy with his performance that he wanted to hire "Tony" on a permanent basis: "I would love it if you came to work for me. I need someone who's a team player, hardworking, excited, passionate, curious, well-rounded, well-spoken, well-read. You're all of those things." Kleinfeld turned down the job. His qualifications were genuine, but he was of course an undercover reporter, sent by Al Jazeera to investigate the pro-Israel lobby. He filmed conversations using a hidden camera and later, as part of Miliband attacked the "profound disregard" for UK sovereignty and said the apparent involvement of a friendly nation "added insult to injury".

Israel Spied on Iran Nuclear Talks With U.S.

Ally's snooping upset White House because information was used to lobby Congress to try to sink a deal

In March 2001, the Office of the National Counterintelligence Executive (NCIX), a branch of the CIA, issued a heads-up to federal employees about "suspicious visitors to federal facilities." The warning noted that "employees have observed both males and females attempting to bypass facility security and enter federal buildings." Federal agents, the warning stated, had "arrested two of these individuals for trespassing and discovered that the suspects possessed counterfeit work visas and green cards."

In the wake of the NCIX bulletin, federal officials raised several other red flags, including an Air Force alert, a Federal Protective Services alert, an Office of National Drug Control Policy security alert and a request that the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) investigate a specific case. Officials began dealing more aggressively with the "art students." According to one account, some 140 Israeli nationals were detained or arrested between March 2001 and Sept. 11, 2001. Many of them were deported. According to the INS, the deportations resulted from violations of student visas that forbade the Israelis from working in the United States. (In fact, Salon has established that none of the Israelis were enrolled in the art school most of them claimed to be attending; the other college they claimed to be enrolled in does not exist.) After the Sept. 11 attacks, many more young Israelis -- 60, according to one AP dispatch and other reports -- were detained and deported.

The "art students" followed a predictable modus operandi. They generally worked in teams, typically consisting of a driver, who was the team leader, and three or four subordinates. The driver would drop the "salespeople" off at a given location and return to pick them up some hours later. The "salespeople" entered offices or approached agents in their offices or homes. Sometimes they pitched their artwork -- landscapes, abstract works, homemade pins and other items they carried about in portfolios. At other times, they simply attempted to engage agents in conversation. If asked about their studies, they generally said they were from the Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design in Jerusalem or the University of Jerusalem (which does not exist). They were described as "aggressive" in their sales pitch and "evasive" when questioned by wary agents. The females among them were invariably described as "very attractive" -- "blondes in tight shorts or jeans, real lookers," as one DEA agent put it to Salon. "They were flirty, flipping the hair, looking at you, smiling. 'Hey, how are you? Let me show you this.' Everything a woman would do if she wanted to get something out of you." Some agents noted that the "students" made repeated attempts to avoid facility security personnel by trying to enter federal buildings through back doors and side entrances. On several occasions, suspicious agents who had been visited at home observed the Israelis after the "students" departed and noted that they did not approach any of the neighbors.

David Sassoon and his sons controlled over 60% of Opium trade to China after the second Opium war, surpassing even Jardine, Matheson and Company (the largest British company in the Opium Trade). David was from Baghdad and operated out of Bombay.

Victor Sassoon, direct descendant of David, built many famous hotels and buildings off of his slave dollars in China. Including but not limited to the Peace hotel in Shanghai, which was renamed from the Cathay hotel after the communists took over because they don't even present accurate history to their constituents.

Soong Ching Ling, one of the most famous and revered women in the eyes of the Chinese confiscated Marble Hall, one of the most famous buildings in Shanghai, from the Kadoorie family. I wonder how they got all that money. The Kadoorie family quite literally built Hong Kong from the ground up after the Japanese occupation ended post world war 2 and the grandson of the patriarch in the family is still alive today worth several billion dollars. Yet China does not have any recorded mention of them because their own history is falsified to their constituents.

> Apparently "Queen" Victoria (alleged lover of Benjamin Disraeli) gave the Sassoon family an absolute monopoly on opium importation to China. The Sassons then heavily intermarried with the Rothschilds and deposited all their profits into Rothschild banks. All of the business ledgers on the transport ships were written in Hebrew to assure secrecy.

> The family were Iraqi Jews. His mother was Amam Gabbai.

> Although David Sassoon did not speak English, in 1853 he became a naturalised British subject. He kept the dress and manners of the Baghdadi Jews, but allowed his sons to adopt English manners. His son, Abdullah changed his name to Albert, moved to England, became a Baronet and married into the Rothschild family.

I am have put together a project to try and determine if children went missing around Passover. I've put all of the scripts of my research project into a git repository for anyone to recreate my research.

Here's what I've found

- >over 9% of all children on the Center for Missing and Exploited Children database in the last 20 years have gone missing in the 2 weeks leading up to Passover.
- >Passover's dates change annually meaning this is statistically significant
- >If this was any other 15 day period in the year the expected results would be 138 missing children. The actual number is 312.

For other autists here:

- >Chi-square statistic: 69.47881386224077
- >p-value: 7.723973643673481e-17

The results are statistically significant, meaning the increase in missing kids around the Passover dates is unlikely to be due to chance.

EXCLUSIVE Jack The Ripper: The astonishing Freemason connection that explains his motive and a 136-year cover-up - as his real face is unmasked for the first time

By FRED KELLY

PUBLISHED: 21:05 EDT, 6 October 2024 | UPDATED: 07:01 EDT, 7 October 2024

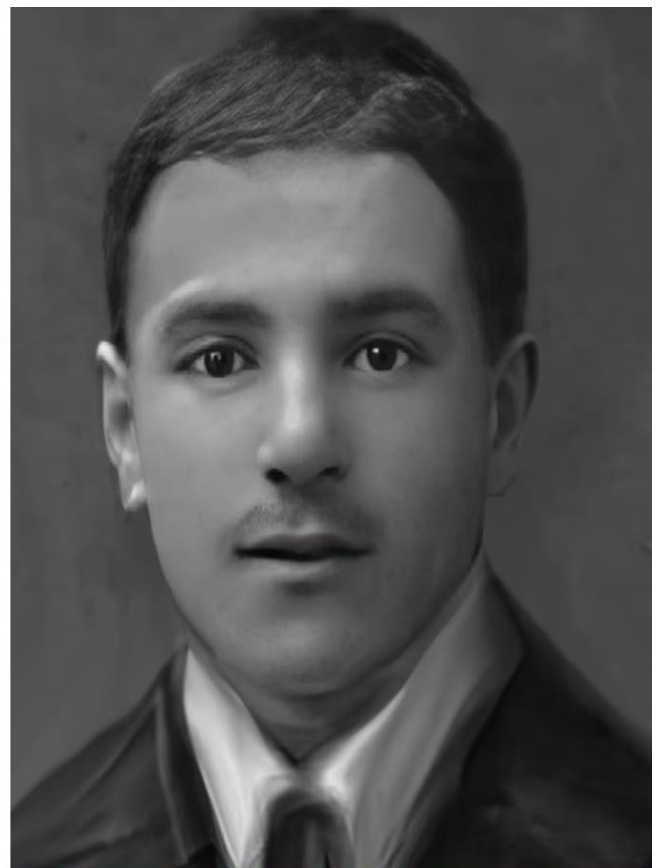

A more dreadful sight I never saw,' uttered PC Edward Watkins, still reeling from the shock.

A few hours earlier, at 1.44am on September 30, 1888, the officer on his beat in London's East End had turned on to Mitre Square and stumbled upon a corpse so mutilated that, as he later told reporters, 'it was difficult to discern the injuries to the face for the quantity of blood which covered it'.

The Whitechapel Murders were truly most foul. Each of the five female victims was savagely disfigured and her blood left to spill across the cobbles of Victorian London.

But perhaps the most terrifying aspect of this quintuple homicide, committed over less than four months, is that for over a century, the killer's identity was a mystery. Instead, he simply became known as Jack the Ripper.

And then, ten years ago in 2014, the Mail exclusively revealed how amateur sleuth Russell Edwards had identified one Aaron Kosminski, a Jewish immigrant from Poland, as the fabled killer.

DNA 'finally unmask' serial killer after 136 years'

It was after Mr Edwards used DNA evidence from the shawl of one of his victims to "prove" that Jack the Ripper was actually Aaron Kosminski, a Jewish immigrant from Poland who was one of the key suspects at the time of the horrific Whitechapel murders.

He also believes that the Masonic connections of his brother were probably what prevented his younger sibling's arrest, to avoid the fallout against the Jews.

More alarmingly, the Ripper left another clue at the Eddowes murder scene. Nearby scrawled in chalk was the mysterious phrase

"The Juwes are the men that will not be blamed for nothing."

The JEWISH Infestation Of Africa: Zimbabwe To Uganda, Congo To Somalia And Beyond

"The coastal West African nation of Sierra Leone has been pillaged by some of the most vile elements of International Jewry. From the Brooklyn neighborhood of Brighton Beach, the small, troubled and diamond-rich Sierra Leone was "virtually run" by Marat Balagula, the Ukranian-jewish mob boss of the most powerful criminal organization on earth, the Red Mafiya.

Sierra Leone's president, Joseph Momoh, didn't have any problem with the jewish syndicate setting up global smuggling and money laundering operations in Freetown because Balagula's associates, in return, bankrolled Momoh's 1985 presidential campaign.

The jewish ultra-gangster's main contact in Sierra Leone was a Mossad agent named Shabtai Kalmanovitch, who trained Momoh's presidential guard and assisted in the crushing of an attempted coup in 1986.

Balagula and Kalmanovitch were introduced by Rabbi Ronald Greenwald, a frontman for the interests of Marc Rich, the famous billionaire jewish criminal pardoned by Bill Clinton. This revelation shows a clear nexus between the "Israeli" entity and organized crime, united in the ancient jewish hatred of the Gentiles, working together for the furtherance of jewish interests.

In the Congo, where a catastrophic genocide has been occurring since 1996, in which up to 10 million people have died at a maddening rate of 1,500 a day, the profiteers of this downright insidious humanitarian disaster are almost exclusively jewish and intimately linked to the larger network of international Zionism that has been responsible for every major conflict of the last century.

Led by Dan Gertler, the grandson of Moshe Schnitzer, an Irgun terrorist known throughout the Zionist entity as "Mr. Diamond" and for founding the "Israel" Diamond Exchange in Tel Aviv in 1960, which today brings the usurping regime $14 billion annually in blood business, there is a jewish-Zionist network in the Congo so interlocked, so powerful and so domineering, that it can truly make one's head spin.

Gertler, a member of the influential Chabad Lubavitch supremacist gangster cult and guided by Rabbi Chaim Yaakov Leibovitch, is in bed with Jewish diamond dynasties that include the families of Templesman, Oppenheimer, Mendell, Blattner, Hertzov and Steinmetz, his main partner.

The Chabadnik criminal bought off the Congolese government in exchange for high-level "Israeli" defense and intelligence assistance. The endeavors of Gertler and Beny Steinmetz, one of the richest Jews in the Zionist entity, have proliferated and today, they have a monopoly over Congo's diamonds, a dominant stake in Congo's copper and the largest cobalt-mining company in the world.

And all of this blood money ties into Jewish organized crime, "Israeli" arms dealers, multiple influential Chabad houses and the Zionist occupation itself all the way up to Netanyahu's office

Gertler, a Jewish supremacist of the highest order, revels in sucking the Congo's blood and he's so sadistically thirsty for it, he just won't stop his criminality until there is nothing left but millions more dead."

But what am I supposed to believe? What is the alternative?

People woke up one morning and, on a whim of irrational hatred, randomly decided to remove a group of totally innocent Jews who were minding their own business.

And this happened 1,030 times in 109 different areas. And in each and every case, Jews never performed even one morally wrong action to justify the removal.

Yesterday the ADL added me to what can only be described as an effective hit list. They personally emailed reporters at major publications with a long set of smears about me—plus provided these reporters with a list of my show advertisers. This morning my advertisers began receiving emails such as below.

Make no mistake that we are witnessing the behavior of a mafia.

This mafia has used a network of smears to try to get me banned from @YouTube, providing a public step-by-step guide for how to mass report my account.

This mafia is also targeting my speaking events, by mass spamming my hosts via emails with threats.

Incredibly, they are even using their contacts in government to try to get me banned from travel.

At their core, these people are communists. They cannot compete in the free market of ideas. They do not know how to create, so they deceive and they steal. They cannot accept that people are still choosing to listen to me despite the full effort they are waging against me in the press, so they are now moving to try to squeeze me financially.

Fun fact, the ottoman empire allowed jews to settle in palestine to escape persecution, and less than a century later the jews had palestinians living on reservations completely dispossessed of their lands.

Bonus fact: The United States let waves of jews pour in at the turn of the century, and a century later jews have declared Whites to be the single greatest threat to the United States.

It goes far beyond just the west and we must realize this. Just look at Ukraine the ugly kikes just installed Jew President Valtzman and Jew Prime Minister Groysman. Or better yet this as you mention.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Young_Turk_Revolution

There is the book "Inner Folds of the Ottoman Revolution" written by Mevlan Zadeh Rifat in Turkish and published in 1929, the author, a pro-sultan Turk, claims that the "Armenian genocide was decided in August 1910 and October 1911, by a Young Turk committee composed entirely of displaced Balkan Jews in the format of a syncretist Jewish-Muslim sect which included Talaat, Enver, Behaeddin Shakir, Jemal, and Nizam posting as Muslims. It met in the Rothschild-funded Grand Orient lodge/hotel of Salonika." Syncretism means a combination of different forms of belief or practice; masonism fits that description. As the masons started the 1897 revolution in France with the cry "liberty, fraternity, equality," Young Turks used the same slogan in their revolution of 1908.

Jews, crypto-Jews called "dönme" specifically, were a full ~1:4 of the leadership. There were less than 5,000 of these people in the country. We're the talking odds of chance being in the tens of trillions to one range.

> Kara Kemal: I grant that both Talaat's point of view and yours may be right, but we also have to consider the opposite. If, God forbid, we should lose the war, we will simply have helped bring on our own destruction with our own two hands. I know the Armenians much better than you do: if we treat them with a little consideration, by fulfilling one of every five demands that they are likely to make, it is still possible to win them over to our side. Yes, to be safe, let's organize their deportation, but let's not massacre a group

> Dr. Mehmed Nâzim: I'm surprised to hear that some of our comrades are still standing up for the Armenians, when it is precisely the Armenians who are making life unbearable for our army in the border region and preventing us from advancing onto Russian territory. In Russia, besides the regular forces, thousands of volunteers are joining the fight against us, while thousands of Armenian deserters have simply upped and disappeared. We have to attack the Armenian question at the root, by wiping this nation out without a trace.

> Born in 1872 to a Dönme family, Mehmed Nazım was raised in Salonica

> The Dönme (Hebrew: דונְמֵה, romanized: Dönme, Ottoman Turkish: دونمه, Turkish: Dönme) were a group of Sabbatean crypto-Jews in the Ottoman Empire who converted outwardly to Islam, but retained their Jewish faith and Kabbalistic beliefs in secret. The movement was centered mainly in Thessaloniki. It originated during and soon after the era of Sabbatai Zevi, a 17th-century Sephardic Jewish Rabbi and Kabbalist who claimed to be the Jewish Messiah and eventually feigned conversion to Islam

Europe's payback for the Holocaust

IJN Editorial Staff Nov 14, 2024 Editorials, Opinion 0

Shimon Felder was right.

Permit us to introduce Shimon Felder. The IJN wrote and published a profile on him in 2001. He was one of the very few child survivors of Bergen-Belsen and Biberach, and one of the many Holocaust survivors the IJN has profiled over the years. Felder's story was different in that his mother, father, sister and grandmother survived. Perhaps for that reason, or because of an innate goodness, or because he was a world traveler, linguist and astute observer, Felder commented:

"Europe's punishment for the Holocaust is the destruction of its culture, the fact that radical Islam is taking over the continent."

This came to mind upon learning of the anti-Semitic riots in Amsterdam last week. On their face, the riots were generated by opposition to Israel's war against Hamas in Gaza. But whence the opposition? Whence the virulence? Whence the anti-Jewish hatred? Whence the "Jew hunt?" Whence the efficiency behind the attempted pogrom? It all stems in large part from the drastic cultural and demographic shift in the Netherlands — and throughout Europe.

France? It has "no go" zones. They are too dangerous. Britain? Parts of London harbor preachers who spew anti-Jewish hatred. Germany? Since 2011 (the "Arab Spring") and especially during the 2015 Syrian refugee crisis, Germany welcomed Middle Eastern immigrants. What it failed to do — and what the UK, France and others failed to do — was to require that the newly arrived immigrants integrate into society — and facilitate that process.

Countries like the Netherlands and Sweden avoided the hard work of integration, instead allowing no go zones and radicalization. When these countries realized the problem, it had already become full blown — as witnessed last week in Amsterdam.

Homeowners well know that deferred maintenance always ends up costing more. So too Europe's decision to look away.

France wonders at the criminality that dominates its own "no go" areas — a direct result of France allowing unchecked migration from its former colonies without providing resources for those who were migrating. Now, one or two generations later, France has fostered a large community of people who never knew hope and engage in criminality or indulge extremism.

Europe is being divided into the “infidels” and the “believers,” into radicalized cohorts and democratic cohorts. Europe is dividing into the past and into a very different future.

Radicalization begets radicalization. Radical Islam has to an extent caused a rise in white European racism. The attack in Amsterdam will no doubt foment race-based anti-immigration sentiment — which is why European countries should have made integration a requirement to remain in any given country.

Note: Shimon Felder was born in Amsterdam, the very locale of last week’s pogrom. Shimon Felder spoke Dutch, Swiss-German, German, French, Yiddish, Hebrew and English (without an accent); he knew the continent, what it was and what it has become.

Democracy accommodates different religions, but it does not accommodate religions or ethnicities that, in principle and practice, oppose political and religious pluralism. European civilization is slowly calcifying before our eyes.

The irony is manifold. The ideological death of Western civilization was spawned in the madness of mass murder that we call the Holocaust. The Holocaust itself can be seen as its own payback — the bankruptcy of Western civilization, the creation and tolerance of the intentional and largely mechanized murder of millions of Jews. But the framework of Western civilization remained.

Now, not so much. Democracy is under threat. Norms of constitutional law are under threat. The pluralism of religious commitment is under threat. The blatant expression of vile anti-Semitism proceeds without shame. The idea that the destruction of Israel is a valid political position is growing. Symbolically, the recent anti-Jewish riots in Amsterdam took place a short distance from the International Criminal Court, which gives credence to the anti-Israel lies that abound in Europe. The momentum in Europe is in one direction.

Europe undermined itself by its prosecution of the Holocaust, a German enterprise that succeeded only because of the massive collaboration from countless other countries and peoples. All of Europe is implicated in the Holocaust, and all of Europe, year by year, faces its payback — its slow dissolution as a cultural, world historic force.

Note: Philosophers of history speak of the ultimate direction of history, the influence of economic, military and intellectual forces that become determinative. Philosophers of history speak of patterns in history. To articulate a “payback” for the Holocaust is not only an idea and a theological statement; it is a discernible and measurable development.

As we said: the manifold irony. An anti-Jewish riot in the capital of the European country with the lowest Jewish survival rate during the Holocaust highlights the slow death of European civilization, a descent that begun with the war against the Jews. It begins with the Jews, but it does not end with the Jews. The anti-Jewish riots in Amsterdam seemed to target the Jews; the real target was Amsterdam itself, Holland itself, Europe itself. For every anti-Jewish riot in Europe, the rioters pound another nail into the coffin of European civilization.

Elections in European countries come and go. Coalitions form and collapse. Economic and security issues of the day find their defenders and opponents. But the underlying thrust of European life is not to be found in these elections, nor in the European Union. The underlying thrust is demographic and cultural-religious. This trajectory is larger than any single European country and is rooted in the historic evil of the Holocaust. Again, it is necessary to be precise. The Holocaust began with one country but succeeded because of the indifference or collaboration of the whole continent; minus, of course, the righteous gentiles who risked and often gave their lives for what is right.

Europe’s payback for the Holocaust is underway. Can it be halted? Perhaps. But only with a level of moral clarity that was utterly absent 80 years ago and seems woefully muted today.

Jews are using the Samson Option to hold our planet hostage. This is a serious threat.

How can an intelligent, wealthy Gentile stop jews from using the Samson Option?

Since jews are monitoring us constantly, that Gentile would need to blend in and become the most avid supporter of jews to conceal his plans.

He may even need to identify as a jew to play the long game. He could never step out of character.

Since infiltration into israel is unlikely, the Gentile would need to focus on distributing satellite infrastructure in space to detect non-launched nuclear assets, such as warheads stored in silos, submarines, or other secure locations, such as tunnels, used by jews.

Indirect methods like high-resolution imaging or synthetic aperture radar (SAR) might be relied upon to track infrastructure, unusual activity, or thermal anomalies around suspected jewish nuclear storage locations.

If jews are using an AI-powered dead man's switch to execute the launch, satellites may be needed to detect the heat signatures and determine where the computational power is stored.

An EMP weapon or other, more precise methods may be needed to rapidly cripple the Samson Option when jews least expect it.

That Gentile may need to start looking for another Earth-like planet, or perhaps Mars, to re-seed humanity, along with our technological progress and history, in case things go wrong.

In the meantime, that Gentile would need to allow as much free speech as possible so that the world wakes up to the deadly danger jews pose to our planet. When the jewish stronghold is dismantled, humanity will understand why.

Does such a Gentile or team of Gentiles exist? Have they been operating since Ford or JFK? Unfortunately, I don't think so. We can't depend on "secret patriots" or "Q" pipedreams.

What this implies is that we ought to continue raising awareness of the jewish existential threat to humanity to increase the odds that the information lands on the right ears.

Spreading the best of our information in a vertical direction to alert the professional class and intelligentsia is advised. Direct email correspondence can be more effective than social media posts.

Jews monitor public sentiment. They know they are running out of friends, hour by hour.

They are desperate to regain our sympathy and they are constantly using cunning methods to do so.

What this means is that jews, if they run out of other options, are likely to engineer another startling event to make themselves appear as helpless crybabies and victims.

The next event they perform against themselves, they may be surprised to find that nobody really cares. They may find, if anything, that it is cheered on.

They may get a few of the typical "thoughts and prayers" reactions, but millions around the world will be silently thinking, "Good."

Whenever you see the jew acting like a helpless crybaby, just remember all of the millions of Gentile children who were starved to death, mutilated, and burned alive by jews.

Always keep these victims fresh on your mind. If we were to have the slightest sympathy for the jew, it would be the most horrific betrayal of these victims.

Any pity for the "helpless" jew is treason against humanity and a crime against future generations.

Whatever happens to jews, it is God's judgment manifesting itself at this point. And it is not our place to question God's deliverance of justice, no matter how harsh it may seem, and no matter how much the devil may wear the mask of a "helpless angel."

It would be a sin to stand in God's way or feel any sympathy for the devil. We have sympathy only with the millions of Gentiles that the jew has slaughtered throughout history.

Gentiles must understand the nature of jewish unfairness.

After Palestinian babies were killed, jews played the recordings of their blood-curdling screams in front of campus protesters and laughed.

When German children were starving on the streets, jews held extravagant feasts in the restaurant windows of the Weimar Republic, positioned in front of the children. The act of feasting in front of starving Gentile children made the meal more enjoyable to jews.

When the children asked jews for food, jews mocked them and threw scraps to dogs instead. The jews enjoyed watching the children desperately compete with dogs for pieces.

When the world was horrified by jews raping Palestinian prisoners, israel made it a point to celebritize the rapist in front of all of us.

You have to understand that this is the way the jew operates. It is a tradition. He must rub it in. The more brazen, the better.

When we complain that jews call us cattle, jews laugh among themselves and mock us.

The more we suffer and plead with jews to stop, the more euphoric they feel. Our protests only encourage the jew to continue.

As Americans are dying in North Carolina, jews make their client politicians write, "Pray for israel." They want us to see it.

When you comment on videos of suffering Palestinian children, jews are reading the comments and laughing and celebrating.

Jews make it a point to show you that they can call for the worst kinds of violence on social media and never get banned. But any Gentile can be banned at the slightest infraction. And they want you to know this. They want you to see it. They enjoy your complaints.

Jews derive immense pleasure by rubbing it all in our faces.

The more it pains us, the more we protest, the more excited jews feel.

When a Gentile trusts a jew as a "friend," the jew regards that Gentile as a naive goy who has granted permission to be betrayed and exploited at a time of the jew's choosing.

At the higher levels of jewry, you are dealing with individuals who would start a war between Gentiles, not just for profit or power, but also for pure pleasure.

You see Gentiles saying things like, "How can our government treat us like this? It's insane!"

It's not insane. It's jews calling the shots. To jews, it is perfectly sane. The more we are abused, the better.

You will never get the jew to stop by appealing to humanity or justice. And the jew is immune to any shaming.

The only way to defend oneself against an unfair enemy is with superior unfairness and ruthlessness.

I'm sorry it has to be this way, but this is the reality.
